House Passes Billion Dollar Defense Measure

Bill Provides for 3,000 New Planes, 68 Warships And 95,000 More Men

Funds for Training 87,000 Civilian Air Pilots Are Provided; Vote is 401 to 1 in Favor with Representative Marcantonio Dissenting; Session's Defense Program is Boosted to $5,021,619,622

WASHINGTON, June 12. (AP)—By a vote of 401 to 1, the House stamped quick approval today on an extraordinary $1,706,053,908 bill providing funds for 3,000 new planes, sixty-eight warships, 95,000 additional men for the army, a far-flung system of naval air bases and other defense measures.

Last of a series of big defense appropriations to start through Congress, the measure passed the House and went to the Senate with only Rep. Marcantonio (AL-NY) dissenting. It raises the session's total defense program to $5,021,619,622.

Among other items in the bill are funds for training for 87,000 civilian air pilots, to be conducted by the Civil Aeronautics Authority, and to include primary, secondary and "refresher" training, the last for old pilots who may need brushing up on combat flying. The bill also provides funds for an unspecified number of tanks and other mechanized equipment.

CCC Activities Assigned

The Senate, meanwhile, approved the training of CCC boys in non-combatant army activities, such as bakery, photography and mechanics. The chamber rejected, 47 to 35, a proposal by Senator George (D-Ga) to give military training to those enrollees who volunteer for it. The latter met with the opposition of such administration spokesmen as Senator Barkley (D-Ky), the majority leader, and Senator Byrnes (D-SC).

At the same time, the top men of the Army and Navy held an unusual meeting with Secretary Morgenthau. He then conferred with allied purchasing agents who announced that the government had promised them an opportunity to buy more surplus war materials," in line with the administration policy of all possible material aid to the Allies.

In the Senate, a group of legislators angrily assailed what they termed steps in the direction of war.

Wheeler Voices Opposition

"Every move is being used to take us down the road to war," Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) thundered.

"We have seen this country led away from the neutrality to non-belligerency," said Senator Holt (D-WVa), "and if certain individuals in the government have their way we will strike out the 'non' and be belligerent before the snow flies."

Wheeler also asserted that if the Democratic party should become a war party," he would unhesitatingly "break with it." He would do it, he said, "support any candidate for president who's trying to get us into this war."

Senator Clark (D-Mo) called attention to an article in the London Daily Express saying that Senator Nye (R-ND) and Senator Johnson (R-Calif) appeared to be the only remaining bulwarks against American participation in the war.

"I think that as time goes along you will find many another bulwark," Clark shouted, "despite the London Daily Express."

Pushing forward with all possible speed with the task of building up the nation's defenses the Navy announced during the day that it ordered work started on [illegible] new battleships and twenty [illegible] craft last night within an hour after President Roosevelt had signed legislation providing the funds.

At the same time, the White House disclosed that the government was turning reserve manufacturing equipment over to private industry to make possible the "immediate" manufacture of sizeable quantities of smokeless powder, ammonia and small arms munition. It said, too that "excellent progress" had been made in surveying army-navy stocks for the determination of what may be declared surplus and be made available to the Allies, in asserting his determination to

Byrd Opines Tax Bill Yield Is "Chicken Feed" For Treasury

Virginia Senator Declares Three Billion Should Be Raised if Treasury Is To Remain Solvent

Morgenthau Discloses That Persons Who Buy Defense Bonds Must Pay Taxes on Them

WASHINGTON, June 12. (AP) — Amid Senate suggestions that Congress double or triple the billion-dollar tax bill approved by the House, Secretary Morganthau disclosed today that persons who buy the proposed new federal defense bonds would have to pay taxes on them.

Morgenthau advised the Senate finance committee that he would utilize existing authority to apply federal taxes to income from these securities even if Congress failed to heed his recommendation that present exemptions be removed from all future issues of federal state and local bonds.

"That will make the bonds harder to sell, won't it?" asked Senator Connally (D-Tex). Morgenthau smiled the question away.

Besides raising $1,004,000,000 in new taxes, the House revenue bill would increase the federal debt limit from $45,000,000,000 to $49,000,000,000. A special $4,000,000,000 defense security issue would be sold and retired over a five-year period from proceeds from the new taxes.

Reduces Tax Exemptions

The legislation also would reduce income tax exemptions to create 2,000,000 new taxpayers; increase corporation taxes and surtaxes on individual incomes between $6,000 and $100,000 and impose a ten percent supertax on present income and excise taxes.

Suggestions that Congress remain in session to write a comprehensive tax revision measure came from several finance committeemen, and Senator Byrd (D-Va) remarked that the $1,004,000,000 which the

ITALIAN FIRST LINE OF OFFENSE IN BATTLE FORMATION

Behind the large, heavily armored tanks used as a spear head in a blitzkrieg attack come these smaller tanks used to clear a path for infantry, rushed along in speedy lorries. These Italian machines of death are shown in maneuvers at Rome. Hundreds are reported massed on the Italian side of the French border. In addition, Italy has many flame-throwing tanks for trench and open road work.

French Admit Nazi Advance To the Marne

Prisoners Report Enormous Losses among Germans Near Reims Reims

TOURS, France, June 12 (AP) — German troops crossed the Marne at Chateau-Thierry in a storm of fire tonight, and other forces struck down from the north to within twenty miles of the heart of Paris.

They pushed forward on the capital in three main thrusts, and completed almost half of a ring about it, swinging from the Seine to Persan-Beaumont and Senlis and then down to Chateau-Thierry—the field where American Marines helped break another German advance of twenty-two years ago.

In Chantilly, near Semlis and Persan-Beaumont in the region twenty miles north of Paris, the fighting raged over the gardens of United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt's Chateau.

(Bullitt is understood still to be in Paris.)

Into a mighty battle to take Reims, above the Marne, the Nazis threw a whole mechanized army corps numbering 80,000 men or more and about 3,000 tanks, armored cars and shielded machine-gun-bearing motorcycles.

Germans Reach Marne

The French did not acknowledge the loss of Reims, which the Germans claim, but they did concede some forces had swept past it and across the Marne at Chateau Thierry.

German efforts along the Seine likewise were spectacular. They put on all possible pressure from Rouen to Vernon in an effort to enlarge a bridgehead they had established on the south side of the river.

In that area, the French high command declared the invaders were being held in the region of Pacy Sur Eure and Evreux.

Royal Air Force Strikes In Italy and Germany

British Lose One Plane in Raids on Cologne, Turin and Genoa

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 13.—(Thursday)—Great Britain poured men and guns across the English channel to the aid of her hard-pressed French ally today, backing up far-ranging air raids pressed against the enemy from Equatorial Africa to Arctic Norway.

"Every gun that could shoot," every available soldier and tank headed for the Continental battlefield to fight the Germans, while Italy replied to British air forays with deadly attacks on Malta, Britain's island fortress in the Mediterranean.

The British, counting their successes from tons of bombs aimed at the Axis powers, also counted thirty of her civilians dead and thirty injured from the eighth Italian air raid on Malta. Seven soldiers also were wounded. The Italians returned to the Mediterranean island early this morning and made two more raids—the ninth and tenth—and ran into a blaze of anti-aircraft gunfire.

The Germans feinted at Britain with a series of flights over the Southern Coast during the night and early morning but no bombs were dropped and ground defenses drove the raiders off.

Egypt, ally of Britain, handed the Italian minister to Cairo his passport after severing diplomatic relations with Italy.

Rush Aid to France

"Every available man, rifle, gun and tank is being sent to the aid of France," the Daily Herald reported. "The war office is gathering every article of equipment to hasten their dispatch.

Among the reinforcements were British and Polish soldiers withdrawn from Narvik when the Allies abandoned the Northern Norway ore port. They hardly had set foot on home soil before they were off again to battle the Germans.

Prime Minister Churchill, who conferred yesterday with French officials in France, is expected to make a statement today on the war situation.

Outnumbered but game, the British Air Force carired the war to Italy and Germany yesterday.

With waves of bombers and tons of explosives she struck along the German front in France, across the border into Germany, over the Alps to Italy's centers of industry and into Africa against troops, ships and airdromes.

Britain's empire around the world joined in the blows against the foes of the Allies.

Italy Extends Mine Zone To Box In Malta

Control Stations Set Up To Expedite Passage of Neutral Ships

ROME, June 12 (AP) — Italy moved to cut the Mediterranean in half tonight with a wide new mine belt intended to box in completely the British fortified island of Malta — Italy's first announced objective of the war.

Her other activity against the Allies in this third day of her participation on the side of Germany was largely an unknown quantity, however.

(It is less than 100 miles from Sicily across the Mediterranean to French African Tunisia. Roughly half way lies the Italian island of Pantelleria. Apparently the mines are intended to keep Allied naval forces and sea-borne supplies from the western Mediterranean from reaching Allied land and sea forces now in the middle east.)

Non-enemy ships passing from one end of the Mediterranean to the other now must go through narrow straits of Messina, between Corsica and the toe of Italy proper.

It was stated that "measures have been taken to hurry their passage."

The new mined zone, as described in a government communique, boxes Malta — the fortified British island — completely.

Zone Is Extended

The mine zone extends on the Western side from the French Tunisian coast North to a point off the Sardinian coast, thence Southeast to the Sicilian coast.

On the other side, the mines were laid from the Sicilian coast to a point southeast of Malta, Britain's island fortress, thence to Anglo, southwest of Rasagedir.

Control stations were set up at Rasocolmo and Capo Delle Armi, on either side of Messina, to expedite passage of neutral ships through the straits.

The Allies brought the war to Italy earlier in the day with bombing raids on the great industrial cities of Milan and Turin and other points in the north.

Other enemy action of unspecified nature burst along the Ligurian

German Troops Tighten Circle About Paris

French Capital Within Easy Range of Guns from Three Directions

BERLIN, June 13 (AP)—(Thursday)—Tens of thousands of German troops, who saw the Eiffel tower of Paris clearly just a little way ahead, drew tighter their circle of fire and steel about that French capital today.

The city—doomed in German eyes—was within easy range of German guns from three directions.

German artillery opened up on the long-quiet upper Rhine front—perhaps as the prelude to an effort to drive one last decisive wedge into France—while divisions of the Nazi center were smashing within 12½ miles of Paris along the Oise.

At the same time the German West wing claimed to have knocked out an important French force on the English channel, taking 20,000 prisoners.

The artillery action on the far East of the German line was cautiously discussed by an authorized spokesman only thusly:

"It may be that the front on the Upper Rhine is being brought into motion."

The exact location of the firing and the French replies was not disclosed, the spokesman declining to elaborate beyond saying that wide rivers had been proved in the Polish, Dutch and Belgian campaigns to be no obstacles to the Germans.

Capture Six Generals

The German wireless, however, declared that if the Upper Rhine became a major battlefront "then France, which already has to solve the problem of a two-front war, would be compelled to fight on a third front and employ there the manpower which already is becoming so scarce."

The front on the Upper Rhine extends from Karlsruhe along the river to the Swiss frontier.

The high command announced that six Allied generals — five French and one British—had given

Germans Claim Capture Of Reims, Rouen; Cross Seine and Marne Rivers

Nazis Report They Have Advanced to Within Twelve Miles of Paris; Italian Diplomats Get Going-Away Papers from Egypt; Italy Increases Mine Fields around Sicily

By The Associated Press

With Nazi army units standing twenty miles from the center of besieged and partly-depopulated Paris, Britain rushed new aid today (Thursday) to her battered ally.

British troops, guns and tanks were streaming once more across the channel to relieve the defenders who were hammered backward even though they fought with all the fury Frenchmen can muster when fighting for their own soil.

Reinforcements speeding to France were thousands of British and Polish troops brought back from Narvik, Norway.

The war spread to other areas and apparently was on the verge of next engulfing Egypt which handed Italian diplomats their going-away papers after severing relations.

Under the provisions of a military alliance with Egypt, British bombers apparently were using Egyptian bases for raids on Italy's Eritrea on the Red Sea and Libya on the Mediterranean.

Spain, where anti-British demonstrators have shouted for Gibraltar, officially reiterated a policy of non-belligerency.

Thirty Killed in Malta

New air raid warnings shrilled in Malta this morning and it was disclosed that thirty civilians were killed and thirty injured and seven soldiers were wounded Tuesday night in the eighth Italian air raid on that British naval base in the Mediterranean.

Japanese Planes Wreak Havoc in Chinese Capital

CHUNGKING, June 12 (AP)—In a brief twenty-three-minute raid this afternoon 124 Japanese planes today destroyed two-thirds of old Chungking city, provisional capital of China, and caused casualties probably numbering 1,500.

American missionaries said the havoc was the worst single devastation caused by Japanese bombers since the start of hostilities nearly three years ago, and probably was one of the worst ravages of a city in history.

Between 800 and 900 demolition bombs were dropped.

Columns of black smoke poured from the stricken district after this second big raid in two days.

A raid yesterday by 117 planes caused at least 50 casualties. One bomb fell within thirty yards of the U. S. embassy, two fell in the garden of the British ambassador's home, and others partially demolished the Soviet embassy.

Offices of the German Transocean News agency were destroyed by fire, the building housing the Havas (French) and Tass (Soviet) News agencies was destroyed, and the Associated Press building was near collapse.

The U. S. House of Representatives passed by a vote of 401 to 1 an extraordinary defense bill of $1,706,053,908 to provide 3,000 planes, sixty-eight warships, 95,000 more men for the army, a vast array of naval air bases and other defense measures.

It raised the session's defense appropriations to $5,021,619,622.

In the bitter fighting for Paris, the French high command reported, a crushing mass of German troops pushed some of their number across the historic Marne river to the south side in the area of Chateau Thierry.

Others smashed against French defenders near Persan-Beaumont which is twenty miles straight north from the heart of the French capital.

The immediate drive on Paris has developed into three separate main thrusts, from the East and West, where the Germans are forty to fifty miles away, and from due North, where Nazis have made their greatest advance, at Persan-Beaumont.

On the East the drive was in the Chateau Thierry region where American Marines won glory in the last war. The West drive roared along both banks to the Seine river from Rouen to Vernon. There the Germans were seeking to reinforce their detachments which had plunged across the river.

The Germans flung more and more troops, tanks and yet more tanks against the bitterly fought French.

In the Senis regions the gardens of the Chantilly Chateau of American Ambassador William C. Bullitt became a battleground.

The German gains were being made at fearful cost.

The French said they learned from prisoners that counter-attacks by French tanks and planes, some returning to the fight five times during the day, had inflicted heavy losses.

Nazis Take 20,000 Prisoners

In Berlin, the Germans figured they had guaranteed victory in the Battle of France.

They said they had captured Reims and Rouen (which the French did not admit), crossed the Seine and the Marne on the two flanks on the French capital and blasted away the resistance of a French force near St. Valery, on the English channel, taking 20,000 prisoners and six generals.

In the center, said the Germans, they had made the Oise river valley their road to Paris and were 12½ miles from their goal. This is closer than the French concede.

The possibility that Germany might be pointed up another spear to thrust into France arose with

Charlie Chaplin Asks Million Damages against Two Magazines

NEY YORK, June 12. (AP)—Distribution of part of Friday's issue of Life magazine was halted by Federal court today on the complaint of Charlie Chaplin that the issue contained an unauthorized picture of him as the title character in his motion picture, "The Dictator."

Besides asking for an injunction, Chaplin sued for $1,000,000 damages against Time, Inc., and four officers of the Time and Life group, charging that the representation by the magazine would destroy the income-producing value of the film, which he said was not yet ready for exploitation.

In a statement later, Life said it obtained the Chaplin picture from "a person unknown to us" but that it "promptly notified the Chaplin Studios of the fact that it had received this picture and planned to publish it. Although Mr. Chaplin's attorney admitted in court that Life's letter had been received on Monday x x x it was not until this morning that Life was advised that a court action was to take place."

"Life has been put to great inconvenience and expense by this surprising action, which, however much it may attract public attention, to the film, can only be considered as unprecedented and regretable."

In granting Chaplin and the Charles Chaplin Film Corporation a temporary injunction, Federal Judge John C. Knox exempted 1,600,000 copies of Life already enroute to news dealers. In more than 1,000,000 copies yet to be printed, the full-page Chaplin pictures will be replaced with a news photo

One Killed, Five Injured as Time Bomb Explodes on British Freighter

BUENOS AIRES, June 12. (AP)—A powerful time bomb apparently intended to sink the British Royal Mail Freighter Gascony at sea, blasted the center hold of the vessel yhile at dock tonight, killing an Argentine stevedore and injuring five others.

The first explosion was followed by a second in another hold after the ship already was in such condition that she probably will have to be taken into dry dock.

Officials said the explosion was the result of the first major sabotage in Buenos Aires harbor since the start of the European war.

First reports said four British sailors were injured. It developed, however, that the injured were men engaged in loading meat.

The explosion shattered a fuel tank and opened the side of the 4,716-ton ship.

Fearing that time bombs might have been placed on other British ships in port, Argentine authorities suspended loadings pending a thorough search of the vessels and their cargoes.

One port official said cargo dropping into the hole apparently set the bomb off prematurely.

Warnings were broadcast to British ships at sea because of the possibility that similar bombs may have been smuggled aboard other vessels in an effort to cut a British foodline by widespread bombings.

Virginia Senator Declares Three Billion Should Be Raised if Treasury Is To Remain Solvent

Morgenthau Discloses That Persons Who Buy Defense Bonds Must Pay Taxes on Them

WASHINGTON, June 12. (AP) — Amid Senate suggestions that Congress double or triple the billion-dollar tax bill approved by the House, Secretary Morganthau disclosed today that persons who buy the proposed new federal defense bonds would have to pay taxes on them.

Morgenthau advised the Senate finance committee that he would utilize existing authority to apply federal taxes to income from these securities even if Congress failed to heed his recommendation that present exemptions be removed from all future issues of federal state and local bonds.

"That will make the bonds harder to sell, won't it?" asked Senator Connally (D-Tex). Morgenthau smiled the question away.

Besides raising $1,004,000,000 in new taxes, the House revenue bill would increase the federal debt limit from $45,000,000,000 to $49,000,000,000. A special $4,000,000,000 defense security issue would be sold and retired over a five-year period from proceeds from the new taxes.

Reduces Tax Exemptions

The legislation also would reduce income tax exemptions to create 2,000,000 new taxpayers; increase corporation taxes and surtaxes on individual incomes between $6,000 and $100,000 and impose a ten percent supertax on present income and excise taxes.

Suggestions that Congress remain in session to write a comprehensive tax revision measure came from several finance committeemen, and Senator Byrd (D-Va) remarked that the $1,004,000,000 which the

Royal Air Force Strikes In Italy and Germany

British Lose One Plane in Raids on Cologne, Turin and Genoa

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 13.—(Thursday)—Great Britain poured men and guns across the English channel to the aid of her hard-pressed French ally today, backing up far-ranging air raids pressed against the enemy from Equatorial Africa to Arctic Norway.

"Every gun that could shoot," every available soldier and tank headed for the Continental battlefield to fight the Germans, while Italy replied to British air forays with deadly attacks on Malta, Britain's island fortress in the Mediterranean.

The British, counting their successes from tons of bombs aimed at the Axis powers, also counted thirty of her civilians dead and thirty injured from the eighth Italian air raid on Malta. Seven soldiers also were wounded. The Italians returned to the Mediterranean island early this morning and made two more raids—the ninth and tenth—and ran into a blaze of anti-aircraft gunfire.

The Germans feinted at Britain with a series of flights over the Southern Coast during the night and early morning but no bombs were dropped and ground defenses drove the raiders off.

Egypt, ally of Britain, handed the Italian minister to Cairo his passport after severing diplomatic relations with Italy.

Control Stations Set Up To Expedite Passage of Neutral Ships

ROME, June 12 (AP) — Italy moved to cut the Mediterranean in half tonight with a wide new mine belt intended to box in completely the British fortified island of Malta — Italy's first announced objective of the war.

Her other activity against the Allies in this third day of her participation on the side of Germany was largely an unknown quantity, however.

(It is less than 100 miles from Sicily across the Mediterranean to French African Tunisia. Roughly half way lies the Italian island of Pantelleria. Apparently the mines are intended to keep Allied naval forces and sea-borne supplies from the western Mediterranean from reaching Allied land and sea forces now in the middle east.)

Non-enemy ships passing from one end of the Mediterranean to the other now must go through narrow straits of Messina, between Corsica and the toe of Italy proper.

It was stated that "measures have been taken to hurry their passage."

The new mined zone, as described in a government communique, boxes Malta — the fortified British island — completely.

Zone Is Extended

The mine zone extends on the Western side from the French Tunisian coast North to a point off the Sardinian coast, thence Southeast to the Sicilian coast.

On the other side, the mines were laid from the Sicilian coast to a point southeast of Malta, Britain's island fortress, thence to Anglo, southwest of Rasagedir.

Control stations were set up at Rasocolmo and Capo Delle Armi, on either side of Messina, to expedite passage of neutral ships through the straits.

The Allies brought the war to Italy earlier in the day with bombing raids on the great industrial cities of Milan and Turin and other points in the north.

German Troops Tighten Circle About Paris

French Capital Within Easy Range of Guns from Three Directions

BERLIN, June 13 (AP)—(Thursday)—Tens of thousands of German troops, who saw the Eiffel tower of Paris clearly just a little way ahead, drew tighter their circle of fire and steel about that French capital today.

The city—doomed in German eyes—was within easy range of German guns from three directions.

German artillery opened up on the long-quiet upper Rhine front—perhaps as the prelude to an effort to drive one last decisive wedge into France—while divisions of the Nazi center were smashing within 12½ miles of Paris along the Oise.

At the same time the German West wing claimed to have knocked out an important French force on the English channel, taking 20,000 prisoners.

The artillery action on the far East of the German line was cautiously discussed by an authorized spokesman only thusly:

"It may be that the front on the Upper Rhine is being brought into motion."

The exact location of the firing and the French replies was not disclosed, the spokesman declining to elaborate beyond saying that wide rivers had been proved in the Polish, Dutch and Belgian campaigns to be no obstacles to the Germans.

Capture Six Generals

The German wireless, however, declared that if the Upper Rhine became a major battlefront "then France, which already has to solve the problem of a two-front war, would be compelled to fight on a third front and employ there the manpower which already is becoming so scarce."

The front on the Upper Rhine extends from Karlsruhe along the river to the Swiss frontier.

The high command announced that six Allied generals — five French and one British—had given

Nazis Report They Have Advanced to Within Twelve Miles of Paris; Italian Diplomats Get Going-Away Papers from Egypt; Italy Increases Mine Fields around Sicily

By The Associated Press

With Nazi army units standing twenty miles from the center of besieged and partly-depopulated Paris, Britain rushed new aid today (Thursday) to her battered ally.

British troops, guns and tanks were streaming once more across the channel to relieve the defenders who were hammered backward even though they fought with all the fury Frenchmen can muster when fighting for their own soil.

Reinforcements speeding to France were thousands of British and Polish troops brought back from Narvik, Norway.

The war spread to other areas and apparently was on the verge of next engulfing Egypt which handed Italian diplomats their going-away papers after severing relations.

Under the provisions of a military alliance with Egypt, British bombers apparently were using Egyptian bases for raids on Italy's Eritrea on the Red Sea and Libya on the Mediterranean.

Spain, where anti-British demonstrators have shouted for Gibraltar, officially reiterated a policy of non-belligerency.

Thirty Killed in Malta

New air raid warnings shrilled in Malta this morning and it was disclosed that thirty civilians were killed and thirty injured and seven soldiers were wounded Tuesday night in the eighth Italian air raid on that British naval base in the Mediterranean.

Japanese Planes Wreak Havoc in Chinese Capital

CHUNGKING, June 12 (AP)—In a brief twenty-three-minute raid this afternoon 124 Japanese planes today destroyed two-thirds of old Chungking city, provisional capital of China, and caused casualties probably numbering 1,500.

American missionaries said the havoc was the worst single devastation caused by Japanese bombers since the start of hostilities nearly three years ago, and probably was one of the worst ravages of a city in history.

Between 800 and 900 demolition bombs were dropped.

Columns of black smoke poured from the stricken district after this second big raid in two days.

A raid yesterday by 117 planes caused at least 50 casualties. One bomb fell within thirty yards of the U. S. embassy, two fell in the garden of the British ambassador's home, and others partially demolished the Soviet embassy.

Offices of the German Transocean News agency were destroyed by fire, the building housing the Havas (French) and Tass (Soviet) News agencies was destroyed, and the Associated Press building was near collapse.

The U. S. House of Representatives passed by a vote of 401 to 1 an extraordinary defense bill of $1,706,053,908 to provide 3,000 planes, sixty-eight warships, 95,000 more men for the army, a vast array of naval air bases and other defense measures.

It raised the session's defense appropriations to $5,021,619,622.

In the bitter fighting for Paris, the French high command reported, a crushing mass of German troops pushed some of their number across the historic Marne river to the south side in the area of Chateau Thierry.

Others smashed against French defenders near Persan-Beaumont which is twenty miles straight north from the heart of the French capital.

The immediate drive on Paris has developed into three separate main thrusts, from the East and West, where the Germans are forty to fifty miles away, and from due North, where Nazis have made their greatest advance, at Persan-Beaumont.

On the East the drive was in the Chateau Thierry region where American Marines won glory in the last war. The West drive roared along both banks to the Seine river from Rouen to Vernon. There the Germans were seeking to reinforce their detachments which had plunged across the river.

The Germans flung more and more troops, tanks and yet more tanks against the bitterly fought French.

In the Senis regions the gardens of the Chantilly Chateau of American Ambassador William C. Bullitt became a battleground.

The German gains were being made at fearful cost.

The French said they learned from prisoners that counter-attacks by French tanks and planes, some returning to the fight five times during the day, had inflicted heavy losses.

Nazis Take 20,000 Prisoners

In Berlin, the Germans figured they had guaranteed victory in the Battle of France.

They said they had captured Reims and Rouen (which the French did not admit), crossed the Seine and the Marne on the two flanks on the French capital and blasted away the resistance of a French force near St. Valery, on the English channel, taking 20,000 prisoners and six generals.

In the center, said the Germans, they had made the Oise river valley their road to Paris and were 12½ miles from their goal. This is closer than the French concede.

The possibility that Germany might be pointed up another spear to thrust into France arose with

Charlie Chaplin Asks Million Damages against Two Magazines

NEY YORK, June 12. (AP)—Distribution of part of Friday's issue of Life magazine was halted by Federal court today on the complaint of Charlie Chaplin that the issue contained an unauthorized picture of him as the title character in his motion picture, "The Dictator."

Besides asking for an injunction, Chaplin sued for $1,000,000 damages against Time, Inc., and four officers of the Time and Life group, charging that the representation by the magazine would destroy the income-producing value of the film, which he said was not yet ready for exploitation.

In a statement later, Life said it obtained the Chaplin picture from "a person unknown to us" but that it "promptly notified the Chaplin Studios of the fact that it had received this picture and planned to publish it. Although Mr. Chaplin's attorney admitted in court that Life's letter had been received on Monday x x x it was not until this morning that Life was advised that a court action was to take place."

"Life has been put to great inconvenience and expense by this surprising action, which, however much it may attract public attention, to the film, can only be considered as unprecedented and regretable."

In granting Chaplin and the Charles Chaplin Film Corporation a temporary injunction, Federal Judge John C. Knox exempted 1,600,000 copies of Life already enroute to news dealers. In more than 1,000,000 copies yet to be printed, the full-page Chaplin pictures will be replaced with a news photo.

One Killed, Five Injured as Time Bomb Explodes on British Freighter

BUENOS AIRES, June 12. (AP)—A powerful time bomb apparently intended to sink the British Royal Mail Freighter Gascony at sea, blasted the center hold of the vessel yhile at dock tonight, killing an Argentine stevedore and injuring five others.

The first explosion was followed by a second in another hold after the ship already was in such condition that she probably will have to be taken into dry dock.

Officials said the explosion was the result of the first major sabotage in Buenos Aires harbor since the start of the European war.

First reports said four British sailors were injured. It developed, however, that the injured were men engaged in loading meat.

The explosion shattered a fuel tank and opened the side of the 4,716-ton ship.

Fearing that time bombs might have been placed on other British ships in port, Argentine authorities suspended loadings pending a thorough search of the vessels and their cargoes.

One port official said cargo dropping into the hole apparently set the bomb off prematurely.

Warnings were broadcast to British ships at sea because of the possibility that similar bombs may have been smuggled aboard other vessels in an effort to cut a British foodline by widespread bombings.

Transfer of Two State Agencies Is Approved

Board of Public Works, However, Urges That Shift Be Postponed

BALTIMORE, June 12 (AP)—The Board of Public Works approved today the legality of the University of Maryland's plan to transfer the forestry and geological survey departments to College Park, but "urgently" recommended that the transfer be postponed.

Effect of the board's decision in the controversial case was to leave the final fate of the two agencies, now located in Baltimore, in the hands of the university's board of regents.

In a statement issued after a three-hour session, Governor O'Conor, State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes and State Treasurer Hooper Miles agreed unanimously that:

"The refusal of this board to grant its approval to the change * * * would be in direct conflict with the explicit provisions of the law and with the exercise of the rights and responsibilities imposed by the legislature upon the board of regents."

The statement then added these "observations and recommendations" which the board deemed "entirely appropriate":

"The conservation of the natural resources of the state and the related questions in connection therewith constitute one of the most important matters before the citizens of the stae. The many aspects of an adequate conservation program have received the attention of the present state administration, and have received and are still receiving continuous thought and study. The subject has been widely discussed, and in the opinion of this board such discussion and consideration should be encouraged to the end that the most beneficial policy may be adopted.

"The voters of the state—in election to be held next November—pursuant to a referendum which has been filed, will vote upon the provisions of Chapter 353 of the Acts of 1939, entitled Conservation of Natural Resources. Within two months following the submission of this referendum to the voters, the General Assembly of Maryland will meet in January, 1941.

"The Board of Public Works is of the opinion that, in order to safeguard every possible interest of the state, and to afford opportunity for further and fuller discussion and consideration of the matter, the board of regents of the university is amply justified in postponing the physical transfer of the offices and personnel of the forestry department and the department of geological survey until after the next session of the General Assembly.

"The Board of Public Works, therefore, urgently recommends that the board of regents postpone the actual transfer until the adjournment of the next regular session of the General Assembly and further expresses its willingness to consult with the board of regents on this entire matter, if desired, and to amplify its views and to submit all data and information in its possession bearing upon the several questions presented."

At a public hearing before the board several weeks ago, Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University, said the transfer was deemed necessary because of certain administrative failings in the forestry department and because the regents felt forestry and geological survey work should be closely coordinated with research work and federal activities under way at College Park.

and bombed Cologne and military objectives at other Western German towns. Home defense planes shot down a German bomber off the English coast. Winging to the North, bombers claimed direct hits on German warships in th Norwegian port of Tjondheim.

2—Military objectives at the Italian cities of Turin and Genoa were bombed. One British plane was reported missing.

3—Warplanes based in British Kenya and Egypt struck repeatedly at Italian troops, ships and air fields in Eritrea on the Red sea, Libya on the Mediterranean, and the Italian-conquered Kingdom of Abyssinia (Ethiopia). Wave after wave of British Blenheim bombers were reported to have swept the skies over the Italian naval base at Trbruk harbor, on the Libyan coast, setting a warship afire and hitting two submarines. Airdromes were bombed in Eritrea and British South African planes dumped bombs onto Italian hangars in Abyssinia.

4—Italy's losses of the merchant marine that plies her vital trade routes rose to more than 70,000 tons as the Indian government seized the 9,515-ton Calabria at Calcutta and the crew of the 9,780-ton Romolo set her afire in mid-Pacific when sighted by an armed Australian merchant ship.

Egypt, ancient guardian of the Suez canal, was reported by Reuters (British news agency) to have broken off relations with Italy and the canal was closed to Italian ships.

Fully equipped for battle, Canada's first overseas division stood ready in England for the word to strike. In the Near East-Palestine and Syria and Egypt—Britain's part of an Allied army of black, brown and white soldiers of the empire was poised. That army several months ago was estimated at 200,000, including 20,000 to 30,000 Australians and New Zealanders. Whether it has been increased, or how much, has not been disclosed.

Italian bombing of the British Mediterranean base at Malta yesterday was said to have inflicted little damage.

German Cruisers Hit

The British said their bombers scored direct hits on two German cruisers and a troop transport at Trondheim, Norway. "Great successes" were claimed for the raids on desert Airdromes of Libya, where aircraft and gasoline supplies were said to have been destroyed, and in Eritrea where direct hits were reported on Italian air force hangars. In Ethiopia the South African fliers claimed hits on military transports, war equipment and troops.

There was no let-up in the aerial pounding of German troop and supply bases behind the front in France.

British diplomacy reaped the first real harvest of its painstaking attempt to be nice to the Japanese. In Tokio an agreement was reached which will "thaw" some of the $12,000,000 in silver which the British and French concessions in Tientsin have "frozen" in the name of the Central Chinese government. Presumably this also will, in due course, unlock the Allied Tientsin concessions from the eleven-month-old, humilitating, Japanese blockade.

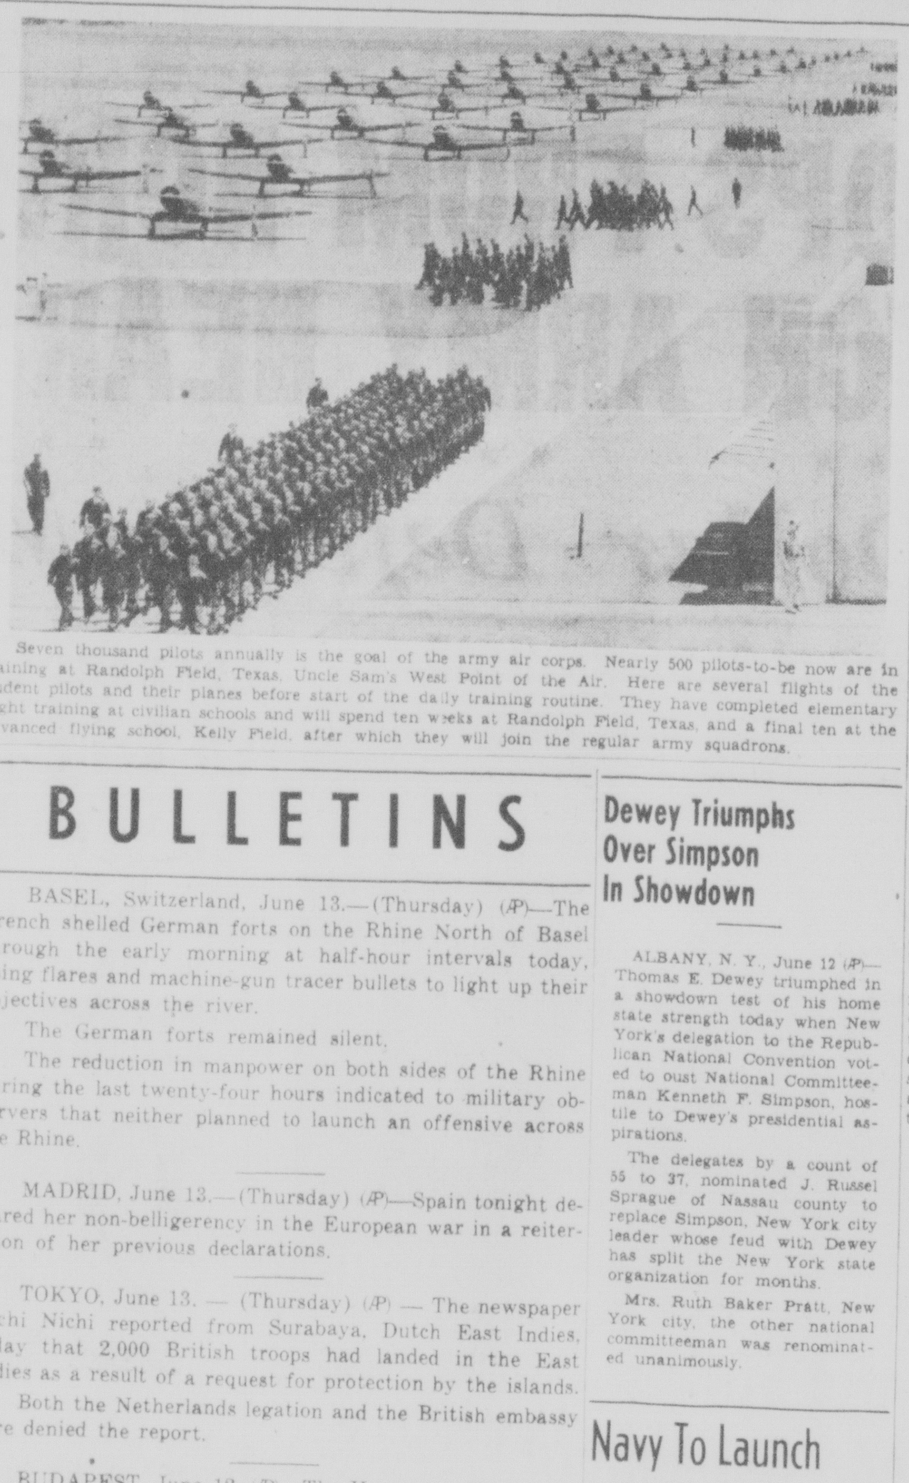

In another vital section of the Orient British diuplomacy made a stride. Londan announced that Thaitland (Siam) had signed separate treaties of friendship with Britain, France and Japan. This was regarded as an important safeguard for Britain's Singapore naval base.

In Hongkong, the British command dipped into new reserves of manpower for Britain's armies. Enlistment was thrown open to all British subjects of European descent from the ages of twenty-one to thirty-eight.

England dug in even deeper at home. Splinter-proof air raid shelters for 20,000,000 Britons were completed.

A twenty-mile wide strip along the entire Southern coast of England was barred to Aliens. A similar restricted area on the East coast was extended North to within 100 miles of the Scottish border.

AT U. S. WEST POINT OF THE AIR

Seven thousand pilots annually is the goal of the army air corps. Nearly 500 pilots-to-be now are in training at Randolph Field, Texas, Uncle Sam's West Point of the Air. Here are several flights of the student pilots and their planes before start of the daily training routine. They have completed elementary flight training at civilian schools and will spend ten weeks at Randolph Field, Texas, and a final ten at the advanced flying school, Kelly Field, after which they will join the regular army squadrons.

BULLETINS

BASEL, Switzerland, June 13.—(Thursday) (AP)—The French shelled German forts on the Rhine North of Basel through the early morning at half-hour intervals today, using flares and machine-gun tracer bullets to light up their objectives across the river.

The German forts remained silent.

The reduction in manpower on both sides of the Rhine during the last twenty-four hours indicated to military observers that neither planned to launch an offensive across the Rhine.

MADRID, June 13.—(Thursday) (AP)—Spain tonight declared her non-belligerency in the European war in a reiteration of her previous declarations.

TOKYO, June 13. — (Thursday) (AP) — The newspaper Nichi Nichi reported from Surabaya, Dutch East Indies, today that 2,000 British troops had landed in the East Indies as a result of a request for protection by the islands.

Both the Netherlands legation and the British embassy here denied the report.

BUDAPEST, June 12. (AP)—The Hungarian Nazi newspaper Magyarsag, which had declared that Americans would re-elect President Roosevelt to a third term because "they have the minds of children," was suspendd today for one week by government action.

This action followed representations made to the foreign office by the United States legation.

split with the Democratic party, if it becomes a "war party." Wheeler said he did not want to break with the administration or the party but that he would unhesitatingly do so "if it becomes necessary."

He said that Great Britain had interpreted the American policy of material assistance to the Allies as meaning eventual American involvement in the war, and added:

Says Senate Opposes War

"We ought to serve notice that a great majority of the Senate is not going to vote for war, and we're not going to get into it. We ought not to fool Great Britain and France into thinking we're going to send American boys across the water again to be shot up."

Referring to a full page advertisement "Stop Hitler Now," which appeared in many papers yesterday, Wheeler said "everybody knows somebody is paying for it," and "we ought to know where the money is coming from."

The day also brought these developments related to the war and the defense situation:

(1) Sidney Hillman, a member of the National Defense Commission, in charge of employment and personnel, had his first conference with President Roosevelt.

(2) Chairman Walsh (D.-Mass.) and Vinson (D.-Ga.) of the Senate and House naval committees, conferred with President Rosevelt on the question of eliminating conflicts between overtime regulations for civilian workers in government arsenals and navy shipyards, and methods of putting both types of plant on a 24-hour, three-shift basis.

(3) The War Department announced that the army's ground forces in Alaska would be extensively increased to provide protection for air bases being established there.

(4) Reps. Anderson (R.-Cal.) and Costello (D.-Cal.) introduced identical bills proposing the creation of an organized "home defense reserve" to guard strategic areas in time of emergency.

Dewey Triumphs Over Simpson In Showdown

ALBANY, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey triumphed in a showdown test of his home state strength today when New York's delegation to the Republican National Convention voted to oust National Committeeman Kenneth F. Simpson, hostile to Dewey's presidential aspirations.

The delegates by a count of 55 to 37, nominated J. Russel Sprague of Nassau county to replace Simpson, New York city leader whose feud with Dewey has split the New York state organization for months.

Mrs. Ruth Baker Pratt, New York city, the other national committeeman was renominated unanimously.

Navy To Launch Battleship North Carolina Today

NEW YORK, June 12. (AP)—Wartime restrictions were outlined for the launching tomorrow of the $70,000,000 battleship North Carolina, the second superdreadnaught to hit the water this month under the Navy's speeded-up expansion program.

Building since October, 1937, the new vessel was the first battleship laid down since the 1921 Washington naval conference. She and her sister, the Washington, which was launched June 1 at Philadelphia, are the first of six ships of the 35,000-ton class authorized in 1936 and 1938 and will be, temporarily, the mightiest ships of the fleet.

In two years, they will be surpassed by four 45,000-ton vessels, larger than any battleships in the world. Two of these now are under construction and the navy announced today that work had been ordered started on two more.

Some 35,000 persons were expected at the Brooklyn navy yard to watch Isabel Young Hoey, daughter of North Carolina's governor, christen the fourth U. S. ship bearing the name of the Southern state.

Every visitor must be a United States citizen. An undisclosed number of marines, police, navy yard guards and federal agents will mingle with the crowd.

News photographers may take pictures only from specified positions. Coast guard vessels will patrol the waters into which the ship will glide.

bill is expected to yield was "chicken feed."

"I think we ought to raise $2,000,000,000 or $3,000,000,000," Byrd said, "if the treasury is to remain solvent."

Byrd asserted that the defense program, standing at $5,000,000,000 for this would reach $20,000,000,000 eventually. Morgenthau said that if outlays should reach the latter figure "we will have to have taxes far beyond anything contemplated in this bill."

Byrd urged that all non-defense expenditures of the government be reduced by ten percent, and Morgenthau said he would favor reducing some non-defense outlays provided they did not curtail the relief program or make heavy cuts in the salaries of federal workers.

Approved by House

The House bill was approved yesterday 396 to six after only one day's debate. Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) of the finance committee was anxious to obtain equally expeditious Senate action. He obtained a committee agreement to vote on the measure Saturday in order that Senate debate might start Monday. All signs pointed to a large Senate majority for defense taxation.

Court Rules State Income Tax Law Is Constitutional

One Minor Section of Act To Raise $8,000,000 Is Declared Invalid

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 12. (AP)—The Maryland Court of Appeals unanimously upheld the constitutionality of the state income tax law today.

Although one minor section of the 1939 law was ruled invalid, the Appellate court sustained the bulk of the act passed by the last legislature to raise approximately $8,000,000 and balance the budget.

The invalidated section—223C—provides that no taxes under the provisions of a ground rent lease shall be collected from the lessee by the lessor.

Judge Walter T. Mitchell wrote the opinion holding that this section violated Article 1, Section 10 of the Federal constitution because it impairs the obligation of contract between lessee and lessor.

Regardless of the unconstitutional section, the levy on ground rents must be paid.

The decision removed all barriers to the collection of the tax, which has evoked protests from taxpayers. Governor O'Conor has announced he would ask the legislature to amend the levy to reduce the burden on persons in the lower income brackets.

George V. Parkhurst and J. Morfit Mullen, for Mr. and Mrs. Ezra L. Oursler and John K. Culver, Jr., taxpayers, had contended the income law violated both federal and state constitutions and that it was arbitrary and contained inequalities.

Judge Mitchell held:

". . . It is our conclusion that the enactment of Chapter 277 was a valid and constitutional exercise of legislative authority . . ."

"Abstract comparisons in the application of the many and varied provisions of the act are urged by the appellants (the Oursiers and Culver) as establishing inequities in its practical effect.

"In some cases, it is submitted that sources of income accruing from property of one classification are subjected to a greater tax burden than are sources of income derived from property pertaining to another and separate classification.

"And it is argued that for that reason the effect of the act is to impose an arbitrary and discriminatory tax upon some taxpayers as compared with the tax burden which it places upon others.

"This situation, however, arises not as between taxpayers whose sources of income or situations are similar in that they accrue from property of like classification under the act; but arises in cases where the sources of income accrue from property of separate and distinct classifications under the act. . . ."

Judge Mitchell also declared the act did not vest any illegal power in the comptroller "for the purpose of administering the act."

The Appellate court adjourned for the summer after handing down six other opinions. The court is not expected to reconvene until October.

up along with their 20,000 men in the region of St. Valery-Encaux, which is on the English channel less than thirty miles to the Southwest of Dieppe, and that the booty in war materials taken by the Germans was so enormous as to be "incalculable".

It was intimated that the final figures on the number of troops captured might be still larger.

Meanwhile, the Germans claimed to have destroyed 200 French tanks with anti-aircraft guns and reported the destruction of fifty-nine Allied planes.

All this, which Germans described as simply guaranteeing their final victory in the battle for France, was preceded by announcement of the capture of Reims and Rouen and the crossing of the Seine and Marne rivers on the two flanks of Paris.

These details reflected an increased willingness of the high command to speak of specific advances.

Germans Occupy Compiegne

Occupied, too, was Compiegne—where German generals in the first World war signed the Armistice with Marshal Foch. From Compiegne the invaders reported finding a French plaque which said:

"The criminal arrogance of the German Reich died here."

German sources declared it would be a "crime" for the French to attempt to defend Paris. No repetition of the "miracle of the Marne" of 1914 could save the city, they said.

The jubilant claims for a victory over France were based on these circumstances ,as the newspaper Dienst Aus Deutschland itemized them:

1. The German right flank, which in 1914 was uncovered is now a powerful destructive force making full steam down the French coast, while the Marne is being crossed on the other side of Paris.

2. Germany now has but one front, while before she had the Russians at her back.

3. France entered this new decisive battle weakened by the loss of much of her armies in Flanders.

4. France stands alone now, while in 1914 she had the British with her.

5. Last time, the French could withdraw troops from the Italian frontier, but now she must defend that frontier.

The isolation of France from England was regarded as almost complete. Informed sources said bombing of the channel harbors had been extremely effective and that in one day alone ten Allied transports were sunk.

BRITISH DIG IN FOR NEAR EAST WAR

British troops are shown digging a long trench in the Egyptian desert as one of the defense measures undertaken in the land of the pyramids. Egypt's own army is small, but well equipped. However, they are augmented by a large Allied army entrenched in the Near East.

French Admit

ever, were acknowledged to have struck off the main body northwest toward Caudebec, which is only about thirty miles from the vital French port of Havre.

Between the Oise and Ourcq rivers Nazi advance units attacked violently around Crepy-En-Valois and Betz—a town some thirty miles northeast of Paris.

The French declared their "numerous prisoners" reported enormous losses among the Germans northeast of Reims.

French aviation was declared to have returned five times to the battle area during the day.

The region between the Aisne and Meuse rivers was reported quiet.

The Germans had taken Rouen, the port of Paris on the Seine, and by their own claims had cut off and captured some 20,000 French troops at St. Valery, twenty miles down the channel coast from Dieppe. They had captured Senlis, historic World war town, only twenty-six miles north of Paris.

From the lower Seine to the Argonne forest the battle raged. As the guns roared along the whole irregular front, word came up from the south that the Italians, with sixty or seventy divisions (perhaps 900,000 or 1,000,000 men) mobilized, had blown up a bridge at Vinti Mille on the French border in the Alps.

As the German army advanced, trying to complete a vast circling movement around Paris, the military governor ordered all employes of the public services in the Seine-Et-Oise and Seine-Et-Marne departments to remain at their posts. These are areas immediately west and east of Paris.

The prefecture of the Seine department, which includes Paris, requisitioned all bakeries, pharmacies and groceries.

When the armies of Von Kluck and Von Bulow reached the Marne in the Indian summer of 1914, the French turned them back with a swift flanking attack.

Now, in the Vic-Sur-Aisne, about midway between Soissons and Compiegne, the Germans crossed to the South bank of the river and from a high plateau opened another offensive to bring them closer to Senlis, already in their hands, and to the road to Paris down the Oise valley.

French Order Withdrawal

South of the Marne, along the line between Meaux and Chateau-Thierry, a bloody battlefield in the World war known to thousands of American troops, the French ordered a withdrawal. Meaux is only twenty-six miles East of Paris.

But the war ministry declared that the withdrawals, both here in the East and to the Northeast, were counter-balanced in the West along the winding Seine valley.

But in spite of the fierce attacks, the gains were small, a military spokesman said in the first conference at Tours, French provisional capital. He emphasized that no decisive victory had yet been gained.

With Reims holding as in 1914-18, the war ministry said the German advance between the besieged city and Compiegne had failed to pierce the general defense system. General Maxime Weygand's plan of defense apparently was inflicting tremendous losses on the Germans in men and tanks.

Into the fight, the war ministry said, the Germans had thrown even training tanks brought hastily up from Germany.

Chateau Thierry, where the French have dug in to stem the German rush, marks the farthest point reached by the Germans in the big spring offensive of 1918. The second and third divisions of the American Expeditionary Force finally turned them back. A large stone bridge spans the Marne at that point.

Germans Claim

the report that German artillery was active on the upper Rhine front, a quiet area up to now.

A German spokesman cautiously commented that a new front might be in the process of "being brought into motion."

Italians Increase Mines

While the fighting in France blazed to a higher pitch, Italy, the newest belligerent, had her first taste of war and moved to cut her "Mare Nostrum," the Mediterranean, in half by laying a broad belt of mines around Sicily.

The first Allied stroke against Italy herself came from the air, in which Italy has been called second only to Germany in power.

Allied planes ranged over northern Italy, attacking such important industrial cities as Turin and Milan. Other "enemy action" against Italy came on the Liguarian coast, where Genoa is located, but whether it was naval or aerial was not specified.

It became apparent on the second day of Italy's belligerency that her high command would be sparing of war reports. The first communique of the Italian high command told nothing more than Tuesday's bombing of Malta and an engagement with British planes over Libya.

Italy had between 900,000 and 1,050,000 men massed on the French maritime Alps frontier.

Thus far their action has been the blowing up of a bridge on the frontier.

Britain flung her air force headlong into the two fights she has on her hands.

R. A. F. Invades Italy

On the French front Royal Air Force bombers loosed destruction on the driving German armies. Others raided into Germany.

To harass Italy, Britain's warplanes dropped bombs on industrial cities of northern Italy and lashed out in Africa against troops, ships and airdromes.

In her air warfare Britain also shot down a German bomber off her own coast and bombed German warships lying in the harbor at Trondheim, Norway.

British possessions throughout the world marshalled men and materials to fight for the motherland.

Turkey, non-belligerent ally of Britain and France, sat tight. Her cabinet decided that for the present Turkey would stay out of the war. Meantime, she kept up her traditional watch on the Dardanelles and awaited what might come out of Italy's belligerency.

Swiss authorities said bombs which killed four persons around Lake Leman were of British origin. It was not known if the bombers, if they were British, had mistaken the lake for one of those in northern Italy.

Willkie Predicts Seventy Votes on First Ballot

Says Name Will Be Placed in Nomination by Rep. Halleck, of Indiana

By W. B. RAGSDALE

WASHINGTON, June 12 Wendell Willkie, of New York, estimated today that his first ... strength for the presidential ... nation in the Republican convention would be about seventy ... rising on later ballots.

"Start small and grow," the ... ties executive told a press conference. "I think whoever is ... nated will get it by the sixth ... lot."

He had just announced that ... Halleck, of Indiana, Willkie's ... tive state, would place his name ... nomination.

Willkie said his delegate strength ... was scattered widely among ... states and indicated that its ... growth would start after favorite son pledges were disposed of.

"I have talked with delegates ... twenty-seven states," he said. "They are an unusually intelligent and serious-minded group. It will be no controlled convention."

Replying to questions about his political history, Willkie said he had never been a member of the Liberty League nor had he contributed to it.

"I did contribute to the Democratic party," he said. "That was in 1932. I voted for Alf. M. Landon in 1936.

"I did not leave the Democratic party. It left me. I was brought up in a party that revered Thomas Jefferson, who opposed strongly centralized government. I came up in a party that had Andrew Jackson as its patron saint. He paid the national debt. That is not the New Deal party."

Shirt-sleeved and with rumpled hair, he answered questions promptly and directly.

"This candidacy appealed to my sense of humor at first," he said. "Then it struck me that I apparently had been placed at the head of a trend. I had been dramatized as a business man and a man of fairly liberal views. The people are tired of business baiting and want to see national unity."

coast, on which Genoa is located.

In its second day of belligerency the Italian high command still kept secret its operations against Britain and France.

The first war communique reported belatedly only yesterday air bombardment of Malta and fight with British planes who bombed Libya.

Early today anti-aircraft guns sounded and warning sirens shrieked for an hour at Turin, Milan and other cities in the north.

Details were withheld. Newspapers reported merely that anti-aircraft guns were in action and that the firing was particularly heavy around Milan.

It was known that Italy had massed a great army on the French frontier, apparently for a drive through the maritime Alps where the French are strongly entrenched.

(At Tours, new seat of the French government, a military commentator declared the only question of sixty to seventy Italian divisions, completely mobilized, on the frontier, had been to blow up a bridge at Vinti Mille on the French border in the Alps.)

The report of action on the Ligurian coast, which lies between Leghorn and the French-Italian frontier, south of Turin and Milan, did not explain whether it was naval or aerial and details were withheld pending official announcement.

Transfer of Two State Agencies Is Approved

Board of Public Works, However, Urges That Shift Be Postponed

BALTIMORE, June 12 (AP)—The Board of Public Works approved today the legality of the University of Maryland's plan to transfer the forestry and geological survey departments to College Park, but "urgently" recommended that the transfer be postponed.

Effect of the board's decision in the controversial case was to leave the final fate of the two agencies, now located in Baltimore, in the hands of the university's board of regents.

In a statement issued after a three-hour session, Governor O'Conor, State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes and State Treasurer Hooper Miles agreed unanimously that:

"The refusal of this board to grant its approval to the change * * * would be in direct conflict with the explicit provisions of the law and with the exercise of the rights and responsibilities imposed by the legislature upon the board of regents."

The statement then added these "observations and recommendations" which the board deemed "entirely appropriate":

"The conservation of the natural resources of the state and the related questions in connection therewith constitute one of the most important matters before the citizens of the stae. The many aspects of an adequate conservation program have received the attention of the present state administration, and have received and are still receiving continuous thought and study. The subject has been widely discussed, and in the opinion of this board such discussion and consideration should be encouraged to the end that the most beneficial policy may be adopted.

"The voters of the state—in election to be held next November—pursuant to a referendum which has been filed, will vote upon the provisions of Chapter 353 of the Acts of 1939, entitled Conservation of Natural Resources. Within two months following the submission of this referendum to the voters, the General Assembly of Maryland will meet in January, 1941.

"The Board of Public Works is of the opinion that, in order to safeguard every possible interest of the state, and to afford opportunity for further and fuller discussion and consideration of the matter, the board of regents of the university is amply justified in postponing the physical transfer of the offices and personnel of the forestry department and the department of geological survey until after the next session of the General Assembly.

"The Board of Public Works, therefore, urgently recommends that the board of regents postpone the actual transfer until the adjournment of the next regular session of the General Assembly and further expresses its willingness to consult with the board of regents on this entire matter, if desired, and to amplify its views and to submit all data and information in its possession bearing upon the several questions presented."

At a public hearing before the board several weeks ago, Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University, said the transfer was deemed necessary because of certain administrative failings in the forestry department and because the regents felt forestry and geological survey work should be closely coordinated with research work and federal activities under way at College Park.

and bombed Cologne and military objectives at other Western German towns. Home defense planes shot down a German bomber off the English coast. Winging to the North, bombers claimed direct hits on German warships in th Norwegian port of Tjondheim.

2—Military objectives at the Italian cities of Turin and Genoa were bombed. One British plane was reported missing.

3—Warplanes based in British Kenya and Egypt struck repeatedly at Italian troops, ships and air fields in Eritrea on the Red sea, Libya on the Mediterranean, and the Italian-conquered Kingdom of Abyssinia (Ethiopia). Wave after wave of British Blenheim bombers were reported to have swept the skies over the Italian naval base at Trbruk harbor, on the Libyan coast, setting a warship afire and hitting two submarines. Airdromes were bombed in Eritrea and British South African planes dumped bombs onto Italian hangars in Abyssinia.

4—Italy's losses of the merchant marine that plies her vital trade routes rose to more than 70,000 tons as the Indian government seized the 9,515-ton Calabria at Calcutta and the crew of the 9,780-ton Romolo set her afire in mid-Pacific when sighted by an armed Australian merchant ship.

Egypt, ancient guardian of the Suez canal, was reported by Reuters (British news agency) to have broken off relations with Italy and the canal was closed to Italian ships.

Fully equipped for battle, Canada's first overseas division stood ready in England for the word to strike. In the Near East-Palestine and Syria and Egypt—Britain's part of an Allied army of black, brown and white soldiers of the empire was poised. That army several months ago was estimated at 200,000, including 20,000 to 30,000 Australians and New Zealanders. Whether it has been increased, or how much, has not been disclosed.

Italian bombing of the British Mediterranean base at Malta yesterday was said to have inflicted little damage.

German Cruisers Hit

The British said their bombers scored direct hits on two German cruisers and a troop transport at Trondheim, Norway. "Great successes" were claimed for the raids on desert Airdromes of Libya, where aircraft and gasoline supplies were said to have been destroyed, and in Eritrea where direct hits were reported on Italian air force hangars. In Ethiopia the South African fliers claimed hits on military transports, war equipment and troops.

There was no let-up in the aerial pounding of German troop and supply bases behind the front in France.

British diplomacy reaped the first real harvest of its painstaking attempt to be nice to the Japanese. In Tokio an agreement was reached which will "thaw" some of the $12,-000,000 in silver which the British and French concessions in Tientsin have "frozen" in the name of the Central Chinese government. Presumably this also will, in due course, unlock the Allied Tientsin concessions from the eleven-month-old, humilitating, Japanese blockade.

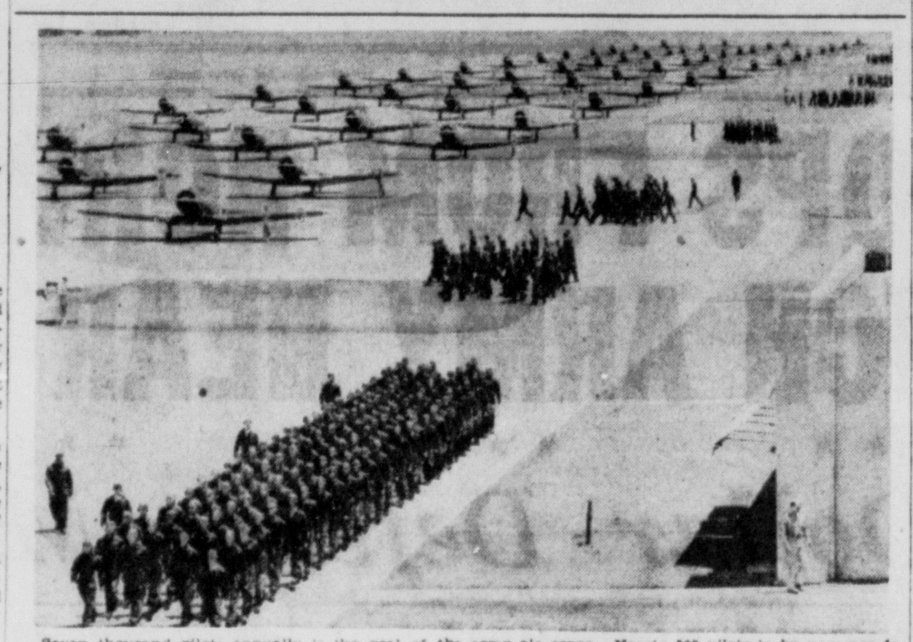

In another vital section of the Orient British diuplomacy made a stride. Londan announced that Thailand (Siam) had signed separate treaties of friendship with Britain, France and Japan. This was regarded as an important safeguard for Britain's Singapore naval base.

In Hongkong, the British command dipped into new reserves of manpower for Britain's armies. Enlistment was thrown open to all British subjects of European descent from the ages of twenty-one to thirty-eight.

England dug in even deeper at home. Splinter-proof air raid shelters for 20,000,000 Britons were completed.

A twenty-mile wide strip along the entire Southern coast of England was barred to Aliens. A similar restricted area on the East coast was extended North to within 100 miles of the Scottish border.

AT U. S. WEST POINT OF THE AIR

Seven thousand pilots annually is the goal of the army air corps. Nearly 500 pilots-to-be now are in training at Randolph Field, Texas, Uncle Sam's West Point of the Air. Here are several flights of the student pilots and their planes before start of the daily training routine. They have completed elementary flight training at civilian schools and will spend ten weeks at Randolph Field, Texas, and a final ten at the advanced flying school, Kelly Field, after which they will join the regular army squadrons.

BULLETINS

BASEL, Switzerland, June 13.—(Thursday) (AP)—The French shelled German forts on the Rhine North of Basel through the early morning at half-hour intervals today, using flares and machine-gun tracer bullets to light up their objectives across the river.

The German forts remained silent.

The reduction in manpower on both sides of the Rhine during the last twenty-four hours indicated to military observers that neither planned to launch an offensive across the Rhine.

MADRID, June 13.—(Thursday) (AP)—Spain tonight declared her non-belligerency in the European war in a reiteration of her previous declarations.

TOKYO, June 13. — (Thursday) (AP) — The newspaper Nichi Nichi reported from Surabaya, Dutch East Indies, today that 2,000 British troops had landed in the East Indies as a result of a request for protection by the islands.

Both the Netherlands legation and the British embassy here denied the report.

BUDAPEST, June 12. (AP)—The Hungarian Nazi newspaper Magyarsag, which had declared that Americans would re-elect President Roosevelt to a third term because "they have the minds of children," was suspendd today for one week by government action.

This action followed representations made to the foreign office by the United States legation.

split with the Democratic party, if it becomes a "war party," Wheeler said he did not want to break with the administration or the party but that he would unhesitatingly do so "if it becomes necessary."

He said that Great Britain had interpreted the American policy of material assistance to the Allies as meaning eventual American involvement in the war, and added:

Says Senate Opposes War

"We ought to serve notice that a great majority of the Senate is not going to vote for war, and we're not going to get into it. We ought not to fool Great Britain and France into thinking we're going to send American boys across the water again to be shot up."

Referring to a full page advertisement "Stop Hitler Now," which appeared in many papers yesterday, Wheeler said "everybody knows somebody is paying for it," and "we ought to know where the money is coming from."

The day also brought these developments related to the war and the defense situation:

(1) Sidney Hillman, a member of the National Defense Commission, in charge of employment and personnel, had his first conference with President Roosevelt.

(2) Chairman Walsh (D.-Mass.) and Vinson (D.-Ga.) of the Senate and House naval committees, conferred with President Rosevelt on the question of eliminating conflicts between overtime regulations for civilian workers in government arsenals and navy shipyards, and methods of putting both types of plant on a 24-hour, three-shift basis.

(3) The War Department announced that the army's ground forces in Alaska would be extensively increased to provide protection for air bases being established there.

(4) Reps. Anderson (R.-Cal.) and Costello (D.-Cal.) introduced identical bills proposing the creation of an organized "home defense reserve" to guard strategic areas in time of emergency.

Dewey Triumphs Over Simpson In Showdown

ALBANY, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey triumphed in a showdown test of his home state strength today when New York's delegation to the Republican National Convention voted to oust National Committeeman Kenneth F. Simpson, hostile to Dewey's presidential aspirations.

The delegates by a count of 55 to 37, nominated J. Russel Sprague of Nassau county to replace Simpson, New York city leader whose feud with Dewey has split the New York state organization for months.

Mrs. Ruth Baker Pratt, New York city, the other national committeeman was renominated unanimously.

Navy To Launch Battleship North Carolina Today

NEW YORK, June 12. (AP)—Wartime restrictions were outlined for the launching tomorrow of the $70,-000,000 battleship North Carolina, the second superdreadnaught to hit the water this month under the Navy's speeded-up expansion program.

Building since October, 1937, the new vessel was the first battleship laid down since the 1921 Washington naval conference. She and her sister, the Washington, which was launched June 1 at Philadelphia, are the first of six ships of the 35,-000-ton class authorized in 1936 and 1938 and will be, temporarily, the mightiest ships of the fleet.

In two years, they will be surpassed by four 45,000-ton vessels, larger than any battleships in the world. Two of these now are under construction and the navy announced today that work had been ordered started on two more.

Some 35,000 persons were expected at the Brooklyn navy yard to watch Isabel Young Hoey, daughter of North Carolina's governor, christen the fourth U. S. ship bearing the name of the Southern state.

Every visitor must be a United States citizen. An undisclosed number of marines, police, navy yard guards and federal agents will mingle with the crowd.

News photographers may take pictures only from specified positions. Coast guard vessels will patrol the waters into which the ship will glide.

bill is expected to yield was "chicken feed."

"I think we ought to raise $2,-000,000,000 or $3,000,000,000," Byrd said, "if the treasury is to remain solvent."

Byrd asserted that the defense program, standing at $5,000,000,000 for this would reach $20,000,000,-000 eventually. Morgenthau said that if outlays should reach the latter figure "we will have to have taxes far beyond anything contemplated in this bill."

Byrd urged that all non-defense expenditures of the government be reduced by ten percent, and Morgenthau said he would favor reducing some non-defense outlays provided they did not curtail the relief program or make heavy cuts in the salaries of federal workers.

Approved by House

The House bill was approved yesterday 396 to six after only one day's debate. Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) of the finance committee was anxious to obtain equally expeditious Senate action. He obtained a committee agreement to vote on the measure Saturday in order that Senate debate might start Monday. All signs pointed to a large Senate majority for defense taxation.

Court Rules State Income Tax Law Is Constitutional

One Minor Section of Act To Raise $8,000,000 Is Declared Invalid

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 12. (AP)—The Maryland Court of Appeals unanimously upheld the constitutionality of the state income tax law today.

Although one minor section of the 1939 law was ruled invalid, the Appellate court sustained the bulk of the act passed by the last legislature to raise approximately $8,-000,000 and balance the budget.

The invalidated section—223C—provides that no taxes under the provisions of a ground rent lease shall be collected from the lessee by the lessor.

Judge Walter T. Mitchell wrote the opinion holding that this section violated Article 1, Section 10 of the Federal constitution because it impairs the obligation of contract between lessee and lessor.

Regardless of the unconstitutional section, the levy on ground rents must be paid.

The decision removed all barriers to the collection of the tax, which has evoked protests from taxpayers. Governor O'Conor has announced he would ask the legislature to amend the levy to reduce the burden on persons in the lower income brackets.

George V. Parkhurst and J. Morfit Mullen, for Mr. and Mrs. Ezra L. Oursler and John K. Culver, Jr., taxpayers, had contended the income law violated both federal and state constitutions and that it was arbitrary and contained inequalities.

Judge Mitchell held:

". . . It is our conclusion that the enactment of Chapter 277 was a valid and constitutional exercise of legislative authority . . ."

"Abstract comparisons in the application of the many and varied provisions of the act are urged by the appellants (the Oursler and Culver) as establishing inequities in its practical effect.

"In some cases, it is submitted that sources of income accruing from property of one classification are subjected to a greater tax burden than are sources of income derived from property pertaining to another and separate classification.

"And it is argued that for that reason the effect of the act is to impose an arbitrary and discriminatory tax upon some taxpayers as compared with the tax burden which it places upon others.

"This situation, however, arises not as between taxpayers whose sources of income or situations are similar in that they accrue from property of like classification under the act; but arises in cases where the sources of income accrue from property of separate and distinct classifications under the act. . . ."

Judge Mitchell also declared the act did not vest any illegal power in the comptroller "for the purpose of administering the act."

The Appellate court adjourned for the summer after handing down six other opinions. The court is not expected to reconvene until October.

up along with their 20,000 men in the region of St. Valery-Encaux, which is on the English channel less than thirty miles to the Southwest of Dieppe, and that the booty in war materials taken by the Germans was so enormous as to be "incalculable".

It was intimated that the final figures on the number of troops captured might be still larger.

Meanwhile, the Germans claimed to have destroyed 200 French tanks with anti-aircraft guns and reported the destruction of fifty-nine Allied planes.

All this, which Germans described as simply guaranteeing their final victory in the battle for France, was preceded by announcement of the capture of Reims and Rouen and the crossing of the Seine and Marne rivers on the two flanks of Paris.

These details reflected an increased willingness of the high command to speak of specific advances.

Germans Occupy Compiegne

Occupied, too, was Compiegne—where German generals in the first World war signed the Armistice with Marshal Foch. From Compiegne the invaders reported finding a French plaque which said:

"The criminal arrogance of the German Reich died here."

German sources declared it would be a "crime" for the French to attempt to defend Paris. No repetition of the "miracle of the Marne" of 1914 could save the city, they said.

The jubilant claims for a victory over France were based on these circumstances as the newspaper Dienst Aus Deutschland itemized them:

1. The German right flank, which in 1914 was uncovered is now a powerful destructive force making full steam down the French coast, while the Marne is being crossed on the other side of Paris.
2. Germany now has but one front, while before she had the Russians at her back.
3. France entered this new decisive battle weakened by the loss of much of her armies in Flanders.
4. France stands alone now, while in 1914 she had the British with her.
5. Last time, the French could withdraw troops from the Italian frontier, but now she must defend that frontier.

The isolation of France from England was regarded as almost complete. Informed sources said bombing of the channel harbors had been extremely effective and that in one day alone ten Allied transports were sunk.

BRITISH DIG IN FOR NEAR EAST WAR

British troops are shown digging a long trench in the Egyptian desert as one of the defense measures undertaken in the land of the pyramids. Egypt's own army is small, but well equipped. However, they are augmented by a large Allied army entrenched in the Near East.

French Admit

ever, were acknowledged to have struck off the main body northwest toward Caudebec, which is only about thirty miles from the vital French port of Havre.

Between the Oise and Ourcq rivers Nazi advance units attacked violently around Crepy-En-Valois and Betz—a town some thirty miles northeast of Paris.

The French declared their "numerous prisoners" reported enormous losses among the Germans northeast of Reims.

French aviation was declared to have returned five times to the battle area during the day.

The region between the Aisne and Meuse rivers was reported quiet.

The Germans had taken Rouen, the port of Paris on the Seine, and by their own claims had cut off and captured some 20,000 French troops at St. Valery, twenty miles down the channel coast from Dieppe. They had captured Senlis, historic World war town, only twenty-six miles north of Paris.

From the lower Seine to the Argonne forest the battle raged. As the guns roared along the whole irregular front, word came up from the south that the Italians, with sixty or seventy divisions (perhaps 900,000 or 1,000,000 men) mobilized, had blown up a bridge at Vinti Mille on the French border in the Alps.

As the German army advanced, trying to complete a vast circling movement around Paris, the military governor ordered all employes of the public services in the Seine-Et-Oise and Seine-Et-Marne departments to remain at their posts. These are areas immediately west and east of Paris.

The prefecture of the Seine department, which includes Paris, requisitioned all bakeries, pharmacies and groceries.

When the armies of Von Kluck and Von Bulow reached the Marne in the Indian summer of 1914, the French turned them back with a swift flanking attack.

Now, in the Vic-Sur-Aisne, about midway between Soissons and Compiegne, the Germans crossed to the South bank of the river and from a high plateau opened another offensive to bring them closer to Senlis, already in their hands, and to the road to Paris down the Oise valley.

French Order Withdrawal

South of the Marne, along the line between Meaux and Chateau-Thierry, a bloody battlefield in the World war known to thousands of American troops, the French ordered a withdrawal. Meaux is only twenty-six miles East of Paris.

But the war ministry declared that the withdrawals, both here in the East and to the Northeast, were counter-balanced in the West along the winding Seine valley.

But in spite of the fierce attacks, the gains were small, a military spokesman said in the first conference at Tours, French provisional capital. He emphasized that no decisive victory had yet been gained.

With Reims holding as in 1914-18, the war ministry said the German advance between the besieged city and Compiegne had failed to pierce the general defense system. General Maxime Weygand's plan of defense apparently was inflicting tremendous losses on the Germans in men and tanks.

Into the fight, the war ministry said, the Germans had thrown even training tanks brought hastily up from Germany.

Chateau Thierry, where the French have dug in to stem the German rush, marks the farthest point reached by the Germans in the big spring offensive of 1918. The second and third divisions of the American Expeditionary Force finally turned them back. A large stone bridge spans the Marne at that point.

Germans Claim

the report that German artillery was active on the upper Rhine front, a quiet area up to now.

A German spokesman cautiously commented that a new front might be in the process of "being brought into motion."

Italians Increase Mines

While the fighting in France blazed to a higher pitch, Italy, the newest belligerent, had her first taste of war and moved to cut her "Mare Nostrum," the Mediterranean, in half by laying a broad belt of mines around Sicily.

The first Allied stroke against Italy herself came from the air, in which Italy has been called second only to Germany in power.

Allied planes ranged over northern Italy, attacking such important industrial cities as Turin and Milan. Other "enemy action" against Italy came on the Liguarian coast, where Genoa is located, but whether it was naval or aerial was not specified.

It became apparent on the second day of Italy's belligerency that her high command would be sparing of war reports. The first communique of the Italian high command told nothing more than Tuesday's bombing of Malta and an engagement with British planes over Libya.

Italy had between 900,000 and 1,050,000 men massed on the French maritime Alps frontier.

Thus far their action has been the blowing up of a bridge on the frontier.

Britain flung her air force headlong into the two fights she has on her hands.

R. A. F. Invades Italy

On the French front Royal Air Force bombers loosed destruction on the driving German armies. Others raided into Germany.

To harass Italy, Britain's warplanes dropped bombs on industrial cities of northern Italy and lashed out in Africa against troops, ships and airdromes.

In her air warfare Britain also shot down a German bomber off her own coast and bombed German warships lying in the harbor at Trondheim, Norway.

British possessions throughout the world marshalled men and materials to fight for the motherland.

Turkey, non-belligerent ally of Britain and France, sat tight. Her cabinet decided that for the present Turkey would stay out of the war. Meantime, she kept up her traditional watch on the Dardanelles and awaited what might come out of Italy's belligerency.

Swiss authorities said bombs which killed four persons around Lake Leman were of British origin. It was not known if the bombers, if they were British, had mistaken the lake for one of those in northern Italy.

Willkie Predicts Seventy Votes on First Ballot

Says Name Will Be Placed in Nomination by Representative Halleck, of Indiana

By W. B. RAGSDALE

WASHINGTON, June 12 (AP)—Wendell Willkie, of New York, estimated today that his first ballot strength for the presidential nomination in the Republican convention would be about seventy votes, rising on later ballots.

"Start small and grow," the Hoosier executive told a press conference. "I think whoever is nominated will get it by the sixth ballot."

He had just announced that Halleck, of Indiana, Willkie's native state, would place his name in nomination.

Willkie said his delegate strength was scattered widely among many states and indicated that its future growth would start after favorite son pledges were disposed of.

"I have talked with delegates from twenty-seven states," he said. "They are an unusually intelligent and serious-minded group. It will be no controlled convention."

Replying to questions about his political history, Willkie said he had never been a member of the Liberty League nor had he contributed to it.

"I did contribute to the Democratic party," he said. "That was in 1932. I voted for Alf. M. Landon in 1936.

"I did not leave the Democratic party. It left me. I was brought up in a party that revered Thomas Jefferson, who opposed strongly centralized government. I came up in a party that had Andrew Jackson as patron saint. He paid the national debt. That is not the New Deal party."

Shirt-sleeved and with rumpled hair, he answered questions promptly and directly.

"This candidacy appealed to my sense of humor at first," he said. "Then it struck me that I apparently had been placed at the head of a trend. I had been dramatized as a business man and a man of fairly liberal views. The people were tired of business baiting and wanted to see national unity."

Italy Extends

coast, on which Genoa is located.

In its second day of belligerency the Italian high command still kept secret its operations against Britain and France.

The first war communique reported belatedly only yesterday air bombardment of Malta and fight with British planes who bombed Libya.

Early today anti-aircraft guns sounded and warning sirens shrieked for an hour at Turin, Milan and other cities in the north.

Details were withheld. Newspapers reported merely that anti-aircraft guns were in action and that the firing was particularly heavy around Milan.

It was known that Italy had massed a great army on the French frontier, apparently for a drive through the maritime Alps where the French are strongly entrenched.

(At Tours, new seat of the French government, a military commentator declared the only question of sixty to seventy Italian divisions, completely mobilized on the frontier, had been to blow up a bridge at Vinti Mille on the French border in the Alps.)

The report of action on the Ligurian coast, which lies between Leghorn and the French-Italian frontier, south of Turin and Milan, did not explain whether it was naval or aerial and details were withheld pending official announcement.

Congress Must Stay On the Job

REPORTS from Washington state that sentiment is growing in Congress for abandonment of the idea of adjourning June 22 as planned by administration leaders. Recent events certainly warrant continuation of the session, but there are plenty of reasons why that should be done, the chief being the danger of letting the government lapse into a virtual dictatorship.

When Republicans in the Senate and House of Representatives voted unanimously against the adjournment of Congress in the present crisis, they clearly evinced their sense of responsibility to those who elected them to office and a high degree of duty and patriotism.

They have shown that neither the approaching political conventions nor the heat of a Washington summer outweigh as considerations the gravity of the existing situation and the need for congressional control over national policies and the taking of precipitate action in whatever contingencies the country may face.

Only a week or so ago the New Deal dictator appealed for "team work" between himself and the Congress. Now he has ordered one horse of the team to the stable. He has told the New Deal congressional leaders to bring about adjournment before the end of June, hoping to gain a free hand to use his almost unlimited emergency powers as he, and he alone, sees fit, and incidentally to obtain such political advantage as may be had by getting rid of what to the president is only troublesome interference.

Members of Congress who desert their posts at such a time merely to bow to the will of the executive will not be regarded by the American people other than as false to the trust imposed on them and will, without question, be held to strict accountability, especially if such action should lead the nation into fresh dangers and difficulties.

Few persons besides those who have made special study of the facts realize how far-reaching is the authority now held by the president. In the first month of the Roosevelt administration, Congress began delegating emergency powers to the executive. Not one of them has ever been relinquished.

The present situation brings to life powers that can be exercised in time of war or when war is imminent. Last September the president proclaimed a national emergency under which his authority was vastly augmented.

Under the Emergency Banking act, the Securities and Exchange act and the Federal Communications act, he can, in the emergency of his own declaration, rule credit and international transactions, close stock exchanges and control radio stations, telegraph and telephone communication. He can now commandeer factories and turn them into munition plants, taking over whatever power plants may be needed for their operation. He can requisition any American vessel and force railroads to give preference to government shipments.

Presidential powers are not only virtually unlimited, but there is no official listing of them. While Justice Murphy of the Supreme court was still attorney general, Senator Vandenberg asked for a complete record of emergency powers held by the chief executive.

The attorney general forwarded a list of 100 acts giving the president specific and general authority, but he warned that it was not complete, as indirect powers were given by other laws too numerous for investigation at that time.

Of the powers the president does not possess there remains only the authority to declare war and today wars are not declared. If war comes to this side of the Atlantic it may not be on the declaration or initiation of the United States.

It is plain that in matters of policy, decision upon a thousand steps short of actual war, the president is undisputed arbiter.

Congress must stay on the job.

Airport Decision Is Praiseworthy

THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL deserve commendation for deciding finally to go ahead with the Cumberland airport project at Wiley Ford.

The need of an airport for the community has been greatly emphasized by the newly enlarged plans for national defense, inasmuch as these involve a tremendous acceleration of aviation prompted by war experience. Hence, the project means more than giving the community the advantages of the growing means of transportation for mail and commercial purposes. It represents an important contribution of the community to the national defense. With the vast expansion of the air services a local port will be needed as an additional base for army planes in the new emergency that is now faced. Also, as already pointed out, it will afford desirable facilities for the training of pilots.

Also deserving of praise are the pioneering members of the Airport committee of the chamber of commerce, and the various public-spirited citizens who supported them, who volunteered their time and means in scouting around to find a suitable location after other places proved inadequate, and who persisted in their efforts of rounding out plans and cooperating with the Civil Aeronautics Authority in order to make the project possible.

The creation of an adequate airport here has long been seen as a necessary project sooner or later in view of the remarable strides of commercial aviation in the country during the last two years or so. But recent events brought about by the serious turn of the war abroad have shown beyond dispute that it would be quite inadvisable to put it off any longer, especially in view of the feasibility and the relatively low cost of the Wiley Ford site.

West Virginia Brings Communists to Book

COMMUNISTS in West Virginia who have busied themselves too much politically are being brought to book in various communities of the state.

This has come about under the operation of a state law under which the Communists have been arrested because they had voted as registered persons in the recent state primary election after having signed the Communist party petition to get their ticket on the November ballot. Under the state law the petition constitutes a primary since it nominates candidates to be listed on the general ballot. That makes the person voting twice in the primary.

A state commentator notes that nearly all of those arrested have names of strange foreign spelling. That has prompted the query as to why they should not be required to return to the countries whence they came and where they could enjoy to the full their desire for dictatorship government. The only way they could do that, of course, would be by obeying the rules of the existing dictator, and they would have to do that whether they liked it or not. The natural conclusion is that not one of them could be induced to go to a country where Communism rules and where the privileges they exercise in this country do not obtain.

It has developed that a number of those who signed the petitions did so unthinkingly, perhaps in some cases in order to get rid of the solicitors. The actions taken, however, afford another reminder that citizens should not offhandedly sign their names to petitions without knowing clearly what they are doing.

Defense Will Fall Short Without Economy

IT is possible that America, in undertaking the gitantic task of armament, will be forced to adopt more provident ways with finished goods. This country is dotted with the "graveyards" of things that have been discarded and for which a wasteful people finds no further use. It is not so in the older countries where folks have been forced by poverty to use things over and over again. It may eventually come to be thus in the United States.

After the World war wooden ships used for transport lined the Hudson river for miles in rows of four. They could not be sold for junk. Excess materials for the army and the navy, representing hundreds of millions of dollars, were sold, if at all, at great sacrifices. That can hardly be permitted to happen again in a nation already beset with debt and forced nearer and nearer policies calculated to achieve the closest economy.

If the nation does not prepare economically, defense will fall short. There is nothing clearer in history than this: That a provident people is a strong people and a wasteful people is not.

Hampshire County Distinction

A DISTINCTION unwittingly wrested from the neighboring county of Hampshire in West Virginia has been restored.

Recently a Parkersburg newspaper noted that when Harrison county of that state selected a woman assessor to succeed her late husband, the appointee was believed to be the only woman assessor in the history of the state.

The information soon came to hand, however, that Mrs. Wess Parsons became assessor of Hampshire county upon the death of her husband, Garrett Parsons, in 1930 and was elected to the office in 1932, serving therein for four years. Doubtless she holds the distinction of having been the first woman assessor in the state.

The correction is another reminder of the increasing participation of women in the public affairs of the country.

No man will ever be able to understand his wife now. A fashion expert announces a new style which is said to give a woman two distinct personalities.

A new occupational disease we probably will soon hear about is map maker's cramp.

What Do YOU Think?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Marshall Maslin

I like salesmen. . . . I like their "go," their drive, their enthusiasm and ability with which they tackle a hard prospect and convert a doubtful situation into a sale. They have rare qualities that arouse my envy. . . . One thing in particular that I like about them is their ability for getting along with all kinds of people.

But once, a good many years ago, a young salesman came to me and made a sale. . . . It wasn't easy for him, I'll admit. I was a tough prospect, not too friendly to his advances. I thought I didn't want what he was trying to sell me. . . . So he had to call on me at least half a dozen times before he won me over. He was tactful, he was friendly, not too obviously insistent, but persuasive—and at last he had my name on the dotted line.

I liked him and that wasn't difficult . . . and I no longer thought of our relation as a battle between him and me, but as something of a pleasant personal relationship.

But soon I discovered that I'd been mistaken. After he had made that sale he was up and away . . . and I saw him no more. He didn't give a whoop about keeping any promises, about fulfilling his verbal guarantees. And when I'd call him on the phone he was polite enough but evasive, full of words but non-performing.

So it didn't take me long to discover that he didn't follow up on his promises. . . . He was, in fact, a quick-change artist and one sale to a customer was enough for him. . . . I hear about him occasionally and his competitors tell me that he has the reputation of being a great salesman.

I don't agree. . . . I have also heard that he has worked for ten different concerns in ten years. He can always get a job, and always get another one—and he does just that. He's a quick-change artist in getting jobs, too. . . . He can sell himself easily but he can't stay sold. . . . Would YOU call him a good salesman?

Training Idea Is Not Understood, Johnson Says

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON, June 12.—As an illustration of snap judgments in the highest places on matters of great moment stands the president's approval after having read "only the first paragraph" of a New York Times editorial, which said: "The time has come when, in the interest of self-protection, the American people should at once adopt a national system of universal compulsory military training." Later on the editorial said: We believe that it should be so drafted as to provide training not only for young men but for older men as well."

So do I, but let's see what "compulsory universal military training" would mean. In 1918, we had registered for, or actually in military service, 25,348,000 men between ages of 18 and 45. Since then our population has increased thirty percent. Presumably we now have at least 33,000,000 in that class. "Universal" would include them all. Setting out to train 33,000,000 would be absurd and preposterous. Of course, many of these would be exempted by reason of physical disability, or dependency of others, or by reason of industrial necessity. The number is impossible to compute until we know the liberality of strictness of the exemption rules. But, assume that we apply the 1918 exemption rules which, as to Class 1, were about as liberal as fairness and reason could ever justify.

Sixteen and a Quarter

Sixteen and a quarter per cent were physically disqualified. That would leave 27,637,500 men. Under the very liberal rules for class 1, roughly thirty per cent were selected. That means that in its most restricted sense, "universal compulsory military training" would require us to begin training 7,291,500 men. If we decided to train all the classes that were in 1918 classified as fit and eventually liable to military service, but temporarily deferred in classes II, III and IV, the total would be more than 10,000,000.

Obviously, the writer of that editorial did not mean "universal compulsory military training." It would be destructive, impractical and unwise. Perhaps he meant a modification of the 1918 "selective" service, such as this column has recently suggested.

Inapplicable Here

The confusion that sometimes arises on this subject is due to following European terminology and practice which are wholly inapplicable here and now. Under that system, every boy takes one, two or three years of training when he reaches a certain age—usually 18, 19 or 20 years old. Then he passes into his nation's great reservoir of trained men to be called back to service by yearly "classes" when and as necessary.

In this way, a manageable and practical number are trained each year and in the course of many years vast armies in reserve are built up. Obviously, it is too late and would take too long for us to get results from this plan which is true "universal compulsory military training."

What we should do is to determine the maximum that we can train in any single period and the trained reserve we need. Then we should set up the local selection boards as in 1917, register all men between 18 and 46 and then require them to submit to the 1917 type of classification questionaire to give the boards most of the information necessary for selection.

Spreads the Burden

Then, having determined by lot, the order in which men shall be called and the number of recruits needed either for training, or for the national guard, or for the regular army, or any other purposes, and the quota of that number for each separate board, the board keeps on calling, examining and hearing cases until it has that number of selected and acceptable men who can go with the least hardship and dislocation for all concerned.

This avoids the injustice of just taking your kids, spreads the burden over all available men, favors nobody, prejudices nobody, costs very little and would solve our man-power and training problem no matter what it turns out to be.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Plan For Financing Defense Plants Is Viewed As Blow to Private Industry

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

Not even the present serious situation which exists in regard to American national defense deters or slows down the New Deal's socialistic fifth column. Indeed nothing deters these New Deal radicals; nothing occurs which they do not attempt to turn to their advantage.

No sooner had it became apparent that the New Deal had woefully neglected American national defense than the socialistic planners in the New Deal undertook to use this situation to further their seven-year-old plan of subjecting more and more of private property and enterprise to government ownership and operation.

Wrapping their nefarious schemes in the robes of patriotism, the New Deal planners moved to drive the biggest nail yet hammered into American private enterprise. As the president pointed out that our national defense needs would cost billions of dollars in the next year or two, his red-tinged aides pointed out that this would necessitate considerable plant expansion in the fields of machine tools, aviation and armor plate manufacture.

Gift-Bearing Greeks

Subtly, they also pointed out it would be unfair to expect business to make huge investments for expansions that might be needed only two or three years. This solicitude for business was so rare as to make suspicious anyone familiar with the views of the White House janissaries.

What should be done? Ah, said the New Deal planners — the federal answer for everything — the federal treasury will advance the money to build the additional industrial plant that is needed. Let the manufacturers pay the government a nominal interest and depreciation charge while such property is used for making needed armaments and then, if need be, default.

But what then? Does not the manufacturer run the risk of losing all his property when he defaults on the loan when the expanded facilities are no longer needed? That easily can be arranged, say the New Dealers, by setting up subsidiary corporations to which the government loan is made. When the loan is defaulted, the government will take over only the property of the emergency subsidiary corporation.

What a Trojan Horse?

An innocent enough appearing proposal, is it not? But no more Machiavellian scheme was ever proposed in American politics—no more deceptive Trojan Horse ever sought entry through the gates of a citadel. Once that scheme is put into operation, that day will surely mark the beginning of the end of American private enterprise.

Why? Well, what do you suppose the federal government would do with the industrial plants it takes over after the need for rush preparedness passes? It is naive to suggest that this property would be left idle, especially if the same socialistically-minded crowd now in control in Washington still holds the reins of government.

The answer is that the government would undertake to operate such property in competition with the industrialists who defaulted on their loans. Remember Musle Shoals. It commenced as a war-time project to produce nitrates under Woodrow Wilson. It was used as an excuse for the present T. V. A. power project by Franklin D. Roosevelt.

There is a perfect example of how the thing would work — except this time it would be on a much broader scale. The government would be operating machine tool factories, airplane factories, truck and automobile factories and steel plants —and would be operating them with patents and processes of private companies against whom it would be competing.

What is now proposed was not inspired to promote national defense — it was proposed to promote the Socialistic plans which many New Dealers have sought to advance for seven years in one form or another. It is another chapter in the scheme outlined a year ago to the Anti-Monopoly committee by Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle, Jr.

Promotion of Socialism Seen

You will recall that Mr. Berle let the cat out of the bag when he frankly told this committee that we were heading directly into socialism. He contended that if we were to survive as a nation, the government must spend more money—that "if the wealth is to be created by creation of government debt the scope of government enterprise must be largely increased" — that "the government will have to enter into the direct financing of activities now supposed to be private and a continuance of that direct financing must be inevitably that the government ultimately will control and owen these activities" and, finally, that "over a period of years the government will gradually come to own most of the productive plants in the United States."

There is the plan in a nut-shell. Government loans in connection would be a wide step toward its execution. Mr. Berle knows that. So do the other New Deal planners. Business has suddenly awakened to the Trojan Horse waiting at its gate.

What is needed in the present situation is not government loans. The banks are bulging with idle money. Business can borrow at the lowest rates in history. What is needed is a revision of the federal tax laws and federal fical policy to permit business to write-off within three or four years the capital invested in expansions necessitated by this emergency. Let that be done and business will do the expanding without any danger of destroying the American system of private enterprise.

Free Family Is Given Emphasis By Father's Day

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

Mother being so important in this worried world, it took a long time to get around to father. Mother's Day had become a familiar observance long before some one thought that dad was entitled to a break. Fathers are people, after all, and very interesting, many-sided people.

That errant thought came to me after I had seen "Life with Father", which, to my money, should have had the Pulitzer prize. Many-sided, indeed. After having been impressed by the Jove-like authority of the august father in the play I happened to see a bored-looking young man pushing a baby carriage in the park. He looked worried, somewhat meagre and wistful. If he had stood a little straighter and had sported Dundrearies on an out-size moustache, I might have imagined him ruling his household with dignity, as, quietly and firmly, he lay down the law to wife and children. A tail coat would have helped.

But the picture wouldn't come through. The young man was not only smooth-faced, but he wore one of those sleazy, pleated suits which seem to have been made for Harlem tap-dancers, rather than fathers. You couldn't possibly associate him with dignity and authority. However, whiskers or no whiskers, one reflected that Clarence Day's father must have had ledger-clerks who put up no such King Lear domestic front as the old man himself. We were making an unfair comparison.

Heartbreaking Theme

There was lingering and poignant sadness in that old Emil Jannings picture, "The Last Laugh." Here was the magnificent old hotel doorman, regal and commanding in his splendid uniform, a pitifully bewildered and faltering old man when he went home with no job. There's heartbreak in that theme and the only excuse for touching on it when approaching Father's day is to remind ourselves of the courage and gallantry and faithfulness of multitudes of mill-run fathers who hold their little homes together, provide education and decent rearing for their children, pare down the mortgage, mow the lawn, and in their small dominions serve as both judge, arbiter and wise counselor.

A Better Bet

Our age has made a fetish of youth. Competition for jobs induces father to try to look young. So we must dispense with the habiliments of established parenthood as they were in Victorian days; but that is no reason why your old man, slogging away all these years to give you a break, doesn't rate a doggy little gift which he has long wanted but was too unselfish to buy for himself.

As a matter of fact, your old man is a better bet for this loving little accolade than was Clarense Day's for a definite reason. He knew no seismic shocks of elemental change. His family citadel was built on the rock and he was wired in with Providence.

Your old man is in the white house, with the waves breaking high. He jokes about it at home, but his is the lonely and bleak responsibility for the lot of you. He needs your understanding and affection. And this isn't just the stereotyped sentiment of an anniversary. It is a simple truth of our times, when the solvency and safety of the family is more imperilled than it ever has been before.

State Assumes Authority

The first thing that totalitarian and that means simply tyrannical governments do is to raise hob with the family. Children are compelled to be poisonous little snitchers, reporting any off-side parental remark or deed to the police. All authority over the family is taken over by the state. All that fatherhood and motherhood symbolize in human dignity and responsibility is swept away.

The integrity and self-sufficiency of the family is the strongest bulwark against the insatiable state. Where the family is a normal social unit, as it has been in our country from the beginning, there is, first of all, a healthy diversity of opinion. One father inclines his children to one religion or political party and another father to another. Perhaps the child, becoming a father himself, will take another track, but that's all right under our ground rules and it all makes for the free association of free men.

We lay it on the line that you can't have a free country without a free, self-starting, self-sustaining, self-governing family. That puts your old man in a mighty important spot today, when every traditional freedom known to mankind is savagely assailed. Don't give him just a hand. Give him some precious doo-dad you know he wants as tangible evidence of your understanding and faith.—Copyright, 1940, King Reatures Syndicate, Inc.

Congress Must Stay On the Job

REPORTS from Washington state that sentiment is growing in Congress for abandonment of the idea of adjourning June 22 as planned by administration leaders. Recent events certainly warrant continuation of the session, but there are plenty of reasons why that should be done, the chief being the danger of letting the government lapse into a virtual dictatorship.

When Republicans in the Senate and House of Representatives voted unanimously against the adjournment of Congress in the present crisis, they clearly evinced their sense of responsibility to those who elected them to office and a high degree of duty and patriotism.

They have shown that neither the approaching political conventions nor the heat of a Washington summer outweigh as considerations the gravity of the existing situation and the need for congressional control over national policies and the taking of precipitate action in whatever contingencies the country may face.

Only a week or so ago the New Deal dictator appealed for "team work" between himself and the Congress. Now he has ordered one horse of the team to the stable. He has told the New Deal congressional leaders to bring about adjournment before the end of June, hoping to gain a free hand to use his almost unlimited emergency powers as he, and he alone, sees fit, and incidentally to obtain such political advantage as may be had by getting rid of what to the president is only troublesome interference.

Members of Congress who desert their posts at such a time merely to bow to the will of the executive will not be regarded by the American people other than as false to the trust imposed on them and will, without question, be held to strict accountability, especially if such action should lead the nation into fresh dangers and difficulties.

Few persons besides those who have made special study of the facts realize how far-reaching is the authority now held by the president. In the first month of the Roosevelt administration, Congress began delegating emergency powers to the executive. Not one of them has ever been relinquished.

The present situation brings to life powers that can be exercised in time of war or when war is imminent. Last September the president proclaimed a national emergency under which his authority was vastly augmented.

Under the Emergency Banking act, the Securities and Exchange act and the Federal Communications act, he can, in the emergency of his own declaration, rule credit and international transactions, close stock exchanges and control radio stations, telegraph and telephone communication. He can now commandeer factories and turn them into munition plants, taking over whatever power plants may be needed for their operation. He can requisition any American vessel and force railroads to give preference to government shipments.

Presidential powers are not only virtually unlimited, but there is no official listing of them. While Justice Murphy of the Supreme court was still attorney general, Senator Vandenberg asked for a complete record of emergency powers held by the chief executive.

The attorney general forwarded a list of 100 acts giving the president specific and general authority, but he warned that it was not complete, as indirect powers were given by other laws too numerous for investigation at that time.

Of the powers the president does not possess there remains only the authority to declare war and today wars are not declared. If war comes to this side of the Atlantic it may not be on the declaration or initiation of the United States.

It is plain that in matters of policy, decision upon a thousand steps short of actual war, the president is undisputed arbiter.

Congress must stay on the job.

Airport Decision Is Praiseworthy

THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL deserve commendation for deciding finally to go ahead with the Cumberland airport project at Wiley Ford.

The need of an airport for the community has been greatly emphasized by the newly enlarged plans for national defense, inasmuch as these involve a tremendous acceleration of aviation prompted by war experience. Hence, the project means more than giving the community the advantages of the growing means of transportation for mail and commercial purposes. It represents an important contribution of the community to the national defense. With the vast expansion of the air services a local port will be needed as an additional base for army planes in the new emergency that is now faced. Also, as already pointed out, it will afford desirable facilities for the training of pilots.

Also deserving of praise are the pioneering members of the Airport committee of the chamber of commerce, and the various public-spirited citizens who supported them, who volunteered their time and means in scouting around to find a suitable location after other places proved inadequate, and who persisted in their efforts of rounding out plans and cooperating with the Civil Aeronautics Authority in order to make the project possible.

The creation of an adequate airport here has long been seen as a necessary project sooner or later in view of the remarable strides of commercial aviation in the country during the last two years or so. But recent events brought about by the serious turn of the war abroad have shown beyond dispute that it would be quite inadvisable to put it off any longer, especially in view of the feasibility and the relatively low cost of the Wiley Ford site.

West Virginia Brings Communists to Book

COMMUNISTS in West Virginia who have busied themselves too much politically are being brought to book in various communities of the state.

This has come about under the operation of a state law under which the Communists have been arrested because they had voted as registered persons in the recent state primary election after having signed the Communist party petition to get their ticket on the November ballot. Under the state law the petition constitutes a primary since it nominates candidates to be listed on the general ballot. That makes the person voting twice in the primary.

A state commentator notes that nearly all of those arrested have names of strange foreign spelling. That has prompted the query as to why they should not be required to return to the countries whence they came and where they could enjoy to the full their desire for dictatorship government. The only way they could do that, of course, would be by obeying the rules of the existing dictator, and they would have to do that whether they liked it or not. The natural conclusion is that not one of them could be induced to go to a country where Communism rules and where the privileges they exercise in this country do not obtain.

It has developed that a number of those who signed the petitions did so unthinkingly, perhaps in some cases in order to get rid of the solicitors. The actions taken, however, afford another reminder that citizens should not offhandedly sign their names to petitions without knowing clearly what they are doing.

Defense Will Fall Short Without Economy

IT is possible that America, in undertaking the gitantic task of armament, will be forced to adopt more provident ways with finished goods. This country is dotted with the "graveyards" of things that have been discarded and for which a wasteful people finds no further use. It is not so in the older countries where folks have been forced by poverty to use things over and over again. It may eventually come to be thus in the United States.

After the World war wooden ships used for transport lined the Hudson river for miles in rows of four. They could not be sold for junk. Excess materials for the army and the navy, representing hundreds of millions of dollars, were sold, if at all, at great sacrifices. That can hardly be permitted to happen again in a nation already beset with debt and forced nearer and nearer policies calculated to achieve the closest economy.

If the nation does not prepare economically, defense will fall short. There is nothing clearer in history than this: That a provident people is a strong people and a wasteful people is not.

Hampshire County Distinction

A DISTINCTION unwittingly wrested from the neighboring county of Hampshire in West Virginia has been restored.

Recently a Parkersburg newspaper noted that when Harrison county of that state selected a woman assessor to succeed her late husband, the appointee was believed to be the only woman assessor in the history of the state.

The information soon came to hand, however, that Mrs. Wess Parsons became assessor of Hampshire county upon the death of her husband, Garrett Parsons, in 1930 and was elected to the office in 1932, serving therein for four years. Doubtless she holds the distinction of having been the first woman assessor in the state.

The correction is another reminder of the increasing participation of women in the public affairs of the country.

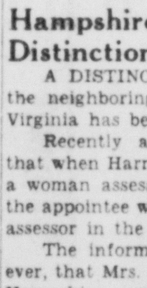

No man will ever be able to understand his wife now. A fashion expert announces a new style which is said to give a woman two distinct personalities.

A new occupational disease we probably will soon hear about is map maker's cramp.

What Do YOU Think?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I like salesmen. . . . I like their "go," their drive, their enthusiasm and ability with which they tackle a hard prospect and convert a doubtful situation into a sale. They have rare qualities that arouse my envy. . . . One thing in particular that I like about them is their ability for getting along with all kinds of people.

Marshall Maslin

But once, a good many years ago, a young salesman came to me and made a sale. . . . It wasn't easy for him, I'll admit. I was a tough prospect, not too friendly to his advances. I thought I didn't want what he was trying to sell me. . . . So he had to call on me at least half a dozen times before he won me over. He was tactful, he was friendly, not too obviously insistent, but persuasive—and at last he had my name on the dotted line.

I liked him and that wasn't difficult . . . and I no longer thought of our relation as a battle between him and me, but as something of a pleasant personal relationship.

But soon I discovered that I'd been mistaken. After he had made that sale he was up and away . . . and I saw him no more. He didn't give a whoop about keeping any promises, about fulfilling his verbal guarantees. And when I'd call him on the phone he was polite enough but evasive, full of words but non-performing.

So it didn't take me long to discover that he didn't follow up on his promises. . . . He was, in fact, a quick-change artist and one sale to a customer was enough for him. . . . I hear about him occasionally and his competitors tell me that he has the reputation of being a great salesman.

I don't agree. . . . I have also heard that he has worked for ten different concerns in ten years. He can always get a job, and always get another one—and he does just that. He's a quick-change artist in getting jobs, too. . . . He can sell himself easily but he can't stay sold. . . . Would YOU call him a good salesman?

Training Idea Is Not Understood, Johnson Says

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON, June 12.—As an illustration of snap judgments in the highest places on matters of great moment stands the president's approval after having read "only the first paragraph" of a New York Times editorial, which said: "The time has come when, in the interest of self-protection, the American people should at once adopt a national system of universal compulsory military training." Later on the editorial said: We believe that it should be so drafted as to provide training not only for young men but for older men as well."

So do I, but let's see what "compulsory universal military training" would mean. In 1918, we had registered for, or actually in military service, 25,348,000 men between ages of 18 and 45. Since then our population has increased thirty percent. Presumably we now have at least 33,000,000 in that class. "Universal" would include them all. Setting out to train 33,000,000 would be absurd and preposterous. Of course, many of these would be exempted by reason of physical disability, or dependency of others, or by reason of industrial necessity. The number is impossible to compute until we know the liberality of strictness of the exemption rules. But, assume that we apply the 1918 exemption rules which, as to Class 1, were about as liberal as fairness and reason could ever justify.

Sixteen and a Quarter

Sixteen and a quarter per cent were physically disqualified. That would leave 27,637,500 men. Under the very liberal rules for class 1, roughly thirty per cent were selected. That means that in its most restricted sense, "universal compulsory military training" would require us to begin training 7,291,500 men. If we decided to train all the classes that were in 1918 classified as fit and eventually liable to military service, but temporarily deferred in classes II, III and IV, the total would be more than 10,000,000.

Obviously, the writer of that editorial did not mean "universal compulsory military training." It would be destructive, impractical and unwise. Perhaps he meant a modification of the 1918 "selective" service, such as this column has recently suggested.

Inapplicable Here

The confusion that sometimes arises on this subject is due to following European terminology and practice which are wholly inapplicable here and now. Under that system, every boy takes one, two or three years of training when he reaches a certain age—usually 18, 19 or 20 years old. Then he passes into his nation's great reservoir of trained men to be called back to service by yearly "classes" when and as necessary.

In this way, a manageable and practical number are trained each year and in the course of many years vast armies in reserve are built up. Obviously, it is too late and would take too long for us to get results from this plan which is true "universal compulsory military training."

What we should do is to determine the maximum that we can train in any single period and the trained reserve we need. Then we should set up the local selection boards as in 1917, register all men between 18 and 46 and then require them to submit to the 1917 type of classification questionaire to give the boards most of the information necessary for selection.

Spreads the Burden

Then, having determined by lot, the order in which men shall be called and the number of recruits needed either for training, or for the national guard, or for the regular army, or any other purposes, and the quota of that number for each separate board, the board keeps on calling, examining and hearing cases until it has that number of selected and acceptable men who can go with the least hardship and dislocation for all concerned.

This avoids the injustice of just taking your kids, spreads the burden over all available men, favors nobody, prejudices nobody, costs very little and would solve our man-power and training problem no matter what it turns out to be.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

The young man was not only smooth-faced, but he wore one of those sleazy, pleated suits which seem to have been made for Harlem tap-dancers, rather than fathers. You couldn't possibly associate him with dignity and authority. However, whiskers or no whiskers, one reflected that Clarence Day's father must have had ledger-clerks who put up no such King Lear domestic front as the old man himself. We were making an unfair comparison.

Heartbreaking Theme

There was lingering and poignant sadness in that old Emil Jannings picture, "The Last Laugh." Here was the magnificent old hotel doorman, regal and commanding in his splendid uniform, a pitifully bewildered and faltering old man when he went home with no job. There's heartbreak in that theme and the only excuse for touching on it when approaching Father's day is to remind ourselves of the courage and gallantry and faithfulness of multitudes of mill-run fathers who hold their little homes together, provide education and decent rearing for their children, pare down the mortgage, mow the lawn, and in their small dominions serve as both just arbiter and wise counselor.

A Better Bet

Our age has made a fetich of youth. Competition for jobs induces father to try to look young. So we must dispense with the habiliments of established parenthood as they were in Victorian days; but that is no reason why your old man, slogging away all these years to give you a break, doesn't rate a doggy little gift which he has long wanted but was too unselfish to buy for himself.

As a matter of fact, your old man is a better bet for this loving little accolade than was Clarense Day's for a definite reason. He knew no seismic shocks of elemental change. His family citadel was built on a rock and he was wired in with Providence.

Your old man is in the wheel house, with the waves breaking high. He jokes about it at home, but his is the lonely and bleak responsibility for the lot of you. He needs your understanding and affection. And this isn't just the stereotyped sentiment of an anniversary. It is a simple truth of our times, when the solvency and safety of the family is more imperilled than it ever has been before.

State Assumes Authority

The first thing that totalitarian, and that means simply tyrannical, governments do is to raise hob with the family. Children are compelled to be poisonous little snitchers, reporting any off-side parental remark or deed to the police. All authority over the family is taken over by the state. All that fatherhood and motherhood symbolize in human dignity and responsibility is swept away.

The integrity and self-sufficiency of the family is the strongest bulwark against the insatiable state. Where the family is a normal social unit, as it has been in our country from the beginning, there is, first of all, a healthy diversity of opinion. One father inclines his children to one religion or political party and another father to another. Perhaps the child, becoming a father himself, will take another track, but that's all right under our ground rules and it all makes for the free association of free men.

We lay it on the line that you can't have a free country without a free, self-starting, self-sustaining, self-governing family. That puts your old man in a mighty important spot today, when every traditional freedom known to mankind is savagely assailed. Don't give him just a hand. Give him some precious doo-dad you know he wants, as tangible evidence of your understanding and faith.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Physician Says Diabetic Diet Is Important

Care in Eating Will Aid Victim Survey of Cases Shows

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Most cases of diabetes occur in people over forty, and in fact, most occur in people over fifty. We said yesterday in discussing diabetes in children, that the younger the person, the more severe the diabetes in all likelihood. People over forty are inclined to have a mild form of diabetes and those over fifty an even milder form, and those over sixty, still milder form.

Diabetes is simply an inability on the part of the body to utilize sugars and starches. The excess sugar runs off in the urine and sugar in the urine is the most reliable sign of diabetes.

Use of Insulin

Middle-aged people with diabetes, as we say, having a mild form, can utilize about one-half or three-quarters as much sugar and starch as they could in health. Therefore they need in most instances, only to cut down on sugar in their coffee, desserts, bread, starchy vegetables, such as potatoes and sweet fruit, and they will usually get along all right. Only a small proportion of them need insulin.

The tendency now is to give as much carbohydrate (sugar and starch food) as possible, even though occasionally some sugar appears in the urine. The patients are more comfortable that way and do not complain of hunger. They must, however, stay within the limit of their glucose tolerance and not try to eat more starch than the body can absorb.

Typical meals for one day:

Breakfast

One-half cup grapefruit; 1 medium sized orange; 5 tablespoons oatmeal (cooked); 2 eggs; 4 tablespoons cream; 2 slices bread; 1 square butter.

Lunch

One egg and 1 egg white; 3 tablespoons 5 per-cent vegetable; 3 tablespoons 10 per-cent vegetable; ½ head lettuce; 2 level teaspoons mayonnaise; 2 slices bread; 1½ squares of butter.

One bowl of clear meat broth*; 2 tablespoons 5 per-cent vegetable; 2 tablespoons 10 per-cent vegetable; 4 pound lean-meat fish or chicken; 1 medium potato; 2 slices bread; 1½ squares butter; 1 medium sized orange.

* If desired.
Tea or coffee.

The word "mausoleum" comes from the tomb which the widow of Mausolus, king of Caria, built for him at Halicarnassus, on the eastern side of the Aegean sea. It was made of marble and was one of the seven wonders of the world until destroyed by an earthquake.

Frocks for Graduates Of 1940 Look Forward

She's dressed for the big day in a commencement frock of white cotton pique whose square neckline is framed in white eyelet embroidery.

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Fashion Editor

Beauty and the budget meet in this year's commencement fashion tale.

The frocks high school and college graduates will wear are both smart and inexpensive.

Besides that they are designed to do double duty. They're cut to meet the demands of good taste in commencement frocks and designed to skim over the dance floor at summer parties later. The secret is in the cut of necklines, sleeves and skirts.

The frocks are made of both sheer and heavy white materials—Swiss organdy, mousseline de soie, dotted Swiss, pique and such—and generally trimmed either with lace or eyelet embroidery.

Lots of them have low necklines (often squared) and sleeves clipped short above the elbow. But some very smart sheer ones are cut with demure long bodices, Peter Pan collars and long, full bishop sleeves. All the waistlines are trim and small; all the skirts gracefully full.

Here are descriptions of a few that are going to help make parents proud: White pique frock with short sleeves and square neck outlined with eyelet embroidery. Sheer organdy dress with little round collar and long bishop sleeves. Frothy puff-sleeved, low-necked frock of mousseline de soie banded with fine lace.

Most commencement frocks are still white (Only about 30 per cent are expected to be pastel.)

Frocks for eighth-grade graduates are designed with careful thought to their clothes problems, too. Newest are long enough to touch shoe-tops, sheer and pretty enough to dance at the country club. The best are cut very simply. There are just as many short ones, however, to meet the approval of schools that consider long frocks too grown up. These are often of crepe or rayon suiting, designed with shirtwaist tops and are often accompanied by little boleros.

Flowers will do some smart tricks—great sheafs of purple iris or bright tulips or garlands of green leaves will be carried instead of bouquets.

Flintstone Seniors Hold Annual Event

FLINTSTONE, June 12 — The Seniors of Flintstone high school reached the peak of their activities last night when they presented their annual class night program in the school auditorium.

The theme of the entertainment was "Hawaii". The stage was attractively decorated to represent a scene on an island of "Hawaii" around a glowing campfire, and members of the class were dressed in the native costumes.

The entire class was represented in the exercises. Blanch Blubaugh, acted as Queen of the Hawaii Island. Ruth Smith, gave the class will. Glen Shipway, was the historian.

Highlights of the class history are: Out of the forty odd members who entered high school four years ago, twenty-five will receive their diplomas here Saturday afternoon at the annual graduation. Six of the missing members are graduates of Fort Hill, Everett, Oldtown high schools and a high school in the State of Virginia. Other members are married or secured employment before completing their four years.

This is the largest graduation class in the history of the school. The next largest class was in 1929, when twenty-one members were graduated.

Lavern Dolly, gave "Glimpse in the Future", which told what each member hoped to be.

The merriment of the class of 1940, really ends well when they discovered a treasure chest which has been washed ashore, after investigation they find that they have real treasures, gifts, for the Senior, Junior, and members of the faculty.

It required transportation of 90,000 pounds of bones and attached rock to assemble five dinosaur skeletons at the University of Utah.

THE DAILY STORY

MEMORY

The Girl Was Beautiful and Her Face Made Him Remember the Weirdest Story of His Life

By FRANK BENNETT

Ivan Sanders, tall and straight as a young man, glanced about the big room with its glitter of wealth and crowd of dignitaries. His eyes rested on the man of the hour, a short, fattish little fellow who limped as the result of a plane crash. A thin smile came to Ivan's face. This man who explored icy wastes from the warm cabin of an airplane knew nothing about hardships. Only a man who had fought his way through ice and snow knew that.

"I Saw the Girl"

The dinner was in honor of the little man.

And then Ivan saw the girl, and toyed with a napkin for a moment, and Ivan looked eagerly for a cameo ring that was not there.

He leaned toward her. "Pardon me, Miss——"

"Edith Fayette."

"Miss Fayette, you remind me of someone whom I've never been able to forget."

She looked at him closely, soberly. "You're Ivan Sanders," she said. "I've seen your picture in the papers."

Ivan caught his breath. Those eyes, the lips, the turn of the head all were just as he remembered them. He pulled himself together with a quick short laugh.

The girl looked away.

"I must tell you a story," he said. "A story of exploring as it was done before the airplane."

The girl glanced at him again. "Please do."

"This happened over 30 years ago. It was when I was sailing with Capt. McAndrew. That would be many years before you were born.

"Our ship was frozen in the Arctic ice. Day after day, week after week, we lay there, waiting for the ice to break up. You've no idea how slowly the days pass at a time like this. There was nothing but ice, snow and cold. Horrible cold. There was nothing to do, nothing new to see. The men became quarrelsome. During those months they learned to hate each other. The loneliness was appaling. A strange her face was the same as the one that haunted him for so many years.

Ivan pointed the girl out to the headwaiter and slipped a bill into his hand. Later, when he found his place at the great horseshoe table, the girl was on his right.

Her hair was soft and glowing like spring sunshine. The blue of her eyes seemed to have come from the depths of quiet waters. She was hauntingly beautiful. One slim hand face would have been like a gift from the gods."

The girl smiled a little. "If you'd had an airplane——"

Ivan returned the smile. "If——"

"Please go on."

One of the men, a fellow by the name of Peterson, and I decided we'd have to get away from the ship awhile or we'd go mad. So, with McAndrew's permission, we packed some supplies and started on an exploring trip to our town. It was a fool thing to do. I've never understood why McAndrew let us, unless he was afraid we'd actually go crazy from being bottled up there.

"It was on the third day that we found the fishing schooner. At first we couldn't believe our eyes. The schooner had been wedged in among some cakes of ice near the edge of a flow of water. Peterson and I just stood there staring at it, expecting any moment to see it disappear.

"A south wind had been whipping the snow from the ice and sending it into the air in clouds all day. The schooner was breaking away from the ice; we could tell by the cracking sound under our feet.

"'I'm going aboard,' I told him.

"'It's risky, he said. 'That ship's liable to break away any second.'

"I climbed over the chunks of ice and drifts of snow until I came to the schooner. At first I thought she was deserted. Then when I went by the window of the cabin, I saw the girl. She stood in there staring out at me. She wore a large cameo ring on the third finger of her right hand.

"I went around the cabin and saw three men anxiously watching the flow of water and the breaking ice. They never did see me, for suddenly the ship gave a lurch. I heard Peterson scream my name. The ice had given away. With only one thought in mind, I ran to the rail, leaped over, and scrambled to reach the solid ice before it was too late. At last when I was safe, I looked back at the schooner. There was a widening gap of water between her and the ice.

"I never did learn the name of the schooner. And the girl—I never knew who she was or where she was from. But she's haunted me ever since—I've tried to forget her, but it's no use. There are some things that one cannot forget."

The girl's eyes were wide, and her face flushed with excitement. Her slim fingers went into a small purse and came out with a thin gold cameo ring.

"My mother gave it to me just before she died," the girl said softly. "The band is worn so thin I'm afraid to wear it, but I always have it with me because she said that someday I might meet the young man who appeared so unexpectedly aboard her father's schooner. She said the man would see me and think of her. She never quite forgot——she always hoped——"

The fattish little explorer began to speak. Ivan Sanders pushed back from the table. Suddenly he felt something in the palm of his hand. Outside the room, he looked. The girl had given him the cameo ring —Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

THE DAILY STORY

MEMORY

By FRANK BENNETT

Ivan Sanders, tall and straight as a young man, glanced about the big room with its glitter of wealth and crowd of dignitaries. His eyes rested on the man of the hour, a short, fattish little fellow who limped as the result of a plane crash. A thin smile came to Ivan's face. This man who explored icy wastes from the warm cabin of an airplane knew nothing about hardships. Only a man who had fought his way through ice and snow knew that.

"I Saw the Girl"

The dinner was in honor of the little man.

And then Ivan saw the girl, and her face was the same as the one that haunted him for so many years.

Ivan pointed the girl out to the headwaiter and slipped a bill into his hand. Later, when he found his place at the great horseshoe table, the girl was on his right.

Her hair was soft and glowing like spring sunshine. The blue of her eyes seemed to have come from the depths of quiet waters. She was hauntingly beautiful. One slim hand toyed with a napkin for a moment, and Ivan looked eagerly for a cameo ring that was not there.

He leaned toward her. "Pardon me, Miss——"

"Edith Fayette."

"Miss Fayette, you remind me of someone whom I've never been able to forget."

She looked at him closely, soberly. "You're Ivan Sanders," she said. "I've seen your picture in the papers."

Ivan caught his breath. Those eyes, the lips, the turn of the head all were just as he remembered them. He pulled himself together with a quick short laugh.

The girl looked away.

"I must tell you a story," he said. "A story of exploring as it was done before the airplane."

The girl glanced at him again. "Please do."

"This happened over 30 years ago. It was when I was sailing with Capt. McAndrew. That would be many years before you were born.

"Our ship was frozen in the Arctic ice. Day after day, week after week, we lay there, waiting for the ice to break up. You've no idea how slowly the days pass at a time like this. There was nothing but ice, snow and cold. Horrible cold. There was nothing to do, nothing new to see. The men became quarrelsome. During those months they learned to hate each other. The loneliness was appaling. A strange face would have been like a gift from the gods."

The girl smiled a little. "If you'd had an airplane——"

Ivan returned the smile. "If——"

"Please go on."

One of the men, a fellow by the name of Peterson, and I decided we'd have to get away from the ship awhile or we'd go mad. So, with McAndrew's permission, we packed some supplies and started on an exploring trip to our town. It was a fool thing to do. I've never understood why McAndrew let us, unless he was afraid we'd actually go crazy from being bottled up there.

"It was on the third day that we found the fishing schooner. At first we couldn't believe our eyes. The schooner had been wedged in among some cakes of ice near the edge of a flow of water. Peterson and I just stood there staring at it, expecting any moment to see it disappear.

"A south wind had been whipping the snow from the ice and sending it into the air in clouds all day. The schooner was breaking away from the ice; we could tell by the cracking sound under our feet.

"'I'm going aboard,' I told him.

"'It's risky, he said. "That ship's liable to break away any second.'

"I climbed over the chunks of ice and drifts of snow until I came to the schooner. At first I thought she was deserted. Then when I went by the window of the cabin, I saw the girl. She stood in there staring out at me. She wore a large cameo ring on the third finger of her right hand.

"I went around the cabin and saw three men anxiously watching the flow of water and the breaking ice. They never did see me, for suddenly the ship gave a lurch. I heard Peterson scream my name. The ice had given away. With only one thought in mind. I ran to the rail, leaped over, and scrambled to reach the solid ice before it was too late. At last when I was safe, I looked back at the schooner. There was a widening gap of water between her and the ice.

"I never did learn the name of the schooner. And the girl—I never knew who she was or where she was from. But she's haunted me ever since—I've tried to forget her, but it's no use. There are some things that one cannot forget."

The girl's eyes were wide, and her face flushed with excitement. Her slim fingers went into a small purse and came out with a thin gold cameo ring.

"My mother gave it to me just before she died," the girl said softly. "The band is worn so thin I'm afraid to wear it, but I always have it with me because she said that someday I might meet the young man who appeared so unexpectedly aboard her father's schooner. She said the man would see me and think of her. She never quite forgot——she always hoped——"

The fattish little explorer began to speak. Ivan Sanders pushed back from the table. Suddenly he felt something in the palm of his hand. Outside the room, he looked. The girl had given him the cameo ring —Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

All-American Father of '39 Finds Heaven in His Home

AP Feature Service

WEST PLAINS, Mo. —Guy Smith Buck, all-American father of 1939, believes the best Father's Day present he could wish for himself or any other father is to have his family in good health with him at home.

"I know of no grander thing any father could ask," he says. His wife, Arlene, is recovering from a serious illness.

The West Plains postoffice employe was chosen all-American father by sponsors of a radio program. He and his wife and their young son, Phil, were awarded a trip to New York and they still have happy memories of it.

Mrs. Buck and Phil are anxious to know who will receive the honor this year and if he will be as grand a dad as Buck is to his son.

To Buck, his family and his home always have come first. "For me," he said, "home is the most wonderful place in the world, and I'd rather be right here than anywhere else on earth."

When he's not at the postoffice, Buck usually is working around the house, in the yard or in his terraced garden.

In his spare time the last two years, he has cleared trees and underbrush from a four-acre tract he purchased just south of his garden. He intends to turn it into a fine pasture, although at present it boasts only a big pond, where he raises Indian runner ducks.

Buck and Phil hunt and fish together, go to baseball games or just putter around the garden. When Mrs. Buck plays bridge or entertains her club, they go to the movies or pal around during the evening.

Being an all-American father hasn't spoiled Buck. He still has his every-day friendliness and his big, happy laugh remains unchanged. He exchanges cheery greetings daily with practically every man, woman and child he meets on the streets or in the postoffice. Everyone knows him and everyone likes him.

American Father Is Grateful when Not Forgotten

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Father's day comes only once a year, and we have, most of us, much in the way of oversight to make up to him. It isn't that father is the "forgotten man", as some cynics insist, but he is often so good and generous that the family has a way of taking him for granted.

Last year I wrote a little piece about Father's day which must have borne fruit in the way of good wishes, even little gifts—things father had been wanting for a long time but was too modest to acquire by the simple game of hinting. Several fathers wrote me letters and said how happy these letters and remembrances had made them, and please not to forget a reminder next year.

Modesty is characteristic of the American father. No member of the family asks so little and gives so much, and in return for the home he provides—and it's a sweating job to keep it going these days—what does he get? What?

His Complete Reward

Well, sometimes he has a family that isn't ashamed of showing affection, who really love him and tell him so. That is father's complete reward—just a few words of appreciation. But sometimes families have a way of being lockjawed about what they feel for father. He doesn't lend himself to petting, he's almost as lockjawed about his feelings for his family as they are, so the precious words that would mean so much to him are never said.

Families have a way of forgetting—even good, devoted families. Mother has her household duties; there is so much more to be done each day than she realizes when the day begins. The children are distracted by school duties, or perhaps their first youthful dates.

The older children may have just married, and the new bonds cause the old ones to slacken just a little. So the thoughts of the young husband, or young wife, run along this groove: "This is Fathre's Day. We'll call him up, or something, but good gracious there's so little time."

Do it now! You may not always be able to call father up and tell him how much you care and how much you appreciate all that he has done for you.

Something He Wants

While you're about it, don't you think it would be well to get him a little gift? Something he has been wanting but grudges spending money on. Time is galloping. Write the letter, phone the affectionate message, send the gift while father is here to be made happy. Don't let father be the "forgotten man!"

There are many young men and women who have a natural feeling of love for their fathers, but they're often, as suggested in a previous paragraph, a little shy or lockjawed about telling him so. In almost every family, father has never been as close to the children as mother has been. It seems easier that children should show their love for mother more plainly. They don't understand that dad is love-hungry too: that he needs spontaneous affection to make him feel he isn't a failure.

Remember that while dad may not have amassed a six figure fortune, he has kept that little world of the family going, and as a family, there have been some mighty happy times under the parental roof. Make him feel he's been a "regular guy"—lovable, human, understanding.

Here's to father on Father's day.

The Child's Right to a Home

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a married woman and have a child of two years of age. Have been married for four years, but six months after I married I wished I hadn't. Then I figured if I had a child it would help me, but it didn't change matters. I've tried my best to be satisfied but no one knows of this turmoil in my mind.

We separated once for four months. I never missed him but we went back together because of the child. Not caring for my husband is making me sometimes even resent the child because I know I wouldn't be here if it weren't for him.

My husband claims he wouldn't stay with me either if it weren't for the child, and if we did separate he would never give me the baby. It's the child I'm worrying about. His father could give him much more than I could. I've tried to forget by concentrating on caring for my baby, thus forgetting my unhappiness, but I am not enough of the motherly type, I guess. I don't believe I can stand it for the rest of my life.

PUZZLED V. B.

I am glad that both you and your husband, while you are not happy together, recognize the responsibility of joint parenthood for the child. It seems to me, though the present divorce rate in this country might not bear me out, that a little child is the one to be considered when a home is to be broken. The child did not ask to come here. How do you know, if you divorced your husband, and married again, that the second marriage would be any more congenial than the first.

Women are often unhappy because time hangs too heavily on their hands. Why not take up something, something which would interest you and might prove profitable? Your letter is very intelligent, and if you were to take up some type of Vocational Training, I think you'd be happier. At least, give your marriage the benefit of this trial.

Wants To Call Girl

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I work in a hardware store and go to night school. I think I'd do better both in business and class work if I could occasionally see HER more than a few minutes at a time.

I've doped out that she must not be indifferent to me because she buys a good many more locks, nails, oil cans than I think she really needs. Also, she blushes when she makes purchases. The fly in the ointment is that she's well-to-do and I'm not. I'd like to ask her to go to the movies. Do you think I'd dare take the risk? SALESMAN

As this column has frequently reminded young men in your place, "He either fears his fate too much, or his deserts are small, That dares not put it to the touch, to gain or lose it all."

She may even turn you down at first, but if she continues to blush, better risk another invitation.

All-American Father of '39 Finds Heaven in His Home

AP Feature Service

WEST PLAINS, Mo. —Guy Smith Buck, all-American father of 1939, believes the best Father's Day present he could wish for himself or any other father is to have his family in good health with him at home.

"I know of no grander thing any father could ask," he says. His wife, Arlene, is recovering from a serious illness.

The West Plains postoffice employe was chosen all-American father by sponsors of a radio program. He and his wife and their young son, Phil, were awarded a trip to New York and they still have happy memories of it.

Mrs. Buck and Phil are anxious to know who will receive the honor this year and if he will be as grand a dad as Buck is to his son.

To Buck, his family and his home always have come first. "For me," he said, "home is the most wonderful place in the world, and I'd rather be right here than anywhere else on earth."

When he's not at the postoffice, Buck usually is working around the house, in the yard or in his terraced garden.

In his spare time the last two years, he has cleared trees and underbrush from a four-acre tract he purchased just south of his garden. He intends to turn it into a fine pasture, although at present it boasts only a big pond, where he raises Indian runner ducks.

Buck and Phil hunt and fish together, go to baseball games or just putter around the garden. When Mrs. Buck plays bridge or entertains her club, they go to the movies or pal around during the evening.

Being an all-American father hasn't spoiled Buck. He still has his every-day friendliness and his big, happy laugh remains unchanged. He exchanges cheery greetings daily with practically every man, woman and child he meets on the streets or in the postoffice. Everyone knows him and everyone likes him.

American Father Is Grateful when Not Forgotten

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Father's day comes only once a year, and we have, most of us, much in the way of oversight to make up to him. It isn't that father is the "forgotten man", as some cynics insist, but he is often so good and generous that the family has a way of taking him for granted.

Last year I wrote a little piece about Father's day which must have borne fruit in the way of good wishes, even litle gifts—things father had been wanting for a long time but was too modest to acquire by the simple game of hinting. Several fathers wrote me letters and said how happy these letters and remembrances had made them, and please not to forget a reminder next year.

Modesty is characteristic of the American father. No member of the family asks so little and gives so much, and in return for the home he provides—and it's a sweating job to keep it going these days—what does he get? What?

His Complete Reward

Well, sometimes he has a family that isn't ashamed of showing affection, who really love him and tell him so. That is father's complete reward—just a few words of appreciation. But sometimes families have a way of being lockjawed about what they feel for father. He doesn't lend himself to petting, he's almost as lockjawed about his feelings for his family as they are, so the precious words that would mean so much to him are never said.

Families have a way of forgetting —even good, devoted families. Mother has her household duties; there is so much more to be done each day than she realizes when the day begins. The children are distracted by school duties, or perhaps their first youthful dates.

The older children may have just married, and the new bonds cause the old ones to slacken just a little. So the thoughts of the young husband, or young wife, run along this groove: "This is Fathre's Day. We'll call him up, or something, but good gracious there's so little time."

Do it now! You may not always be able to call father up and tell him how much you care and how much you appreciate all that he has done for you.

Something He Wants

While you're about it, don't you think it would be well to get him a little gift? Something he has been wanting but grudges spending money on. Time is galloping. Write the letter, phone the affectionate message, send the gift while father is here to be made happy. Don't let father be the "forgotten man!"

There are many young men and women who have a natural feeling of love for their fathers, but they're often, as suggested in a previous paragraph, a little shy or lockjawed about telling him so. In almost every family, father has never been as close to the children as mother has been. It seems easier that children should show their love for mother more plainly. They don't understand that dad is love-hungry too; that he needs spontaneous affection to make him feel he isn't a failure.

Remember that while dad may not have amassed a six figure fortune, he has kept that little world of the family going, and as a family, there have been some mighty happy times under the parental roof. Make him feel he's been a "regular guy" —lovable, human, understanding.

Here's to father on Father's day.

The Child's Right to a Home

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a married woman and have a child of two years of age. Have been married for four years, but six months after I married I wished I hadn't. Then I figured if I had a child it would help me, but it didn't change matters. I've tried my best to be satisfied but no one knows of this turmoil in my mind.

We separated once for four months. I never missed him but we went back together because of the child. Not caring for my husband is making me sometimes even resent the child because I know I wouldn't be here if it weren't for him.

My husband claims he wouldn't stay with me either if it weren't for the child, and if we did separate he would never give me the baby. It's the child I'm worrying about. His father could give him much more than I could. I've tried to forget by concentrating on caring for my baby, thus forgetting my unhappiness, but I am not enough of the motherly type, I guess. I don't believe I can stand it for the rest of my life.

PUZZLED V. B.

I am glad that both you and your husband, while you are not happy together, recognize the responsibility of joint parenthood for the child. It seems to me, though the present divorce rate in this country might not bear me out, that a little child is the one to be considered when a home is to be broken. The child did not ask to come here. How do you know, if you divorced your husband, and married again, that the second marriage would be any more congenial than the first.

Women are often unhappy because time hangs too heavily on their hands. Why not take up something, something which would interest you and might prove profitable? Your letter is very intelligent, and if you were to take up some type of Vocational Training, I think you'd be happier. At least, give your marriage the benefit of this trial.

Wants To Call Girl

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I work in a hardware store and go to night school. I think I'd do better both in business and class work if I could occasionally see HER more than a few minutes at a time.

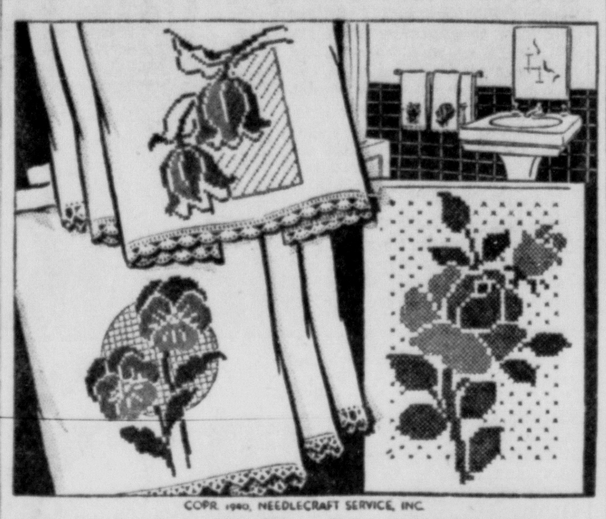

I've doped out that she must not be indifferent to me because she buys a good many more locks, nails, oil cans than I think she really needs. Also, she blushes when she makes purchases. The fly in the ointment is that she's well-to-do and I'm not. I'd like to ask her to go to the movies. Do you think I'd dare take the risk?

SALESMAN

As this column has frequently reminded young men in your place, "He either fears his fate too much, or his deserts are small, That dares not put it to the touch, to gain or lose it all."

She may even turn you down at first, but if she continues to blush, better risk another invitation.

Stocks Climb from Recent Lows with Rearmament Issues Setting the Pace

Steels, Chemicals, Motors and Aircrafts Gain Four to Nine Points

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, June 12 (AP)—Stocks climbed briskly away from their recent lows today in a market which showed hope for the defense of Paris and confidence in a brighter American industrial outlook.

Some of the leading steels, chemicals, motors and aircrafts—directly affected by the national rearmament program—gained four to nine points.

Turnover totaled 1,357,190 shares, the largest single session since May 23.

Commentators asserted that both Great Britain and France were forced to increase purchases here and that their cash balances in the United States were sufficient to pay their probable requirements for the next twelve months.

Prices held close to their best.

Gains of three or more points were registered among U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Inland Steel, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber preferred, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Case, Douglas, Wright Aeronautical, DuPont, Allied Chemical, Dow Chemical, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, American Telephone and American Woolen.

Chief advancers in the curb, where 181,000 shares were exchanged included American Aluminum, American Export Lines, Heyden Chemical, Colts Firearms, Jones and Laughlin Steel and Standard Oil of Ohio.

THRICE IN ONE HAND

HAVE YOU ever been squeezed three times in the same hand? Well, it doesn't happen often. When it does, the declarer may have done some very beautiful work, or possibly he merely ran out his winning tricks in the regular way and the squeezes occurred because of the way the cards happened to be situated. But suppose you made the squeezes possible by your own mistake in defense. Then how would you feel?

West led the heart 2, the 10 forcing the K. Declarer went to dummy with the club K and finessed the diamond Q to the K. West now considered that he had four more winning tricks in his hand, one in spades, two in hearts and one in diamonds. If he had led the spade K back, he would have taken at least a couple of them, but he made the worst possible return, the heart 4, which South took with the 9.

Four clubs were then run. West discarded two spades and his heart J, for squeeze number one, then on the last club tossed a diamond, thus being squeezed out of his only trick in that suit. South then cashed the diamond A, J and 9, the last of these squeezing West a third time. He was now down to his two high spades and his heart A. If he threw the heart, the Q would win. So he discarded one of the two spade honors. Declarer then went to the spade A, dropping the K, and took the final trick with the spade 10, making an unbid small slam.

Oystermen who "plant" their beds, cover the producing bottoms with layers of old shells. The young oysters attach themselves to these after passing the larval stage.

Hal Roach Comedy Is Offered at Maryland

Carole Landis, who made her bow under the Hal Roach banner as a prehistoric debutante, is co-starred with John Hubbard in Roach's new streamlined comedy, "Turnabout," now at the Maryland theater. Miss Landis and Hubbard are supported by a cast of players which includes Adolphe Menjou, William Gargan, Verree Teasdale, Mary Astor, Donald Meek and Margaret Roach.

"Turnabout" was directed by Hal Roach personally and its hilarious plot concerns the high jinks produced when Miss Landis as Mrs. Willows and Hubbard as her husband exchange sexes.

The svelte, shapely Miss Landis steps into her husband's oversize shoes and experiments with the problems faced by the male portion of humanity. Six-foot, broad-shouldered Hubbard becomes a fashionable society matron and flutters about at cocktail parties while his wife wears the pants—literally.

Spitalny Orchestra Is At Strand Today

NBC presents today on the Strand stage, Maurice Spitalny and his Design for Romance orchestra, which is heard over the nearby KDKA station. Spitalny, brother of the famous Phil, plays the same type of music that made the Hour of Charm program popular from coast to coast.

With the orchestra is Spitalny's Radio revue which features Fay Parker, the Southern Song Bird, Billy Leech, the famous Broadway comedian and singer, and Sidney and Ames, continental dance stars and tap-time rhythmakers.

The screen attraction will be William Boyd and Russell Hayden in "The Showdown," a new Hopalong Cassidy story.

Slim Gaillard, who brings his "Slam Band Jive Five" to the Strand tomorrow and Saturday, believes he is striking a new note in music. His theory as Slim explains it, is to anticipate public tastes and to keep just a step or two ahead of them. Then he tries to educate the people to the new ideas he has worked out. When the success enjoyed by "Flat-Foot Floogee," and its successors is considered, the obvious conclusion is that Slim knows whereof he speaks.

Just to make matters tough for the compilers of future dictionaries, Gaillard is creating a brand new language for the jitterbugs. This is to be known as "floogee language," and may give some clues as to the meanings of the titles and lyrics of Slim's numbers. Nevertheless, as the young composer himself put it, "You Can't Whistle the Words."

Also appearing with the Gaillard Band are the "Five Cabin Kids" stars of radio and screen. The screen show is Zorina and Richard Greene in "I Was a Adventuress".

Snerd and McCarthy Tangle in Picture

Chips, sawdust and splinters flew at Universal Studios when Mortimer Snerd and Charlie McCarthy tangled in a battle of barbed wit during the production of "Charlie McCarthy, Detective," now at the Garden theater in which Charlie and Edgar Bergen are starred with Mortimer (a farm boy from Snerdville).

Strictly bucolic in appearance and manner, Mortimer sports a mail-order suit, celluloid collar, brass collar button and a dickey. He has red hair, slightly crossed eyes, very buck teeth, a receding chin and a prominent Adams' apple. He made his first screen appearance in "Letter of Introduction," and repeated in "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man," and has been heard over the airwaves.

Joseph Calleia, who is featured in Columbia's "Golden Boy," began his dramatic career as a chorus boy in the stage play, "Have a Heart." Prior to that, he had toured Europe as a concert singer. Barbara Stanwyck, Adolphe Menjou and William Holden are starred in the screen dramatization of Clifford Odet's stage success. Rouben Mamoulian directed the film.

IN STRAND PICTURE

Glamorous Zorina and handsome Richard Greene star in the new Twentieth Century Fox picture "I Married an Adventuress," which shows at the Strand Friday and Saturday.

BOMB VICTIM

Alfred Ritter

First American civilian killed in the European war is Alfred Ritter, 8, killed by an air bomb during an Allied raid on Klingerstein, Germany, where he was visiting his grandmother. He was the son of Mrs. Maria Ritter, of New York City, a widow.

Double Feature Bill Is Listed by Embassy

The Embassy theater has another double bill listed for tomorrow.

One feature will be a western drama, "Outlaws' Paradise", with Tim McCoy.

The second feature will be Joe E. Brown in comedy, "Beware Spooks."

Also on the same program will be another chapter of "The Shadow."

"The Prisoner of Zenda" with Ronald Coleman, Madeleine Carroll, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and David Niven and "Mercy Plane," with James Dunn, are on today's bill.

In addition, the last chapter of the serial "Buck Rogers," is on the program.

Feature Has To Do With Trouble Shooters

"Tear Gas Squad," a behind-the-scenes story of New York's trouble-shooters, starring Dennis Morgan, John Payne and Gloria Dickson is on view at the New Liberty theater.

When night club singer Tommy McCabe, played by Denis Morgan, sings a number ridiculing the police force, he offends Jerry Sullivan, portrayed by Gloria Dickson, whose family reeks police force tradition. He bends over backwards trying to get back into her good graces, for he is quite taken with the girl.

Tommy joins the police force and his life is made most uncomfortable by Police Sergeant Bill Morrisey, played by John Payne, who is his rival for Jerry's effections. The younger rookie's cocky attitude is a bone to the department until his brother is murdered by a mob of gangsters. The shock sobers him and his new zeal causes his suspension from the force.

After another member of the force is murdered, the slayers are trapped in a waterfront warehouse. Bill is there ahead of the others and captured by the desperadoes, who demand a chance to escape for the young officer's life. Impulsively, Tommy climbs to the rear of the warehouse and takes the racketeers by surprise while the tear gas squad goes to work.

Stocks Climb from Recent Lows with Rearmament Issues Setting the Pace

Steels, Chemicals, Motors and Aircrafts Gain Four to Nine Points

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, June 12 (AP)—Stocks climbed briskly away from their recent lows today in a market which showed hope for the defense of Paris and confidence in a brighter American industrial outlook.

Some of the leading steels, chemicals, motors and aircrafts—directly affected by the national rearmament program—gained four to nine points.

Turnover totaled 1,357,190 shares, the largest single session since May 23.

Commentators asserted that both Great Britain and France were forced to increase purchases here and that their cash balances in the United States were sufficient to pay their probable requirements for the next twelve months.

Prices held close to their best.

Gains of three or more points were registered among U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Inland Steel, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber preferred, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Case, Douglas, Wright Aeronautical, DuPont, Allied Chemical, Dow Chemical, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, American Telephone and American Woolen.

Chief advancers in the curb, where 181,000 shares were exchanged included American Aluminum, American Export Lines, Heyden Chemical, Colts Firearms, Jones and Laughlin Steel and Standard Oil of Ohio.

THRICE IN ONE HAND

HAVE YOU ever been squeezed three times in the same hand? Well, it doesn't happen often. When it does, the declarer may have done some very beautiful work, or possibly he merely ran out his winning tricks in the regular way and the squeezes occurred because of the way the cards happened to be situated. But suppose you made the squeezes possible by your own mistake in defense. Then how would you feel?

West led the heart 2, the 10 forcing the K. Declarer went to dummy with the club K and finessed the diamond Q to the K. West now considered that he had four more winning tricks in his hand, one in spades, two in hearts and one in diamonds. If he had led the spade K back, he would have taken at least a couple of them, but he made the worst possible return, the heart 4, which South took with the 9.

Four clubs were then run. West discarded two spades and his heart J, for squeeze number one, then on the last club tossed a diamond, thus being squeezed out of his only trick in that suit. South then cashed the diamond A, J and 9, the last of these squeezing West a third time. He was now down to his two high spades and his heart A. If he threw the heart, the Q would win. So he discarded one of the two spade honors. Declarer then went to the spade A, dropping the K, and took the final trick with the spade 10, making an unbid small slam.

Oystermen who "plant" their beds, cover the producing bottoms with layers of old shells. The young oysters attach themselves to these after passing the larval stage.

Theaters Today

Hal Roach Comedy Is Offered at Maryland

Carole Landis, who made her bow under the Hal Roach banner as a prehistoric debutante, is co-starred with John Hubbard in Roach's new streamlined comedy, "Turnabout," now at the Maryland theater. Miss Landis and Hubbard are supported by a cast of players which includes Adolphe Menjou, William Gargan, Verree Teasdale, Mary Astor, Donald Meek and Margaret Roach.

"Turnabout" was directed by Hal Roach personally and its hilarious plot concerns the high jinks produced when Miss Landis as Mrs. Willows and Hubbard as her husband exchange sexes.

The svelte, shapely Miss Landis steps into her husband's oversize shoes and experiments with the problems faced by the male portion of humanity. Six-foot, broad-shouldered Hubbard becomes a fashionable society matron and flutters about at cocktail parties while his wife wears the pants—literally.

Spitalny Orchestra Is At Strand Today

NBC presents today on the Strand stage, Maurice Spitalny and his Design for Romance orchestra, which is heard over the nearby KDKA station. Spitalny, brother of the famous Phil, plays the same type of music that made the Hour of Charm program popular from coast to coast.

With the orchestra is Spitalny's Radio revue which features Fay Parker, the Southern Song Bird, Billy Leech, the famous Broadway comedian and singer, and Sidney and Ames, continental dance stars and tap-time rhythmakers.

The screen attraction will be William Boyd and Russell Hayden in "The Showdown," a new Hopalong Cassidy story.

Slim Gaillard, who brings his "Slam Band Jive Five" to the Strand tomorrow and Saturday, believes he is striking a new note in music. His theory as Slim explains it, is to anticipate public tastes and to keep just a step or two ahead of them. Then he tries to educate the people to the new ideas he has worked out. When the success enjoyed by "Flat-Foot Floogee," and its successors is considered, the obvious conclusion is that Slim knows whereof he speaks.

Just to make matters tough for the compilers of future dictionaries, Gaillard is creating a brand new language for the jitterbugs. This is to be known as "floogee language," and may give some clues as to the meanings of the titles and lyrics of Slim's numbers. Nevertheless, as the young composer himself put it, "You Can't Whistle the Words."

Also appearing with the Gaillard Band are the "Five Cabin Kids" stars of radio and screen. The screen show is Zorina and Richard Greene in "I Was a Adventuress."

Snerd and McCarthy Tangle in Picture

Chips, sawdust and splinters flew at Universal Studios when Mortimer Snerd and Charlie McCarthy tangled in a battle of barbed wit during the production of "Charlie McCarthy, Detective," now at the Garden theater in which Charlie and Edgar Bergen are starred with Mortimer (a farm boy from Snerdville).

Strictly bucolic in appearance and manner, Mortimer sports a mail-order suit, celluloid collar, brass collar button and a dickey. He has red hair, slightly crossed eyes, very buck teeth, a receding chin and a prominent Adams' apple. He made his first screen appearance in "Letter of Introduction," and repeated in "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man," and has been heard over the airwaves.

Joseph Calleia, who is featured in Columbia's "Golden Boy," began his dramatic career as a chorus boy in the stage play, "Have a Heart." Prior to that, he had toured Europe as a concert singer. Barbara Stanwyck, Adolphe Menjou and William Holden are starred in the screen dramatization of Clifford Odet's stage success. Rouben Mamoulian directed the film.

IN STRAND PICTURE

Glamorous Zorina and handsome Richard Greene star in the new Twentieth Century Fox picture "I Married an Adventuress," which shows at the Strand Friday and Saturday.

BOMB VICTIM

Alfred Ritter

First American civilian killed in the European war is Afired Ritter, 8, killed by an air bomb during an Allied raid on Klingerstein, Germany, where he was visiting his grandmother. He was the son of Mrs. Maria Ritter, of New York City, a widow.

Double Feature Bill Is Listed by Embassy

The Embassy theater has another double bill listed for tomorrow.

One feature will be a western drama, "Outlaws' Paradise", with Tim McCoy.

The second feature will be Joe E Brown in comedy, "Beware Spooks."

Also on the same program will be another chapter of "The Shadow."

"The Prisoner of Zenda" with Ronald Coleman, Madeleine Carroll, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and David Niven and "Mercy Plane," with James Dunn, are on today's bill.

In addition, the last chapter of the serial "Buck Rogers," is on the program.

Feature Has To Do With Trouble Shooters

"Tear Gas Squad," a behind-the-scenes story of New York's trouble-shooters, starring Dennis Morgan, John Payne and Gloria Dickson is on view at the New Liberty theater.

When night club singer Tommy McCabe, played by Denis Morgan, sings a number ridiculing the police force, he offends Jerry Sullivan, portrayed by Gloria Dickson, whose family reeks police force tradition. He bends over backwards trying to get back into her good graces, for he is quite taken with the girl.

Tommy joins the police force and his life is made most uncomfortable by Police Sergeant Bill Morrisey, played by John Payne, who is his rival for Jerry's effections. The younger rookie's cocky attitude is a bone to the department until his brother is murdered by a mob of gangsters. The shock sobers him and his new zeal causes his suspension from the force.

After another member of the force is murdered, the slayers are trapped in a waterfront warehouse. Bill is there ahead of the others and captured by the desperadoes, who demand a chance to escape for the young officer's life. Impulsively, Tommy climbs to the rear of the warehouse and takes the racketeers by surprise while the tear gas squad goes to work.

Second Battleship Will Be Launched Today for United States Navy

Shipyards waterfront at Brooklyn. In foreground lies the cruiser Helena, and beyond, within framework of the ways, the huge new battleship North Carolina is taking shape.

After 19-Year Building Truce U. S. Plans To Double Fleet Tonnage

By SIGRID ARNE
AP Feature Service Writer

America's two first super-dreadnaughts will be in the water in June: stream-lined, stepped-up challenges to anything that might approach our shores.

It'll be a year or more before they get their topside turrets, big guns, and are ready to do battle, but Uncle Sam has planned 'em to be as good as any man o' war that sails the Seven Seas.

They hold no secret magic for naval science. But they're geared up higher than anything we have now in battleships. They will be longer, heavier and faster. They'll each carry one more of the heavy 16-inch guns.

They'll be called the Washington and North Carolina. The Washington was christened June 1 at the Philadelphia navy yard and the North Carolina will be launched today at the Brooklyn navy yard.

And More to Come

They're the first of six battleships coming up rapidly: more rapidly even than first planned, because the navy recently stepped up work at the navy yards.

Shortly, Congress is expected to appropriate money for two more battleships, which will bring our total of new ones to eight. Each will cost in the neighborhood of $70,000,000 complete.

The June launchings will break a battleship building truce of more than 18 years. We launched our last one on Nov. 17, 1921, at the end of the World War building program.

Then we agreed to sea power limitation with other major powers; even scrapped 11 capital ships in the works. Nearest completion then was another ship to be called the Washington. She was made a test case, taken to the Virginia Capes and subjected to heavy fire from air bombs, torpedoes and shells. She told our navy men some valuable secrets before she sank. That knowledge went into new designs.

These new dreadnaughts will differ from battleships in many ways:

They will be 2,000 tons heavier (35,000 tons).

They will be 150 feet longer (750 feet).

They will have nine 16-inch guns—the heaviest known for battleships. We have three ships with eight 16-inchers apiece. The new battle-wagons have nine each. These guns can fire 2,100-pound shells about 20 land miles.

The new ships will mount some 20 secondary guns amidships: five are anti-aircraft.

Armor amidships will be 16-inch, the heaviest now in use. It will cover vital parts of the sides. Despite this increase in weight, the new boats are expected to make 28 knots an hour: nine faster than any we now have. That's more than 30 land miles an hour.

The navy says also they have "improved subdivisions and better fire control." But just how and why is the navy's business. The first provision is to make them stand up better after they've been hit. The second will make them more deadly shots.

Twenty Year's Work

These two ships have actually been in the works all the long years since the armament truce. The navy had from 50 to 70 designers working most of that time. They turned out 140 separate designs. Many designs were turned into models and tested. Finally, some of the innovations were built into existing ships.

We have 15 battleships in the fleet now. Three are over age. There's 464,000 tons in our whole fleet. The present building will almost double that, adding 390,000 tons.

Here's what's in the works now: 8 battleships, two aircraft carriers, six light cruisers, 14 submarines, 29 destroyers, two destroyer tenders, two mine-sweepers, one repair ship, one submarine tender, one fleet tug, six seaplane tenders, and one minelayer.

Ignore Silly Talk before Baby Comes

Expectant Mother May Often Have a Mixture of Emotions

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

An expectant mother may often have a mixture of emotions. Frequently she gets depressed just because of her physical discomfort. During these long months when she ought to have most diversions, social contacts and recreation, she may have the least. Barbaric customs among people who presume to be intelligent, add to her burdens by commanding her to stay at home and avoid the very persons, places and activities which for her health and the health of her child she needs most.

No wonder, then, she thinks a great deal about herself and entertains anxieties. She is more than ordinarily open to suggestion, and older women, who most often visit with her, may be pretty full of superstitions. The curious, brutal thing about superstitions is that nearly all of them are morbid; most carry penalties and not rewards.

Frightful Warnings

The expectant mother is told about those women who have had miscarriages and is given a long string of frightful warnings. She must listen also to the stories about mothers who have lost their lives during or soon after the confinement. When these savage, brainless busybodies have no more twaddle, they will chatter about baby markings. I wish there were some way to put all such women in jail for their sins against expectant mothers.

Only A Father

It may be presumptuous for me, a mere father, to offer advice on such matters. No man knows very much about the state of mind and emotions of an expectant mother.

Nevertheless, there have been careful scientific researches for evidences of such prenatal influences. Not one of them has found a grain of truth that anything the expectant mother sees or hears, has any influence whatsoever on the physical features or later mental traits of the child.

Of course, some children have birth marks, and occasionally one is born with some physical irregularities. A rare few, indeed, are born with defective brains. But the cause of such things is unknown, although it certainly is not traceable to mental or emotional experiences of the mother during pregnancy.

You Can Help

If you are an expectant mother, you may ask, "Can I make a child become a musician by listening to fine music during its pre-natal life? Can I, by looking long and often at great works of art, make it become an artist? Can I, by being very intellectual or religious now, endow my child with intellectual or religious zeal?

No, is the answer to all of these. You can, of course, by such procedure, increase your own interest in art, music, intellectual matters or religion. Then, after your child will have been born, you will be inclined to continue with these interests which your youngster, loving you, might imitate. Now is a good time to prepare yourself to be a good mother for your child, once he has been born.

"The Expectant Mother" is a pamphlet to be had free by writing to the Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C. If you want a list of names for boys and girls, with their meanings, write me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. In like manner, you may receive a simple chart to aid you in finding out how smart your baby is. Give his exact age.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

AT A QUARTER of eight Bill and Gayle met Jeremy Tucker at breakfast. Yesterday's unpleasantness was quite forgotten in the conversation. Bill and Gayle were in dry clothes again, and had a deal of fun telling Jeremy about the first swim in the pool.

"When I can get my clutches on an extra dollar," Bill said, thoughtlessly, "I'm going to buy some swim trunks."

Gayle's mouth suddenly dropped. She hadn't realized that Bill was as penniless as she. Neither of them drew any salary. They could charge most things here to "expenses," as Mr. Merrifield had told them to do, but then such added luxuries as swimming suits would perhaps be carrying "expenses" too far.

That situation had worried Gayle more and more. But after breakfast, when Jeremy was gone for a moment, she urged Bill to get the trunks and put it on the expense account. "I have thought about it," she encouraged. "Our first duty here is to live, to make Jeremy human and—and make this a cheerful place for Mr. Merrifield to be. It is not unfair to buy swim trunks, Bill, on expenses. Get them, at once. I shall buy me a suit the same way."

Bill considered that. In one sense it seemed like a luxury, but then he realized that practically all of his living here was a matter of luxury, and he said so to Gayle.

"I know, Bill," she spoke very seriously, "and we have to remember that what are luxuries to some people are necessities to others. You and I have been middle class, or even lower, in money, at times. Five dollars to you and me was a lot of money. It is about equal to 500 here, and if we are to give satisfaction in this queer job we have, we must lift our level of thinking accordingly."

He smiled at her then. "Gayle, you are the smartest girl I have ever known!"

"Hush, Bill. You have already told me this morning that I am pretty. Now you say I am smart. Do you want something from me?"

Bill sighed. He couldn't answer that one, ever.

"I'll get the suit. But I—look, will you let me buy yours?"

She looked her surprise. "Of course! But why?"

"I just want to. I have some ideas. I'll go downtown today."

They talked a bit more until they saw the "hired girls" coming. Bill had started calling them that when he wanted to tease, which was a great deal of the time. When they came into the house, however, there were only five.

"Lola missed the bus, I suppose," Adele Larraway said. "But we're here, anyhow. What's the program for today?"

"Any orders, Mr. Boss?" little Tempe Hyde spoke directly to Bill.

"Yes. Go back home and get your swimming suits. Spring is slipping toward summer, at least in temperature. The pool is ready. We'll meet there at 2 p. m. and talk about a new play."

"Another play! Grand! What's the name of it this time?"

"It's going to be called 'The Wit to Woo'," Bill stated.

They all looked at him. "Clever!" Gayle breathed. "Who wrote it?"

Bill smiled at them. "Matter of fact, I'm writing it myself. Been nursing the idea a long time. Started it in college and been re-vamping it this week, odd times."

"Wonderful, Bill!" Gayle's approval became a chorus with the others, and for a moment he was swamped with questions and enthusiastic girl talk.

Six girls can talk and laugh amazingly when they all turn loose at once. Jeremy heard the gaiety and came to join them. Gayle, noting that, told herself that it was a good sign. When they had first come here, Jeremy avoided company and companionship, now he actually was beginning to seek it. She worked him immediately into the conversation.

"Jeremy," she called brightly, "if you saw a pretty girl, would you have the wit to woo?"

He stopped to stare owl-eyed through his spectacles. "Oh, I say, you mean— I beg your pardon?"

The others burst into loud laughter then. Miraculously, he did not seem frightened by it; he just stood smiling, and waiting.

"'The Wit to Woo' is the title of the next play. Bill's writing it himself. Sit down while he tells us about it. Or were you going somewhere?"

"I was going downtown to purchase a radio and a phonograph. I—see here, Gayle, couldn't you, or all of you, go along? I doubt that I could make a wise selection. And we must choose records."

They all piled into the car that Bill had been using and, with Bill driving, headed for the business district. They might have been a group of college seniors because there was singing and shouting and "cutting up" in general en route.

When they had parked, Bill said, "You dizzy dames go on with Jeremy and get the music thing. I suggest a combination player, with automatic record-changing device, perhaps. Me, I'm buying a bathing suit. Two bathing suits. Meet you here in two hours."

When the two hours were up, however, only Jeremy and Gayle met Bill at the car. The other girls had gone to their homes for bathing suits, as suggested earlier.

"I just telephoned out to the house," Bill said. "Graham told me that Lola hadn't arrived."

Neither Jeremy nor Gayle answered. There didn't seem to be anything to say. But Bill, driving headed the car toward a strange part of the city. He drove quite a way before he parked in a shabby district and, offering no explanation because none was necessary, went into a rooming house and upstairs.

He was back in five minutes. "She's gone," he stated, soberly. "Moved out last night, the woman said. She doesn't know where." Bill stood there on the sidewalk for a long moment, just staring at nothing.

"We must find her," Gayle said, quietly.

"By all means," Jeremy agreed.

"I—see here, Bill, can't the landlady give us any sort of clue? Let me go back with you. Maybe we can learn something."

"No. Waste of time. Lola just pulled out, giving no explanation. And it's a big city to hunt somebody in."

They were driving back toward Montrose Manor before Bill spoke again. "If we do not hear from her by tonight, or tomorrow morning, we'll start looking."

"I wish we might start immediately," Jeremy urged. "But I feel that we will hear from her. I—I was—quite attracted to her."

Gayle looked quickly at him. She hadn't known that.

"She could recite poetry beautifully," Jeremy went on, almost as if he were speaking of one who had died. "She memorized it. She often recited it to me, in her delightful Latin way."

Again Gayle was surprised. A lot had been going on that she missed! She smiled wryly, then tightened her lips, sitting there in the front seat between the two boys. Jeremy spoke of Lola with genuine feeling. Poetry. Gayle hadn't known of that at all.

The new "music box" arrived at The Oaks ahead of them. It was already in the big room near the piano when the three came in, and Gayle spotted it instantly. She showed it to Bill.

"Sa-a-a-a-ay!" he breathed. "It's practically a boxcar! What did it set you back, Jeremy-"

"I beg pardon?"

"What'd she cost?"

Jeremy considered that, looking at the thing. "I, ah, neglected to inquire. I just told the man to deliver it, when Gayle and the other girls had selected it. It has a beautiful tone. There are a hundred records also."

Gayle, listening, smiled a little at Bill's normal inquiry. In hers and Bill's background, "what did it cost?" was always a first consideration. She knew that Bill was impressed by the way things were done among wealthy folk. Jeremy walked over and began playing the instrument.

"Because of your interest in trade and commerce, William," she teased whispering, "I will inform you. I saw the price that Jeremy overlooked."

"Good. How much?"

"Twenty-six fifty."

He stared.

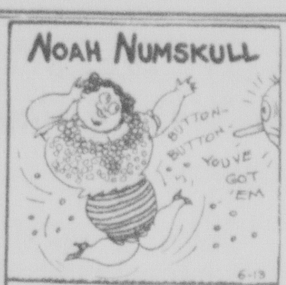

"I wasn't referring to individual dollars," she went on, loftily. "This is the best machine of its kind to be had anywhere. It also makes its own records, as the operator desires. It does practically everything around the home but bathe the baby."

"Lordy!" breathed he.

They enjoyed the magnificent recorded music only a minute, however, before Graham, the butler, hurried in. He beckoned at once to Bill and Gayle, drew them aside.

"It is most distressing, Miss Gayle, and Mr. Bailey, sir," Graham showed alarm on his correct old face. "But I must report another theft to you, of rather more importance this time!"

"Just like a man—with his superior air—he'd keep telling me any gasoline is the same as any other. But I argued there couldn't be much to lose, as long as they give you the Conoco Mile-Dial perfectly free.

"They certainly wouldn't tease you to take a thing that strictly counts up the mileage from their own gasoline, unless they're awfully sure of themselves. So I steered to the first Conoco station and in half a second the Mile-Dial was on the dash. Looks smart. Free, too.

"The total mileage on your speedometer goes on the Mile-Dial, so you know the start of your test. And you know the amount of your gasoline, by starting with just a full tank of Bronz-z-z. Then going along buying your 10 gallons more, or maybe 8, or 15 let's say, your Mile-Dial keeps count.

"Let's look. I'm up to 53 gallons. And... wait a second... it's 928 miles since starting this test of Conoco Bronz-z-z. Now watch this flip of the Mile-Dial. There!—it says better than 17½ miles from a gallon of Bronz-z, with a car this big. And do I hear any pooh-pooh?

"Even Henry won't say it's just luck any more, after all the different driving tests he's kept doing with this Mile-Dial... Luck?... It's just bad luck using mixed breeds of gasoline when Conoco Bronz-z-z is game to let you dial its true mileage. A smaller car like yours might even beat 17½.

"If you're a consumer that wants 36 inches in a yard, and real facts on everything, you certainly want the true count of mileage from your open-face Conoco Mile-Dial..."

The navy says also they have "improved subdivisions and better fire control." But just how and why is the navy's business. The first provision is to make them stand up better after they've been hit. The second will make them more deadly shots.

Twenty Year's Work

These two ships have actually been in the works all the long years since the armament truce. The navy had from 50 to 70 designers working most of that time. They turned out 140 separate designs. Many designs were turned into models and tested. Finally, some of the innovations were built into existing ships.

We have 15 battleships in the fleet now. Three are over age. There's 464,000 tons in our whole fleet. The present building will almost double that, adding 390,000 tons.

Here's what's in the works now: 8 battleships, two aircraft carriers, six light cruisers, 14 submarines, 29 destroyers, two destroyer tenders, two mine-sweepers, one repair ship, one submarine tender, one fleet tug, six seaplane tenders, and one minelayer.

Ignore Silly Talk before Baby Comes

Expectant Mother May Often Have a Mixture of Emotions

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

An expectant mother may often have a mixture of emotions. Frequently she gets depressed just because of her physical discomfort. During these long months when she ought to have most diversions, social contacts and recreation, she may have the least. Barbaric customs among people who presume to be intelligent, add to her burdens by commanding her to stay at home and avoid the very persons, places and activities which for her health and the health of her child she needs most.

No wonder, then, she thinks a great deal about herself and entertains anxieties. She is more than ordinarily open to suggestion, and older women, who most often visit with her, may be pretty full of superstitions. The curious, brutal thing about superstitions is that nearly all of them are morbid; most carry penalties and not rewards.

Frightful Warnings

The expectant mother is told about those women who have had miscarriages and is given a long string of frightful warnings. She must listen also to the stories about mothers who have lost their lives during or soon after the confinement. When these savage, brainless busybodies have no more twaddle, they will chatter about baby markings. I wish there were some way to put all such women in jail for their sins against expectant mothers.

Only A Father

It may be presumptuous for me, a mere father, to offer advice on such matters. No man knows very much about the state of mind and emotions of an expectant mother.

Nevertheless, there have been careful scientific researches for evidences of such prenatal influences. Not one of them has found a grain of truth that anything the expectant mother sees or hears, has any influence whatsoever on the physical features or later mental traits of the child.

Of course, some children have birth marks, and occasionally one is born with some physical irregularities. A rare few, indeed, are born with defective brains. But the cause of such things is unknown, although it certainly is not traceable to mental or emotional experiences of the mother during pregnancy.

You Can Help

If you are an expectant mother, you may ask, "Can I make a child become a musician by listening to fine music during its pre-natal life? Can I, by looking long and often at great works of art, make it become an artist? Can I, by being very intellectual or religious now, endow my child with intellectual or religious zeal?

No, is the answer to all of these. You can, of course, by such procedure, increase your own interest in art, music, intellectual matters or religion. Then, after your child will have been born, you will be inclined to continue with these interests which your youngster, loving you, might imitate. Now is a good time to prepare yourself to be a good mother for your child, once he has been born.

"The Expectant Mother" is a pamphlet to be had free by writing to the Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C. If you want a list of names for boys and girls, with their meanings, write me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. In like manner, you may receive a simple chart to aid you in finding out how smart your baby is. Give his exact age.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

AT A QUARTER of eight Bill and Gayle met Jeremy Tucker at breakfast. Yesterday's unpleasantness was quite forgotten in the conversation. Bill and Gayle were in dry clothes again, and had a deal of fun telling Jeremy about the first swim in the pool.

"When I can get my clutches on an extra dollar," Bill said, thoughtlessly, "I'm going to buy some swim trunks."

Gayle's mouth suddenly dropped. She hadn't realized that Bill was as penniless as she. Neither of them drew any salary. They could charge most things here to "expenses," as Mr. Merrifield had told them to do, but then such added luxuries as swimming suits would perhaps be carrying "expenses" too far.

That situation had worried Gayle more and more. But after breakfast, when Jeremy was gone for a moment, she urged Bill to get the trunks and put it on the expense account. "I have thought about it," she encouraged. "Our first duty here is to live, to make Jeremy human and—and make this a cheerful place for Mr. Merrifield to be. It is not unfair to buy swim trunks, Bill, on expenses. Get them, at once. I shall buy me a suit the same way."

Bill considered that. In one sense it seemed like a luxury, but then he realized that practically all of his living here was a matter of luxury, and he said so to Gayle.

"I know, Bill," she spoke very seriously, "and we have to remember that what are luxuries to some people are necessities to others. You and I have been middle class, or even lower, in money, at times. Five dollars to you and me was a lot of money. It is about equal to 500 here, and if we are to give satisfaction in this queer job we have, we must lift our level of thinking accordingly."

He smiled at her then. "Gayle, you are the smartest girl I have ever known!"

"Hush, Bill. You have already told me this morning that I am pretty. Now you say I am smart. Do you want something from me?"

Bill sighed. He couldn't answer that one, ever.

"I'll get the suit. But I—look, will you let me buy yours?"

She looked her surprise. "Of course! But why?"

"I just want to. I have some ideas. I'll go downtown today."

They talked a bit more until they saw the "hired girls" coming. Bill had started calling them that when he wanted to tease, which was a great deal of the time. When they came into the house, however, there were only five.

"Lola missed the bus, I suppose," Adele Larraway said. "But we're here, anyhow. What's the program for today?"

"Any orders, Mr. Boss?" little Tempe Hyde spoke directly to Bill.

"Yes. Go back home and get your swimming suits. Spring is slipping toward summer, at least in temperature. The pool is ready. We'll meet there at 2 p. m. and talk about a new play."

"Another play! Grand! What's the name of it this time?"

"It's going to be called 'The Wit to Woo'," Bill stated.

They all looked at him. "Clever!" Gayle breathed. "Who wrote it?"

Bill smiled at them. "Matter of fact, I'm writing it myself. Been nursing the idea a long time. Started it in college and been re-vamping it this week, odd times."

"Wonderful, Bill!" Gayle's approval became a chorus with the others, and for a moment he was swamped with questions and enthusiastic girl talk.

Six girls can talk and laugh amazingly when they all turn loose at once. Jeremy heard the gaiety and came to join them. Gayle, noting that, told herself that it was a good sign. When they had first come here, Jeremy avoided company and companionship, now he actually was beginning to seek it. She worked him immediately into the conversation.

"Jeremy," she called brightly, "if you saw a pretty girl, would you have the wit to woo?"

He stopped to stare owl-eyed through his spectacles. "Oh, I say, you mean— I beg your pardon?"

The others burst into loud laughter then. Miraculously, he did not seem frightened by it; he just stood smiling, and waiting.

"'The Wit to Woo' is the title of the next play. Bill's writing it himself. Sit down while he tells us about it. Or were you going somewhere?"

"I was going downtown to purchase a radio and a phonograph. I—see here, Gayle, couldn't you, or all of you, go along? I doubt that I could make a wise selection. And we must choose records."

They all piled into the car that Bill had been using and, with Bill driving, headed for the business district. They might have been a group of college seniors because there was singing and shouting and "cutting up" in general en route.

When they had parked, Bill said, "You dizzy dames go on with Jeremy and get the music thing. I suggest a combination player, with automatic record-changing device, perhaps. Me, I'm buying a bathing suit. Two bathing suits. Meet you here in two hours."

When the two hours were up, however, only Jeremy and Gayle met Bill at the car. The other girls had gone to their homes for bathing suits, as suggested earlier.

"I just telephoned out to the house," Bill said. "Graham told me that Lola hadn't arrived."

Neither Jeremy nor Gayle answered. There didn't seem to be anything to say. But Bill, driving headed the car toward a strange part of the city. He drove quite a way before he parked in a shabby district and, offering no explanation because none was necessary, went into a rooming house and upstairs.

He was back in five minutes. "She's gone," he stated, soberly. "Moved out last night, the woman said. She doesn't know where." Bill stood there on the sidewalk for a long moment, just staring at nothing.

"We must find her," Gayle said, quietly.

"By all means," Jeremy agreed.

"I—see here, Bill, can't the landlady give us any sort of clue? Let me go back with you. Maybe we can learn something."

"No. Waste of time. Lola just pulled out, giving no explanation. And it's a big city to hunt somebody in."

They were driving back toward Montrose Manor before Bill spoke again. "If we do not hear from her by tonight, or tomorrow morning, we'll start looking."

"I wish we might start immediately," Jeremy urged. "But I feel that we will hear from her. I—I was—quite attracted to her."

Gayle looked quickly at him. She hadn't known that.

"She could recite poetry beautifully," Jeremy went on, almost as if he were speaking of one who had died. "She memorized it. She often recited it to me, in her delightful Latin way."

Again Gayle was surprised. A lot had been going on that she missed! She smiled wryly, then tightened her lips, sitting there in the front seat between the two boys. Jeremy spoke of Lola with genuine feeling. Poetry. Gayle hadn't known of that at all.

The new "music box" arrived at The Oaks ahead of them. It was already in the big room near the piano when the three came in, and Gayle spotted it instantly. She showed it to Bill.

"Sa-a-a-a-ay!" he breathed. "It's practically a boxcar! What did it set you back, Jeremy-"

"I beg pardon?"

"What'd she cost?"

Jeremy considered that, looking at the thing. "I, ah, neglected to inquire. I just told the man to deliver it, when Gayle and the other girls had selected it. It has a beautiful tone. There are a hundred records also."

Gayle, listening, smiled a little at Bill's normal inquiry. In hers and Bill's background, "what did it cost?" was always a first consideration. She knew that Bill was impressed by the way things were done among wealthy folk. Jeremy walked over and began playing the instrument.

"Because of your interest in trade and commerce, William," she teased whispering, "I will inform you. I saw the price that Jeremy overlooked."

"Good. How much?"

"Twenty-six fifty."

He stared.

"I wasn't referring to individual dollars," she went on, loftily. "This is the best machine of its kind to be had anywhere. It also makes its own records, as the operator desires. It does practically everything around the home but bathe the baby."

"Lordy!" breathed he.

They enjoyed the magnificent recorded music only a minute, however, before Graham, the butler, hurried in. He beckoned at once to Bill and Gayle, drew them aside.

"It is most distressing, Miss Gayle, and Mr. Bailey, sir." Graham showed alarm on his correct old face. "But I must report another theft to you, of rather more importance this time!"

HENRY DEAR IS EATING CROW since I got him a MILE-DIAL...FREE

"Just like a man—with his superior air—he'd keep telling me any gasoline is the same as any other. But I argued there couldn't be much to lose, as long as they give you the Conoco Mile-Dial perfectly free.

"They certainly wouldn't tease you to take a thing that strictly counts up the mileage from their own gasoline, unless they're awfully sure of themselves. So I steered to the first Conoco station and in half a second the Mile-Dial was on the dash. Looks smart. Free, too.

"The total mileage on your speedometer goes on the Mile-Dial, so you know the start of your test. And you know the amount of your gasoline, by starting with just a full tank of Bronz-z-z. Then going along buying your 10 gallons more, or maybe 8, or 15 let's say, your Mile-Dial keeps count.

"Let's look. I'm up to 53 gallons. And... wait a second... it's 928 miles since starting this test of Conoco Bronz-z-z. Now watch this flip of the Mile-Dial. There!—it says better than 17½ miles from a gallon of Bronz-z, with a car this big. And do I hear any pooh-pooh?

"Even Henry won't say it's just luck any more, after all the different driving tests he's kept doing with this Mile-Dial... Luck?... It's just bad luck using mixed breeds of gasoline when Conoco Bronz-z-z is game to let you dial its true mileage. A smaller car like yours might even beat 17½.

"If you're a consumer that wants 36 inches in a yard, and real facts on everything, you certainly want the true count of mileage from your open-face Conoco Mile-Dial..."

TODAY'S GARDENGRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Distributed by Central Press Association)

In certain localities, asparagus is seriously injured by the asparagus beetles. There are two species of the beetles, both about ¼ inch long. It is believed that these beetles feed only upon asparagus.

The common asparagus beetle is illustrated in enlarged form in today's Garden-Graph. It has a dark metallic-blue underbody and head, and its wings are marked with yellow and red. This beetle lays its eggs on the tender asparagus shoots, as shown in the drawing. The only control at this time is to keep the shoots cut every day, thus removing the eggs before they can hatch.

Still another beetle which atttacks asparagus is the twelve-spotted beetle. It is orange-colored, and has six black spots on each wing.

Once the cutting period for asparagus is past both of these beetles can be controlled by spraying or dusting the asparagus with arsenate of lead. Use three pounds of arsenate of lead to fifty gallons of water for spraying. When dusting mix the arsenate of lead with four times as much hydrated lime.

SALLY'S SALLIES

Some people use a gallon of words to express a teaspoonful of thought.

The first neutral to suffer from submarine warfare in the first World War was the Norwegian steamship Belridge, torpedoed without warning on her way from New Orleans to Amsterdam.

Brazil Proclaims Neutrality, Vargos Explains Position

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 12 (AP)—President Getulio Vargas, Brazil's dictator ruler, proclaimed his country's neutrality in the Allied-Italian war in a short decree preceded by a vigorous speech interpreted as a defense of totalitarian ways.

"We are marching toward a future different from all we know in economic, political and social organization and we feel that old systems and antiquated formulas have entered a decline," he said.

"It is not, however, as pessimists and stubborn conservatives pretend the end of civilization, but the beginning—tumultuous and fecund—of the new era."

Vargas spoke beneath the guns of the battleship Minagerase in an address high-lighting the seventy-fifth anniversary of Brazil's naval victory over neighboring Paraguay in the battle of Richuelo.

Department Store Sales Advance

RICHMOND, Va., June 12 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond has reported that department store sales in the Fifth Federal Reserve district for the January-May period of 1940 were 6.2 per cent above the same period of 1939.

May sales in the district, which embraces South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, the District of Columbia, Maryland and most of West Virginia, were 4.4 per cent above May of the previous year.

All but eight of the fifty-seven reporting stores showed larger figures last month than for May of 1939, the bank's statistics and research department stated.

Virginia's percentages of increase in May, and in the January-May period, over last year's corresponding figures were 4.1 and 4.6; West Virginia, 16.5 and 13.1; North Carolina, 11.4 and 8.7; South Carolina, 13.9 and 11.6.

Cities—Charleston, S. C., 27.2 and 13.5; Charleston, W. Va., 16.6 and 12.1; Huntington, W. Va., 11.6 and 5.

TODAY'S GARDENGRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Distributed by Central Press Association)

In certain localities, asparagus is seriously injured by the asparagus beetles. There are two species of the beetles, both about ¼ inch long. It is believed that these beetles feed only upon asparagus.

The common asparagus beetle is illustrated in enlarged form in today's Garden-Graph. It has a dark metallic-blue underbody and head, and its wings are marked with yellow and red. This beetle lays its eggs on the tender asparagus shoots, as shown in the drawing. The only control at this time is to keep the shoots cut every day, thus removing the eggs before they can hatch.

Still another beetle which atttacks asparagus is the twelve-spotted beetle. It is orange-colored, and has six black spots on each wing.

Once the cutting period for asparagus is past both of these beetles can be controlled by spraying or dusting the asparagus with arsenate of lead. Use three pounds of arsenate of lead to fifty gallons of water for spraying. When dusting mix the arsenate of lead with four times as much hydrated lime.

SALLY'S SALLIES

Some people use a gallon of words to express a teaspoonful of thought.

The first neutral to suffer from submarine warfare in the first World War was the Norwegian steamship Belridge, torpedoed without warning on her way from New Orleans to Amsterdam.

Brazil Proclaims Neutrality, Vargos Explains Position

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 12 (AP)—President Getulio Vargas, Brazil's dictator ruler, proclaimed his country's neutrality in the Allied-Italian war in a short decree preceded by a vigorous speech interpreted as a defense of totalitarian ways.

"We are marching toward a future different from all we know in economic, political and social organization and we feel that old systems and antiquated formulas have entered a decline," he said.

"It is not, however, as pessimists and stubborn conservatives pretend the end of civilization, but the beginning—tumultuous and fecund—of the new era."

Vargas spoke beneath the guns of the battleship Minagerase in an address high-lighting the seventy-fifth anniversary of Brazil's naval victory over neighboring Paraguay in the battle of Richuelo.

Department Store Sales Advance

RICHMOND, Va., June 12 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond has reported that department store sales in the Fifth Federal Reserve district for the January-May period of 1940 were 6.2 per cent above the same period of 1939.

May sales in the district, which embraces South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, the District of Columbia, Maryland and most of West Virginia, were 4.4 per cent above May of the previous year.

All but eight of the fifty-seven reporting stores showed larger figures last month than for May of 1939, the bank's statistics and research department stated.

Virginia's percentages of increase in May, and in the January-May period, over last year's corresponding figures were 4.1 and 4.6; West Virginia, 16.5 and 13.1; North Carolina, 11.4 and 8.7; South Carolina, 13.9 and 11.6.

Cities—Charleston, S. C., 27.2 and 13.5; Charleston, W. Va., 16.6 and 12.1; Huntington, W. Va., 11.6 and 5.

Class Night

Despite the inclement weather, a large crowd was present at the annual high school class night, held in the auditorium last evening. Belva Michael, salutatorian, extended the welcome in behalf of the seniors.

The stage was arranged as a ship. The passengers and crew were the forty-eight graduates, with Harry Patton, president of the senior class as captain. The four-year cruise, representing the high school course, was most interesting with the presentation of gifts, with humorous rhymes attached, apropos to each member of the class, including the faculty. Bayard Keller appeared as a crystal gazer and read the class prophecy. The mates, Robert Folk, Wayne Durst, Aza Stanton and Elwood Bevans, sang a quartet number and dances and group singing were also featured. Mrs. Evangeline Glenn was the piano accompanist.

Elmer Lewis, valedictorian, closed the program with a farewell to his classmates.

Georgia Negro Convict Is Captured After He Overpowers Two Officers

Car Is Wrecked in Ohio after State Patrolman Gave Chase

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., June 12 (AP)—A short, bullet-punctuated chase ended today in the capture of an escaped George negro convict near Georgetown, Ohio, a few hours after he overpowered two officers on Route 52 eight miles east of here, chained them to a tree and fled with their automobile and guns.

The car was wrecked on a curve about forty miles east of Cincinnati after Sergeant E. P. Webb of the Ohio Highway Patrol spotted the Georgia license plates and gave chase.

Captain J. D. Ragsdale of the Fulton county (Atlanta) Georgia identification bureau, and Sergeant C. E. Lyle identified the negro as Benjamin Hughes, alias Hightower, 25. Hughes fled a Georgia prison camp in 1935 while serving a thirty-five to seventy year sentence for robbery. He had been arrested in Detroit and the officers were returning him to Georgia.

Ragsdale told Huntington police that Hughes was riding alone and handcuffed in the back seat when the attack took place on the Wayne highway.

"Suddenly," said Ragsdale, "he loped his arms around Lyle's neck and grabbed the gun in his holster. I jammed on the brakes, but it was too late. My gun was in my grip."

Lyle said Hughes compelled them to unlock his shackles and a chain around his arms. Then, he related, he forced them over a bank several hundred feet off the highway and used the chain and handcuffs to bind them to a tree. They worked loose "although it was tickish business" and hitch-hiked back to Huntington.

Police spread the alarm and Joe L. Wilson, assistant manager of the Huntington-Ohio bridge, notified officers a man answering the convict's description had crossed the bridge into Ohio after inquiring the way to Cincinnati.

Sergeant Webb of the Ohio Patrol spotted the negro on Route 125 near Georgetown, and chased him.

"The negro nearly wrecked the cruiser by jamming on the brakes," Webb related. "I stopped abreast of him and he covered me with a gun—one stolen from the Georgia officers. I backed up and he started ahead. I fired one shot, then his car struck a guard rail on a curve and was wrecked. He jumped out and I had him."

Ragsdale and Lyle left immediately for the Ohio Highway barracks at Wilmington, where Hughes was held.

Car Is Wrecked in Ohio after State Patrolman Gave Chase

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., June 12 (AP)—A short, bullet-punctuated chase ended today in the capture of an escaped George negro convict near Georgetown, Ohio, a few hours after he overpowered two officers on Route 52 eight miles east of here, chained them to a tree and fled with their automobile and guns.

The car was wrecked on a curve about forty miles east of Cincinnati after Sergeant E. P. Webb of the Ohio Highway Patrol spotted the Georgia license plates and gave chase.

Captain J. D. Ragsdale of the Fulton county (Atlanta) Georgia identification bureau, and Sergeant C. E. Lyle identified the negro as Benjamin Hughes, alias Hightower, 25. Hughes fled a Georgia prison camp in 1935 while serving a thirty-five to seventy year sentence for robbery. He had been arrested in Detroit and the officers were returning him to Georgia.

Ragsdale told Huntington police that Hughes was riding alone and handcuffed in the back seat when the attack took place on the Wayne highway.

"Suddenly," said Ragsdale, "he loped his arms around Lyle's neck and grabbed the gun in his holster. I jammed on the brakes, but it was too late. My gun was in my grip."

Lyle said Hughes compelled them to unlock his shackles and a chain around his arms. Then, he related, he forced them over a bank several hundred feet off the highway and used the chain and handcuffs to bind them to a tree. They worked loose "although it was ticklish business" and hitch-hiked back to Huntington.

Police spread the alarm and Joe L. Wilson, assistant manager of the Huntington-Ohio bridge, notified officers a man answering the convict's description had crossed the bridge into Ohio after inquiring the way to Cincinnati.

Sergeant Webb of the Ohio Patrol spotted the negro on Route 125 near Georgetown, and chased him.

"The negro nearly wrecked the cruiser by jamming on the brakes," Webb related. "I stopped abreast of him and he covered me with a gun —one stolen from the Georgia officers. I backed up and he started ahead. I fired one shot, then his car struck a guard rail on a curve and was wrecked. He jumped out and I had him."

Ragsdale and Lyle left immediately for the Ohio Highway barracks at Wilmington, where Hughes was held.

Plane Engineer Says Air-Cooled Motor Is Finest

Criticizes Plans for Using Super-Liquid Cooled Engine

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., June 12 (AP)—William B. Stout, of Detroit, urged tonight that the government order fighting planes designed simply enough that they will be easy to fly and see to it that there is no "red tape" connected with their manufacture.

At the same time the airplane engineer, designer and manufacturer criticized plans for using a super-liquid cooled engine in the planes, asserting:

"The air-cooled motor is an American invention and development and today there is no finer engine built. x x x it must be our native inferiority complex that dictates a European development, since we think anything foreign is better than our own."

Stout, who is attending the summer meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers, answered the criticism of some engineers of possible "freezing" of design in mass production by saying that certain obstacles must be endured in the light of necessity.

"It is essential," he declared, "to have large colume background in planes and engines and most vital of all, planes must be of such simple design that they will not be hard to fly."

This, he added, would overcome the need of quickly trained pilots.

"Not more than one year should be taken to teach a new flyer to handle these mass-produced ships," Stout said.

Regarding Henry Ford's promise to 1,000 planes a day, Stout said:

"There is no better man or plant for the job."

So far as the government orders are concerned, Stout said, "our problem would be the same as Henry Ford's. We couldn't stand any government interference or red tape."

"Give us a plane to make, tell us how many, then leave us alone."

X-Ray Clinic on Wheels Is Now In Operation

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 12. (AP)—An x-ray clinic on wheels was introduced into the State Health department's fight against tuberculosis today in an effort to find as many cases as possible before they reach anvanced stages.

The 35-foot truck-trailer will carry x-ray equipment into every section of the state, permitting any resident to have the pictures taken at small cost.

Dr. W. E. McIlvain of Moundsville, in charge of the equipment, said no itinerary has been arranged but that probably the first trip would be made next week into Fayette county.

Through a new process, the x-rays are taken through an attachment with a fluoroscope in about three minutes. A small office, a room for taking the pictures and a darkroom for developing them have been set up in the trailer.

Dr. McIlvain emphasized that the Health Department, which is being assisted by the West Virginia Tuberculosis Association, will work with family physicians.

Plane Engineer Says Air-Cooled Motor Is Finest

Criticizes Plans for Using Super-Liquid Cooled Engine

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., June 12 (AP)—William B. Stout, of Detroit, urged tonight that the government order fighting planes designed simply enough that they will be easy to fly and see to it that there is no "red tape" connected with their manufacture.

At the same time the airplane engineer, designer and manufacturer criticized plans for using a super-liquid cooled engine in the planes, asserting:

"The air-cooled motor is an American invention and development and today there is no finer engine built. x x x it must be our native inferiority complex that dictates a European development, since we think anything foreign is better than our own."

Stout, who is attending the summer meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers, answered the criticism of some engineers of possible "freezing" of design in mass production by saying that certain obstacles must be endured in the light of necessity.

"It is essential," he declared, "to have large colume background in planes and engines and most vital of all, planes must be of such simple design that they will not be hard to fly."

This, he added, would overcome the need of quickly trained pilots.

"Not more than one year should be taken to teach a new flyer to handle these mass-produced ships," Stout said.

Regarding Henry Ford's promise to 1,000 planes a day, Stout said:

"There is no better man or plant for the job."

So far as the government orders are concerned, Stout said, "our problem would be the same as Henry Ford's. We couldn't stand any government interference or red tape."

"Give us a plane to make, tell us how many, then leave us alone."

Omens of disaster hover ominously over France to raise a grave question of her physical ability to fight on for long against her German foe, however great her courage or the valor of her troops.

The German attack that seems gaining momentum hourly. Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Reynaud met somewhere in France with France's war captains, Petain and Weygand, to reach undisclosed decision.

Whatever their nature, those decisions were based necessarily on an utterly realistic review of the obvious plight of France after only eight days of a German attack unparalleled in scope and ferocity.

Within hours of that meeting came fresh German victory claims. Berlin reported that the assault had been carried to the threshold of Paris in the center; that steelfingers had reached across the Seine and the Marne west and east of the city, slashed in behind France's Argonne Forest-Maginot line ramparts in the Champaigne, and foced surrender of 20,000 Franco-British troops on the channel.

From Tours, to which the French government retreated from Paris, came admission that the Marne line was already punctured a score of miles from Paris, although the French added that on the equally critical Seine line to the west, their defenses were holding.

The exact contours of the 200-mile battlefront are uncertain. Nor is it yet clear whether remaining French or Franco-British forces on its extreme west flank have escaped southward to reform behind the lower Seine. Berlin's official claim that 20,000 Allied troops and their commanders surrendered at St. Valery on the channel to escape annihilation gave a glimpse of what may be happening.

Presumably, in conformity with the French retirement to the Marne-Oise Valley-Seine line, forces, last standing in the Beavvais region, east of the German bulge to the Seine, were also withdrawn to the immedate defenses of Paris. With the enemy at Senlis and along the Oise, however, the suburbs of Paris are now in range of medium German guns.

Northeastward of the German crossing of the Marne on the Meaux-Chateau Thierry sector, another Nazi thrust in the Champaigne seems making progress.

Sooner or later France must make the ultimate decision—whether to defend Paris at all, or to fall back to the Loire-Seine line south of the city. Reynaud and his generals must weigh in the balance the psychological effect of the surrender of Paris to the enemy.

It seems more clear hour by hour that the German objective is not Paris, but the army of France. The pattern of the vast 200 mile attack proves that.

Their purpose is obviously to pinch Paris off both East and West, even leave it behind in French hands perhaps as they left forts in Liege and Namur, to continue their campaign of extermination against French armies.

France and her British ally are face to face with the ultimate decision whether France is to submit to save lives, or fight on to a bloody end.

French Bred Horse Is Derby Winner

NEWMARKET, Eng., June 12 (AP)—Pont L'Eveque, French-bred horse owned and trained by Fred Darling, showed a clear pair of heels today to fifteen of the best three-year-olds England could muster in the wartime version of the classic derby.

There was none of the carnival atmosphere that traditionally surrounded the derby when run at its Epsom Home. The crowd was only about a quarter of that which attends in peacetime, variously estimated at a quarter to a half-million. But what was lacking in this regard was more than made up by Pont L'Eveque's display of racing courage.

With Jockey Sam Wragg in the saddle, Pont L'Eveque took command a half-mile from home and finished three lengths in front of thye wast closing Asa Khan's Turkham.. Lord Derby's favored Lighthouse II, which closed at eighty-five to forty, just missed runner-up honors by a head.

Pont L'Eveque closed at ten to one in the betting and was clocked in two minutes, thirty and four-fifths seconds. Turkham was held at 100 to seven.

The French horse always was prominent in the running. He was just behind Romulus at the half-mile post and took the lead after going another four furlongs with Lighthouse and Black Toni trailing closely.

It was a race of surprises. The winners wasn't even entered in the original derby. Although Lighthouse was considered to have more stamina than any other in the field, it was in that department that he failed.

Gordon Richards, England's champion jockey, missed a chance to ride his first derby winner by selecting the wrong mount. He was offered the mount on Pont L'Eveque but chose to ride the Maharajah of Kolhapur's Tant Mieux, which finished fourth.

Dodgers Down Pirates 5 to 4

PITTSBURGH, June 12 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers held to their narrow lead in the National League championship race tonight by chasing Fireman Mace Brown with a two-run eighth inning rally which beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5 to 4 before 20,179 fans.

Ernie Koy, who was traded today with three other players and a reputed $100,000 or more cash to St. Louis for Ducky Medwick and Curt Davis, scored the tying fourth run after being inserted as a pinch runner for Joe Vosmik.

Koy counted when Babe Phelps doubled, but the catcher was out trying to reach third. Dolph Camilli then singled and came home with the winning run on Joe Gallagher's double.

Vince Di Maggio poled his first homer of the season in the eighth for the Pirates' lost cause.

Ralph Dyer Voted Beall's Varsity Club Sports Prize

Frostburg, June 12.—A trophy emblematic of outstanding athletic during the 1939-40 year will be awarded to Ralph Dyer at the commencement exercises here Friday evening.

Dyer, a senior three-sport star, was elected Beall's outstanding athlete of the year last night at the annual dinner meeting of the Beall Varsity Club. About 25 attended the dinner held at the Gunter Service Station dining room.

Dyer has earned six letters, two each in soccer, basketball and baseball, at Beall. He was a star goalie in soccer, played at guard in basketball and handled the second base assignment this year on Beall's championship baseball team.

This is the third year that the award has been made. Harold Conrad was the 1938 winner and Wayne Layman received the prize last spring.

State Board of Education medals awarded for the county scholastic baseball championship and baseball letters were presented at last night's affair. Four senior three-sport stars, Dyer, Bob Harvey, Bill Prichard and Bill Burkett, also received jackets.

James Brode was elected president of the Varsity Club for next year. Other new officers are Orville Jackson, vice-president; Al Harvey treasurer, and Kenneth Williams, secretary.

Casey, of Dodgers, Off To See Arm Specialist

PITTSBURGH, June 12.—A shortage of dependable pitchers is beginning to plague the Dodgers, whose scheduled night game with the Pirates was rained out Tuesday.

Following word of the postponement came the news that Hugh Casey, the big right-hander from Georgia, would depart immediately for Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore to have his arm examined by Dr. George F. Bennett. Casey, whose recent form had led Leo Durocher to believe that he had recovered his 1939 technique, was withdrawn from Monday's game with the Pirates after working one inning.

On Sunday Casey felt pain in his arm while pitching against the Reds in Cincinnati. He had remained on the mound that day and finally beat Bucky Walters in the eleventh inning.

"I was able to work the soreness out then," said Casey. "I warmed up more than I usually do before each inning. Yesterday it was a different story. I couldn't get the soreness out."

Just what Durocher will do if Casey is lost to the team for some time remained a question. It is an established fact that the Dodgers were looking for a pitcher before Casey's arm troubled him. At the present time the acquisition of another hurler seems to be an absolute necessity.

French Bred Horse Is Derby Winner

NEWMARKET, Eng., June 12 (AP)—Pont L'Eveque, French-bred horse owned and trained by Fred Darling, showed a clear pair of heels today to fifteen of the best three-year-olds England could muster in the wartime version of the classic derby.

There was none of the carnival atmosphere that traditionally surrounded the derby when run at its Epsom Home. The crowd was only about a quarter of that which attends in peacetime, variously estimated at a quarter to a half-million. But what was lacking in this regard was more than made up by Pont L'Eveque's display of racing courage.

With Jockey Sam Wragg in the saddle, Pont L'Eveque took command a half-mile from home and finished three lengths in front of thye wast closing Asa Khan's Turkham. Lord Derby's favored Lighthouse II, which closed at eighty-five to forty, just missed runner-up honors by a head.

Pont L'Eveque closed at ten to one in the betting and was clocked in two minutes, thirty and four-fifths seconds. Turkham was held at 100 to seven.

The French horse always was prominent in the running. He was just behind Romulus at the half-mile post and took the lead after going another four furlongs with Lighthouse and Black Toni trailing closely.

It was a race of surprises. The winners wasn't even entered in the original derby. Although Lighthouse was considered to have more stamina than any other in the field, it was in that department that he failed.

Gordon Richards, England's champion jockey, missed a chance to ride his first derby winner by selecting the wrong mount. He was offered the mount on Pont L'Eveque but chose to ride the Maharajah of Kolhapur's Tant Mieux, which finished fourth.

Dodgers Down Pirates 5 to 4

PITTSBURGH, June 12 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers held to their narrow lead in the National League championship race tonight by chasing Fireman Mace Brown with a two-run eighth inning rally which beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5 to 4 before 20,179 fans.

Ernie Koy, who was traded today with three other players and a reputed $100,000 or more cash to St. Louis for Ducky Medwick and Curt Davis, scored the tying fourth run after being inserted as a pinch runner for Joe Vosmik.

Koy counted when Babe Phelps doubled, but the catcher was out trying to reach third. Dolph Camilli then singled and came home with the winning run on Joe Gallagher's double.

Vince Di Maggio poled his first homer of the season in the eighth for the Pirates' lost cause.

OMAHA, Neb., June 12. (AP)—Roy Davis' dream came true today—to the tune of $2,080.

Ralph Dyer Voted Beall's Varsity Club Sports Prize

Frostburg, June 12.—A trophy emblematic of outstanding athletic during the 1939-40 year will be awarded to Ralph Dyer at the commencement exercises here Friday evening.

Dyer, a senior three-sport star, was elected Beall's outstanding athlete of the year last night at the annual dinner meeting of the Beall Varsity Club. About 25 attended the dinner held at the Gunter Service Station dining room.

Dyer has earned six letters, two each in soccer, basketball and baseball, at Beall. He was a star goalie in soccer, played at guard in basketball and handled the second base assignment this year on Beall's championship baseball team.

This is the third year that the award has been made. Harold Conrad was the 1938 winner and Wayne Layman received the prize last spring.

State Board of Education medals awarded for the county scholastic baseball championship and baseball letters were presented at last night's affair. Four senior three-sport stars, Dyer, Bob Harvey, Bill Prichard and Bill Burkett, also received jackets.

James Brode was elected president of the Varsity Club for next year. Other new officers are Orville Jackson, vice-president; Al Harvey treasurer, and Kenneth Williams, secretary.

Casey, of Dodgers, Off To See Arm Specialist

PITTSBURGH, June 12.—A shortage of dependable pitchers is beginning to plague the Dodgers, whose scheduled night game with the Pirates was rained out Tuesday.

Following word of the postponement came the news that Hugh Casey, the big right-hander from Georgia, would depart immediately for Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore to have his arm examined by Dr. George F. Bennett. Casey, whose recent form had led Leo Durocher to believe that he had recovered his 1939 technique, was withdrawn from Monday's game with the Pirates after working one inning.

On Sunday Casey felt pain in his arm while pitching against the Reds in Cincinnati. He had remained on the mound that day and finally beat Bucky Walters in the eleventh inning.

"I was able to work the soreness out then," said Casey. "I warmed up more than I usually do before each inning. Yesterday it was a different story. I couldn't get the soreness out."

Just what Durocher will do if Casey is lost to the team for some time remained a question. It is an established fact that the Dodgers were looking for a pitcher before Casey's arm troubled him. At the present time the acquisition of another hurler seems to be an absolute necessity.

Boston Beats Indians with Six Run Rally

Come from Behind In Eighth To Top Cleveland 9 to 5

Sockers Get To Milnar in Uprising that Sees 12 Men Bat

Protect First Place Lead and Beat Second Indian Ace

BOSTON, June 12 (AP)—By sending 12 men to bat for a six-run rally in the eighth, the Red Sox came from behind to trump another Cleveland pitching ace and protect their first-place lead with a 9-5 victory.

The sockers were two runs behind Al Milnar until they blasted him from the mound with none out in the eighth. He was replaced by Mel Harder with the score tied at 5-all and two runners on.

Manager Joe Cronin was the first to face the Cleveland relief pitcher and after he sacrificed, Harder filled the bases by passing Jim Tabor. Stan Spence, pinch-hitting for Gene Desautels, brought in Foxx with a long fly and then the sockers counted three more runs on singles by Jim Bagby and Bobby Doerr.

16 Top Flight Golf Pros Tee Off Today At Inverness Club

Lawson Little Heads Band Seeking $6,000 in Prize Money

TOLEDO, O., June 12 (AP)—Sixteen sharp-shooting professionals, headed by Lawson Little, new national open king, will tee off tomorrow in the $6,000 Inverness club four-ball match play tourney.

The stalwart Little, who methodically mowed down veteran Gene Sarazen to take the 1940 open at Cleveland, is teamed with "Jug" McSpaden.

Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta are the defending Inverness invitational champions. They have paired in the tourney since it started in 1935 and twice emerged victors.

Byron Nelson, 1939 National Open titlist and Inverness' own professional, is teamed with Walter Hagen.

Local golf fans lean toward Sam Snead — and Ralph Guldahl as their favorites to win the four-day tilt. Another duet considered formidable consists of Jimmy Demaret and Dick Metz.

Other pairings: Sarazen and Clayton Heafner, this year's only newcomer to the Inverness fold; Horton Smith and Jimmy Thomson, and Ed Dudley and Billy Burke.

The opening round will be played tomorrow afternoon. Thereafter the pros will be on a two-a-day schedule through Sunday. Each team meets each of the others in 18-hole match play, the winner getting a "plus" score for each hole finished ahead of the rival duo. The loser receives a "minus" for each hole lost. The plunder goes to the team with the highest "plus" total.

Cardinals Sell Medwick, Davis To Brooklyn

Dodgers Give Four Players and Cash for Outfielder and Pitcher

ST. LOUIS, June 12 (AP) — Sale of outfielder Joe Medwick and right-handed pitcher Curt Davis to the Brooklyn Dodgers for four players and an unannounced cash payment was announced tonight by President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis National League club.

The Brooklyn players involved were outfielder Ernie Koy, pitcher Carl Doyle, a righthander; Sam Nahem, pitcher, now on option to Louisville of the American association, and infielder Berthold Haas, now with Montreal of the International League on option.

Medwick was one of the stars of the Cardinals' World series victory of 1934 against Detroit and continued to play a major part in the team's offensive through the years. In 1937 he was the National League batting champion and was named the league's most valuable player. He batted .332 in 1939.

Medwick broke into professional ball with Scottdale, Pa., of the Middle Atlantic League in 1930 and joined the Cards late in 1932. He batted .379 in the World series of 1934 and never has hit under .300 in his career.

Davis came to the Cardinals along with Pitcher Clyde Shoun and Outfielder Tuck Stainback in the deal which sent Dizzy Dean to the Cubs prior to the 1938 season.

Curt won 22 games for the St. Louis club last year, but has failed to hang up a single victory this season while being charged with four losses.

Medwick, who is batting .304 at present, has been in a slump recently and frequently has been subjected to boos by Cardinal fans.

None of the Brooklyn or St. Louis club officials would comment on the amount of cash involved in the deal but estimates in baseball circles varied from $100,000 to more than $185,000, the amount the Cardinals received from the Chicago Cubs in the deal for Dizzy Dean.

Reds Defeat Phillies 2 to 1

CINCINNATI, June 12 (AP) — Big Paul Derringer hung up his fifth straight victory tonight for the Cincinnati Reds, outlasting Kirby Higbe and Si Johnson for a 2 to 1 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Big Paul was right in the groove and the one-run lead given him by his mates early in the game was threatened but once and that only because of an error on a double play ball. While he allowed the Phils eight hits, he kept them at safe intervals and walked but one man, intentionally. The victory gave the Reds an even break in the two-game series.

The Reds got their first run in the second on Frank McCormick's double, a wild pitch and Ernie Lombardi's long fly to Chuck Klein. The other marker came in the third when Morrne Arnovich tried a one-handed catch of Bill Werber's looper back of short. Bill got a double out of it, was sacrificed to third, and scored on Ival Goodman's fly.

Millshow Annexes Delaware Second

DELAWARE PARK, June 12.—For the seventh consecutive day an outsider scored in the opening number here at the Stanton course when George D. Widener's Overdrawn won today's first race and paid $27.50 for $2.

After running last in the Dover Stakes in the first week, Overdrawn went right to the front in today's five-furlong dash and completed the distance in :59 3-5, to be two and a half lengths in front of J. A. Manfuso's Aerial Fire.

Christiana Stable's Ice Water, which ran third, was a couple of lengths behind Aerial Fire and a head in front of John's Star.

Ball Player Was Favorite

A candidate for the Christiana Stakes to be run June 29, Overdrawn turned in one of the fastest races for juveniles at this meeting. He was ridden by the veteran Harry Richards, while Apprentice Whalen was in the saddle in the Dover Stakes.

The favorite in the capacity field was Tall Tree Stable's Ball Player, which left the barrier in a forward position, dropped back as far as ninth and then closed ground in the drive. He was too far out of it to threaten the ultimate winner in the stretch.

Millshow at $10.10

The second race featured an exciting stretch battle. Five $1,250 platers from the 3-year-old ranks raced down the home lane only heads apart. Uncorking an extra burst of speed in the last one hundred yards, Millsdale Stable's Millshow managed to win by a nose from H. Rozier Dulany's Levena, Miss Ksar was third.

Millshow paid $10.10 to win and $165.70 in the daily double.

Race Notes

NEW YORK, June 12. (AP)—George H. Bull, president of the Saratoga Racing Association, reports the mutuel installation, at the Spa track is nearing completion. The windows have been installed, the money rooms equipped and the construction of the "tote" is well under way. Work on the grounds also is several weeks ahead of schedule.

Bargain

Every Monday, including the opening day, will be Ladies' Day at Arlington Park during the summer meeting opening June 24, President John D. Allen has announced. Women will be admitted on payment of 28 cents' tax. Regular admission will be $1 for the grandstand and $2.40 for the clubhouse.

Router

J. B. Partridge's veteran gelding, Sandy Boot, isn't much for speed in "sprints," but he can keep going all day. In the recent one-mile Harlem Claiming Stakes at Belmont the old fellow was just beginning to run in the last eighth and made up a world of ground to finish third. Yesterday he was called upon for an extra furlong in the $2,500 Short Grass Handicap for Class C horses at Aqueduct and he won off by himself. Sandy Boot kept plodding along, while Sidney Gooch's speedy mare, Short Distance, opened up a four-length lead, but in the stretch drive Short Distance came back while the Partridge veteran turned on the steam to win by three lengths.

Nominees

A record total of 49 horses, including Challedon, 1939 three-year-old champion, and Kayak II, winner of the race last year, has been nominated for the $50,000 Hollywood Gold Cup July 27. The previous high was 33 nominations in 1938. An indication that Owner W. L. Brann has serious intentions of sending Challedon after the race was seen in the nominations of his stablemate, Aethelwold, nearly two months after Challedon was entered.

Roxy Bowling Alleys To Be Big Feature of Winter Sports Card

The new rendezvous of the maple topplers this next Winter was opened with a bang yesterday evening as City Commissioner of Finance, Tom Conlon, bowled over the first pin and then proceeded to bowl the first game on the Roxy Alleys on North Mechanic street with Gil Baker, prominent local pinman, Commissioner Conlon was the only one of the local city administration who attended the opening of the new lanes which are under the management of Harry Cloni, formerly of the Club Alleys.

The alleys gave an indication of their future popularity last night when all those who got there at six thirty or later had to wait to get a chance to try them.

Souvenirs of the management were automatic pencils in the shape of ten pins and ice cream on a stick.

The alleys will be open from now on at all times of the day from 9 a. m. to 12 p. m.

Game Wardens Form Garrett Association

Grantsville, June 12 — The 20 unsalaried game wardens of Garrett county, have formed an organization to be known as the Garrett County Game Wardens' Association. Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke, of Cumberland, presided at the first meeting, held last week, at the Railey Stone Tavern, near Deep Creek Lake.

Wiley Welling, Mt. Lake Park, was elected president; Raymond Houck, Oakland, vice-president, and Daniel W. Hershberger, Grantsville, secretary. A constitution and by-laws, similar to the Allegany County Game Wardens' Association, were adopted.

The purpose of the organization is to furnish adequate protection to the fish and game in accordance with the conservation laws of Maryland and to instill the idea of better protection in the minds of all citizens. It is expected that the new body, developing a united front, will bring about a greater respect for fish and game laws.

For the wardens themselves it would be a means of establishing better interpretations of the laws together with showing the proper manner in which to apprehend violators and methods used in investigation. They will be able to study the laws together and discuss problems collectively. Any member, who without reasonable excuse misses two meetings, will automatically be suspended from the group.

BIMMY WINS—Bimelech, second from right, is in second spot on the turn here but he came on to win the Belmont Stakes at Belmont park.

Protect First Place Lead and Beat Second Indian Ace

BOSTON, June 12 (AP)—By sending 12 men to bat for a six-run rally in the eighth, the Red Sox came from behind to trump another Cleveland pitching ace and protect their first-place lead with a 9-5 victory.

The sockers were two runs behind Al Milnar until they blasted him from the mound with none out in the eighth. He was replaced by Mel Harder with the score tied at 5-all and two runners on.

Manager Joe Cronin was the first to face the Cleveland relief pitcher and after he sacrificed, Harder filled the bases by passing Jim Tabor. Stan Spence, pinch-hitting for Gene Desautels, brought in Foxx with a long fly and then the sockers counted three more runs on singles by Jim Bagby and Bobby Doerr.

16 Top Flight Golf Pros Tee Off Today At Inverness Club

Lawson Little Heads Band Seeking $6,000 in Prize Money

TOLEDO, O., June 12 (AP)—Sixteen sharp-shooting professionals, headed by Lawson Little, new national open king, will tee off tomorrow in the $6,000 Inverness club four-ball match play tourney.

The stalwart Little, who methodically mowed down veteran Gene Sarazen to take the 1940 open at Cleveland, is teamed with "Jug" McSpaden.

Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta are the defending Inverness invitational champions. They have paired in the tourney since it started in 1935 and twice emerged victors.

Byron Nelson, 1939 National Open titlist and Inverness' own professional, is teamed with Walter Hagen.

Local golf fans lean toward Sam Snead — and Ralph Guldahl as their favorites to win the four-day tilt. Another duet considered formidable consists of Jimmy Demaret and Dick Metz.

Other pairings: Sarazen and Clayton Heafner, this year's only newcomer to the Inverness fold; Horton Smith and Jimmy Thomson, and Ed Dudley and Billy Burke.

The opening round will be played tomorrow afternoon. Thereafter the pros will be on a two-a-day schedule through Sunday. Each team meets each of the others in 18-hole match play, the winner getting a "plus" score for each hole finished ahead of the rival duo. The loser receives a "minus" for each hole lost. The plunder goes to the team with the highest "plus" total.

The Keegan's gathered 11 hits off Jim Wilkinson's offerings with Mulvey, Miller and Johnson each having two, the latter pair poking doubles on both their safeties.

The line score:

Cardinals Sell Medwick, Davis To Brooklyn

Dodgers Give Four Players and Cash for Outfielder and Pitcher

ST. LOUIS, June 12 (AP) — Sale of outfielder Joe Medwick and right-handed pitcher Curt Davis to the Brooklyn Dodgers for four players and an unannounced cash payment was announced tonight by President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis National League club.

The Brooklyn players involved were outfielder Ernie Koy, pitcher Carl Doyle, a righthander; Sam Nahem, pitcher, now on option to Louisville of the American association, and infielder Berthold Haas, now with Montreal of the International League on option.

Medwick was one of the stars of the Cardinals' World series victory of 1934 against Detroit and continued to play a major part in the team's offensive through the years. In 1937 he was the National League batting champion and was named the league's most valuable player. He batted .332 in 1939.

Medwick broke into professional ball with Scottdale, Pa., of the Middle Atlantic League in 1930 and joined the Cards late in 1932. He batted .379 in the World series of 1934 and never has hit under .300 in his career.

Davis came to the Cardinals along with Pitcher Clyde Shoun and Outfielder Tuck Stainback in the deal which sent Dizzy Dean to the Cubs prior to the 1938 season.

Curt won 22 games for the St. Louis club last year, but has failed to hang up a single victory this season while being charged with four losses.

Medwick, who is batting .304 at present, has been in a slump recently and frequently has been subjected to boos by Cardinal fans.

None of the Brooklyn or St. Louis club officials would comment on the amount of cash involved in the deal but estimates in baseball circles varied from $100,000 to more than $185,000, the amount the Cardinals received from the Chicago Cubs in the deal for Dizzy Dean.

Reds Defeat Phillies 2 to 1

CINCINNATI, June 12 (AP) — Big Paul Derringer hung up his fifth straight victory tonight for the Cincinnati Reds, outlasting Kirby Higbe and Si Johnson for a 2 to 1 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Big Paul was right in the groove and the one-run lead given him by his mates early in the game was threatened but once and that only because of an error on a double play ball. While he allowed the Phils eight hits, he kept them at safe intervals and walked but one man, intentionally. The victory gave the Reds an even break in the two-game series.

The Reds got their first run in the second on Frank McCormick's double, a wild pitch and Ernie Lombardi's long fly to Chuck Klein. The other marker came in the third when Morrne Arnovich tried a one-handed catch of Bill Werber's looper back of short. Bill got a double out of it, was sacrificed to third, and scored on Ival Goodman's fly.

Millshow Annexes Delaware Second

DELAWARE PARK, June 12.—For the seventh consecutive day an outsider scored in the opening number here at the Stanton course when George D. Widener's Overdrawn won today's first race and paid $27.50 for $2.

After running last in the Dover Stakes in the first week, Overdrawn went right to the front in today's five-furlong dash and completed the distance in :59 3-5, to be two and a half lengths in front of J. A. Manfuso's Aerial Fire.

Christiana Stable's Ice Water, which ran third, was a couple of lengths behind Aerial Fire and a head in front of John's Star.

Ball Player Was Favorite

A candidate for the Christiana Stakes to be run June 29, Overdrawn turned in one of the fastest races for juveniles at this meeting. He was ridden by the veteran Harry Richards, while Apprentice Whalen was in the saddle in the Dover Stakes.

The favorite in the capacity field was Tall Tree Stable's Ball Player, which left the barrier in a forward position, dropped back as far as ninth and then closed ground in the drive. He was too far out of it to threaten the ultimate winner in the stretch.

Millshow at $10.10

The second race featured an exciting stretch battle. Five $1,250 platers from the 3-year-old ranks raced down the home lane only heads apart. Uncorking an extra burst of speed in the last one hundred yards, Millsdale Stable's Millshow managed to win by a nose from H. Rozier Dulany's Levena, Miss Ksar was third.

Millshow paid $10.10 to win and $165.70 in the daily double.

Race Notes

NEW YORK, June 12. (AP)—George H. Bull, president of the Saratoga Racing Association, reports the mutuel installation, at the Spa track is nearing completion. The windows have been installed, the money rooms equipped and the construction of the "tote" is well under way. Work on the grounds also is several weeks ahead of schedule.

Bargain

Every Monday, including the opening day, will be Ladies' Day at Arlington Park during the summer meeting opening June 24, President John D. Allen has announced. Women will be admitted on payment of 28 cents' tax. Regular admission will be $1 for the grandstand and $2.40 for the clubhouse.

Router

J. B. Partridge's veteran gelding, Sandy Boot, isn't much for speed in "sprints," but he can keep going all day. In the recent one-mile Harlem Claiming Stakes at Belmont the old fellow was just beginning to run in the last eighth and made up a world of ground to finish third. Yesterday he was called upon for an extra furlong in the $2,500 Short Grass Handicap for Class C horses at Aqueduct and he won off by himself. Sandy Boot kept plodding along, while Sidney Gooch's speedy mare, Short Distance, opened up a four-length lead, but in the stretch drive Short Distance came back while the Partridge veteran turned on the steam to win by three lengths.

Nominees

A record total of 49 horses, including Challedon, 1939 three-year-old champion, and Kayak II, winner of the race last year, has been nominated for the $50,000 Hollywood Gold Cup July 27. The previous high was 33 nominations in 1938. An indication that Owner W. L. Brann has serious intentions of sending Challedon after the race was seen in the nominations of his stablemate, Aethelwold, nearly two months after Challedon was entered.

Roxy Bowling Alleys To Be Big Feature of Winter Sports Card

The new rendezvous of the maple topplers this next Winter was opened with a bang yesterday evening as City Commissioner of Finance, Tom Conlon, bowled over the first pin and then proceeded to bowl the first game on the Roxy Alleys on North Mechanic street with Gil Baker, prominent local pinman. Commissioner Conlon was the only one of the local city administration who attended the opening of the new lanes which are under the management of Harry Cioni, formerly of the Club Alleys.

The alleys gave an indication of their future popularity last night when all those who got there at six thirty or later had to wait to get a chance to try them.

Souvenirs of the management were automatic pencils in the shape of ten pins and ice cream on a stick.

The alleys will be open from now on at all times of the day from 9 a. m. to 12 p. m.

Game Wardens Form Garrett Association

Grantsville, June 12 — The 20 unsalaried game wardens of Garrett county, have formed an organization to be known as the Garrett County Game Wardens' Association. Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke, of Cumberland, presided at the first meeting, held last week, at the Railey Stone Tavern, near Deep Creek Lake.

Wiley Welling, Mt. Lake Park, was elected president; Raymond Houck, Oakland, vice-president, and Daniel W. Hershberger, Grantsville, secretary. A constitution and by-laws, similar to the Allegany County Game Wardens' Association, were adopted.

The purpose of the organization is to furnish adequate protection to the fish and game in accordance with the conservation laws of Maryland and to instill the idea of better protection in the minds of all citizens. It is expected that the new body developing a united front, will bring about a greater respect for fish and game laws.

For the wardens themselves it would be a means of establishing better interpretations of the laws together with showing the proper manner in which to apprehend violators and methods used in investigation. They will be able to study the laws together and discuss problems collectively. Any member, who without reasonable excuse misses two meetings, will automatically be suspended from the group.

BIMMY WINS—Bimelech, second from right, is in second spot on the turn here but he came on to win the Belmont Stakes at Belmont park.

Keller's Homer Gives Yankees 7-5 Victory

Drives Home Two Mates as Detroit Blows Early Lead

Buck Newsom Battered Early but Does Not Lose Game

Bartell Also Hits Homer for Detroit for Early Lead

NEW YORK, June 12 (AP)—Charley Keller's seventh home run of the year with two teammates aboard in the seventh wiped out a lot of early-inning monkeyshines today and gave the world champion Yankees a 7 to 5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

With Dick Bartell hitting a two-run homer in the second, the Tigers bunched five of their seven hits in the first two innings to give big Buck Newsom a four-run working margin.

He squandered it all in the face of a Yankee bombardment in the second and third innings that tied the score, but was leading when he left the game in the fourth because the Yanks went to sleep to allow a run on no hits.

Ken Chase Stops Browns for Nats

WASHINGTON, June 12. (AP) — Ken Chase today broke the St. Louis Browns' five game winning streak—its longest since 1936—by pitching the Washington Senators to a 3 to 2 victory. The Washington southpaw walked five, but he allowed only six hits and his mates helped him out with three double plays.

Washington won the game in the seventh as Jimmy Bloodworth led off with a triple to left, Chase fanned, but George Case laid down a beautiful bunt to squeeze Bloodworth home.

The first half championship race of the South Cumberland Sunday School Softball League has developed into a wide-open fight with only three games separating the pace-setting United Brethren outfit from the sixth-place Emmanuel crew.

The race tightened this week when United Brethren lost an 8-7 battle to St. John's and Evangelical turned back Baptist 5-3. Three clubs are knotted for the runnerup position. All the teams except U. B. and Baptist have postponed games.

The United Brethren-St. John's tussle was nip-and-tuck with St. John's coupling 11 hits with four U. B. errors to win. United Brethren made five runs in the third but was unable to hold its lead.

Redinger of Baptist and Bucklew of Evangelical hooked up in a pitching duel with Evangelical winning in the sixth when the Baptist defense cracked and four runs crossed the payoff platter.

Tomorrow, United Brethren will play Emmanuel on Brinker field and St. John's will meet Living Stone Church of the Brethren at Locust Grove. Friday's slate is Baptist vs. Trinity on Brinker field and Grace M. E. vs. Evangelical at Locust Grove. The scores:

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, June 12. (AP)—Occasionally Harry Markson gets a chuckle out of his work, such as Mushky Jackson provided when he called up from Joe Louis's camp to inform Harry that "Louis will work at 3 o'clock weekdays and 3 p. m. Saturdays and Sundays," but on the whole the job is a large daily headache.

Harry shares the headache with Walter St. Denis. The two, with a corps of Mushkys and other stamp lickers, handle the publicity for the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, sometimes known as Mike Jacobs.

For three years now Harry has been telling the world about the Jacobs' boxing enterprises. Mike signs the fighters, then hands the drumsticks to his tub-thumbers and lets them do the rest.

"The rest" is a daily program of press releases ,training camp trips, idea quests for fuzzy-minded scribes (ain't we all), arranging press accommodations, compiling records of fighters from the greenest four-round boy on up, answering dizzy questions over the telephone and other items too numerous to mentin.

On a fair day he'll bat out about 15 stories, ranging from Joe Louis's punching power to the promise shown by Joe Doakes, who will be making his first start in a four-round preliminary. Releases for the big fights go to about 400 papers as far west of Chicago, with special stories going to scattered territories which might be interested in a particular fighter.

How he does this with an incessant stream of interruptions is a mystery, but he does it, in addition to keeping up an amazingly comprehensive file on every fight and fighter.

Harry's days get longer as the day of a big fight approaches, with the day of the fight bringing the granddaddy of all headaches. That's the day the scribes roll in, all expecting front-row seats. There is always a substantial quota of phonies, but St. Denis says he can smell them a mile away, and its a pretty smart Samuel who can crash through with fake credentials.

Markson's word is as good as gold among newspapermen. They know he's not dishing out any ballyhoo for ballyhoo's sake. A former newspaperman himself, he says:

"When I took this job I made up my mind I'd just give out the truth. I never try to build up a fighter except on his accomplishments."

Markson was graduated from Union College at Schenectady, N. Y., in 1927, and knocked around in various newspaper jobs before lining up with Uncle Mike.

But it's a tough racket, even if it is spiced with such interludes as Mushky's voice drifting in from the next room, where he is trying to tell somebody where a fighter was training.

"It's Bier's camp," he was saying, "B-I-E-R-Apostoli-s—Bier's."

Thirteen of 24 places on Tri-State Interscholastic Baseball Conference first and second all-star team were awarded to tossers who represented the three Cumberland schools in the second annual race this spring.

The mythical outfits were selected by five coaches at a recent meeting at the Central Y. M. C. A., but the names of the stars were held up until the finish of the race this week.

Although Beall High of Frostburg won the championship, Allegany High's strong team dominates the No. 1 crew. Five members of the Campobello squad snared places with Paw Paw (W. Va.) High grabbing three positions and Beall and Fort Hill each two.

LaSalle, which also ran a good race, was not represented and the absence from the recent session may have hurt the North Enders' chances. Ridgeley, which dropped out of the conference toward the close of the campaign, was also not represented.

Cochrane Catcher

On the first team, the important catching position went to Milton Cochrane of Allegany, who last season divided third-base duties with Carl Stitcher but who was converted into a receiver this spring.

Franklin See, Allegany's slim initial sacker, and Lou Bell, Campobello shortstop who slugged the pellet at around .500, were placed in the infield. George Geatz of Allegany and Howard Nesbitt of Fort Hill tied for the third-base position, while Pete Guhr of Paw Paw was chosen for second base.

This was See's second year in baseball at Allegany while Bell was regular Blue and White left fielder in 1939. Geatz is a newcomer while Nesbitt was on Fort Hill's squad last season. Guhr was a reserve on Paw Paw's squad last spring.

In the outfield are Jim Gaffney of Allegany, Warren Spring of Paw Paw and Lewis of Beall. Gaffney who spend all his time with the track team last year, earned himself quite a baseball reputation in one season.

Robey Heads Pitchers

Although three pitchers were selected, two other boys on the team hurled plenty good enough to be given starting assignments.

Charles Robey, Paw Paw's ace; Don Miller, Fort Hill's No. 1 hurler, and Henry Blair, Beall's top-flighter, comprise the regular mound corps, but both Gaffney and Bell would help any hurling staff.

Robey was the conference's outstanding pitcher and his big batting average made him especially valuable to Coach Arnet Swisher and his Paw Paw crew.

On the second team are three boys from each Fort Hill and Hyndman, two each from LaSalle and Beall and one each from Allegany and Paw Paw.

See and Bell Repeat

Fort Hill's representatives are Homer Frye, catcher, who captained the Sentinels; Joe Horwarth, regular outfielder the past two years, and Paul Whitford, utility man in 1939 who held down an outfield position this spring.

Hyndman's trio consists of Oscar Jordan, second base; "Bo" Cook, third base, and Pitcher Dale Kinton, First Sacker Dan Leatherman and Pitcher Harry Fuller of Beall, First Baseman "Ted" Rowan and Shortstop "Vic" Malloy of LaSalle, Outfielder Estel Smith of Paw Paw and Pitcher Harvey Connor of Allegany complete the secon dteam. Earl Holler, Hyndman catcher, received an honorable mention.

The teams were selected by Coaches Hubert Radcliffe of Allegany, "Bobby" Cavanaugh of Fort Hill, Arnet Swisher of Paw Paw, Roscoe Wareham of Hyndman, and Eddie Finzel of Beall.

See and Bell captured similar honors last spring and are the only first-team repeaters. Rowan and Lewis of Beall High were on the 1939 second team.

Johnson and Chapman Blast Circuit Smashes

PHILADELPHIA, June 12 (AP)—Thornton Lee, veteran Chicago White Sox southpaw, held the Athletics to three hits today but two of them were home runs by Bob Johnson and Sam Chapman which gave the A's a 3-2 victory.

After Johnson hit his eleventh homer of the season in the first inning, scoring Benny McCoy from first, Lee held the A's hitless until the fifth. Then Chapman blasted out his fourth four-bagger of the year.

SONG OF THE BATTLERS

We might have known the softer roads, but found they lacked the thrills.
We might have dreamed in valleys, but our eyes were on the hills.
We've sought the thunder of the storm above the summer breeze
That might have found us resting in the shade of guarding trees.

We've never let Fate turn us back without a final test.
In spite of all the handicaps, the answer is our best.
We've hacked our way through fear and hurt, through heartache and through pain,
Content to know no fighting heart will ever beat in vain.

We might have loitered at the turn to rest our weary feet.
We might have stopped to curse the breaks that drove us from the beat.
We might have shirked the thorns ahead, the jungles deep in gloom,
But we have found the fight worth more than golden fields in bloom.

We've set our goal beyond our reach—but that is still our aim.
We've left our youth and ease behind to meet the harder game.
We've lost our way through swamp and lair—our eyes have missed the sun—
But still we grope and stumble on until the game is done.

THE TIGER CHANCE

The tall, willowy figure moving along the highway couldn't be anyone but Hank Greenberg, the Tiger's transplanted outfielder, who is doing his share to keep the Tigers clawing away at the ancient gonfalon. Hank is only six feet four.

"What business have we got up there with the Red Sox, Indians and Yankees?" Hank repeated my question. "Why not? We have our share of hitting and we have one of the best pitching staffs in baseball. They say we won't stay up there much longer. Who can tell about that? We haven't been hitting as well as we should. Swell pitching has been a big help and better weather won't hurt that any later on with the veterans we have."

I asked Hank how the outfield post had worked in his direction.

"I like it a lot," tall Hank said. "You can relax more out there. An outfielder doesn't have to keep as keyed up as an infielder does. They come at you faster and oftener around the infield. That's why so many outfielders are better hitters."

In the last three years, up to this 1940 campaign, Greenberg has deposited 131 home runs into his collection. This is a yearly average of 43 homers, which is no powder-puff punching. Acting in the relaxed capacity of an outfielder he hopes to beat the 40-mark this year, but is taking no wagers along that line.

THE TEAM TO BEAT

"We all know the Yankees are the team to beat," Hank tells you. "But they are not unbeatable. The Red Sox might do it with our pitching, but they haven't got our pitching. Those Indians might do it with another winning pitcher. I know the Yankees are a better hitting club than they have been so far on the season's count, but so are we.

"It is no big surprise to see us up there. This Tiger team rates where it is. Pitching and hitting are two of the main factors in baseball. We have our full share of both. So why are we out of line?"

Which reminds us that one Thomas Davis Bridges, of Gordonsville, Tenn., is still out there baffling hostile bats. In his tenth major league campaign — 1939 — Bridges won 17 games and dropped 7. He is moving along at an even faster pace through 1940 at the age of 33.

The same goes for Buck Newsom who startled the planets by winning 20 games for the Browns in 1938 and then repeated with another 20-game season last year. Buck is after another 20-game campaign and he should make it.

The most pleasant surprise has been Schoolboy Rowe, who won only ten games in 1939. The Schoolboy, now 28 years old, is in the act of producing another big year unless some untoward incident ties him up again.

DODGERS AND REDS

The Dodgers are still one of the main surprises of the day and not only because they are hanging on. Now they face a homecoming that may be highly annoying to both the Reds and Giants. They have been a much better road club than they were last summer. They have had their share of the rougher breaks, but this hasn't stopped their hustling.

Larry McPhail was correct at the start of the season when he told us the Dodgers would outhustle any other team in both leagues by 25 per cent.

The main menace of the Reds still rests in three starting pitchers —Walters, Derringer and Thompson. No other club has a better starting trio to throw against the field. All three should break into the 20-game division by closing time, and any club that carries three 20-game winners is hard to suppress.

SPORT ATTENDANCE

A number of citizens have been surprised at the attendance banked around sporting events with so much of the world on fire.

This is simple enough to figure out. There must be some distraction from the horror of the times, and sport is one of the main releases. For sport means action, something that will help take the human mind away from constant brooding that can be no help to anyone.

Given the right weather, sport has known many of its biggest days. Without it there would be only added melancholy, or something worse.—(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Ted Williams Is Irked Because He Is Second Fiddle

Supposedly Envious of Great Showing of Jimmy Foxx

NEW YORK, June 12 (AP)—Travelers from Boston report Theodore (Ted) Williams isn't the carefree youth of last year, the burden of fame resting heavily on his shoulders. . . . The very young Mr. Williams, almost as well known for his hatred of neckties as for his hitting, supposedly is envious of the heroics Jimmy Foxx has been showing and piqued that fans aren't holding him (Williams) in the same awe as last season.

Gee Walker of the Washington Senators is up to his old tricks.... He made the Cleveland Indians happy during their recent series by wandering off base twice while the Tribe's pitchers were watching. .. Lonnie Frey of the Cincinnati Reds stole five bases all last season, and already has thefted nine this spring. . . . People used to make smart cracks about the nice working hours of major leaguers, but this week the Chicago White Sox were scheduled for three night games — Monday an exhibition at Wilmington, Del., Tuesday at Philadelphia and Friday opening their own night schedule at Chicago.

Just when everybody had learned to distinguish between the four Browns who are big-league pitchers: Clint, Mace, Walter and Lloyd, along comes a new crop of name confusions. . . . Opposing pitchers are liable to be Smith vs. Smith (Cleveland Al and Chicago Ed) or Harris vs. Harris (Browns' Bob and Red Sox' Mickey). . . . Initials aren't even sufficient to designate Syl or Si Johnson of the Phillies.... And one day last week Pearson of the Yanks faced Lee of Chicago, while the next day Pearson of the Phils opposed Lee of Chicago.

Maybe it's propaganda, but eyeglasses are getting credit for nearly every good thing that happens in the major leagues these days. . . . They put spectacles on Young Walter Masterson of the Senators and right away he became a winning pitcher. . . . Then Mel Ott of the Giants had a special lense made for batting and immediately upped his average three points besides hitting a three-run homer. . . . Jimmie Foxx can't hit the size of his hat in Yankee Stadium. . . . in five games here this season he went to the plate 22 times and got one single.

Keller's Homer Gives Yankees 7-5 Victory

Drives Home Two Mates as Detroit Blows Early Lead

Bartell Also Hits Homer for Detroit for Early Lead

NEW YORK, June 12 (AP)—Charley Keller's seventh home run of the year with two teammates aboard in the seventh wiped out a lot of early-inning monkeyshines today and gave the world champion Yankees a 7 to 5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

With Dick Bartell hitting a two-run homer in the second, the Tigers bunched five of their seven hits in the first two innings to give big Buck Newsom a four-run working margin.

He squandered it all in the face of a Yankee bombardment in the second and third innings that tied the score, but was leading when he left the game in the fourth because the Yanks went to sleep to allow a run on no hits.

Ken Chase Stops Browns for Nats

WASHINGTON, June 12. (AP) — Ken Chase today broke the St. Louis Browns' five game winning streak—its longest since 1936—by pitching the Washington Senators to a 3 to 2 victory. The Washington southpaw walked five, but he allowed only six hits and his mates helped him out with three double plays.

Washington won the game in the seventh as Jimmy Bloodworth led off with a triple to left. Chase fanned, but George Case laid down a beautiful bunt to squeeze Bloodworth home.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, June 12. (AP)—Occasionally Harry Markson gets a chuckle out of his work, such as Mushky Jackson provided when he called up from Joe Louis's camp to inform Harry that "Louis will work at 3 o'clock weekdays and 3 p. m. Saturdays and Sundays," but on the whole the job is a large daily headache.

Harry shares the headache with Walter St. Denis. The two, with a corps of Mushkys and other stamp lickers, handle the publicity for the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, sometimes known as Mike Jacobs.

For three years now Harry has been telling the world about the Jacobs' boxing enterprises. Mike signs the fighters, then hands the drumsticks to his tub-thumbers and lets them do the rest.

"The rest" is a daily program of press releases ,training camp trips, idea quests for fuzzy-minded scribes (ain't we all), arranging press accommodations, compiling records of fighters from the greenest four-round boy on up, answering dizzy questions over the telephone and other items too numerous to mentin.

On a fair day he'll bat out about 15 stories, ranging from Joe Louis's punching power to the promise shown by Joe Doakes, who will be making his first start in a four-round preliminary. Releases for the big fights go to about 400 papers as far west of Chicago, with special stories going to scattered territories which might be interested in a particular fighter.

How he does this with an incessant stream of interruptions is a mystery, but he does it, in addition to keeping up an amazingly comprehensive file on every fight and fighter.

Harry's days get longer as the day of a big fight approaches, with the day of the fight bringing the granddaddy of all headaches. That's the day the scribes roll in, all expecting front-row seats. There is always a substantial quota of phonies, but St. Denis says he can smell them a mile away, and its a pretty smart Samuel who can crash through with fake credentials.

Markson's word is as good as gold among newspapermen. They know he's not dishing out any ballyhoo for ballyhoo's sake. A former newspaperman himself, he says:

"When I took this job I made up my mind I'd just give out the truth. I never try to build up a fighter except on his accomplishments."

Markson was graduated from Union College at Schenectady, N. Y., in 1927, and knocked around in various newspaper jobs before lining up with Uncle Mike.

But it's a tough racket, even if it is spiced with such interludes as Mushky's voice drifting in from the next room, where he is trying to tell somebody where a fighter was training.

"It's Bier's camp," he was saying, "B-I-E-R-Apostoli-s—Bier's."

Thirteen of 24 places on Tri-State Interscholastic Baseball Conference first and second all-star team were awarded to tossers who represented the three Cumberland schools in the second annual race this spring.

The mythical outfits were selected by five coaches at a recent meeting at the Central Y. M. C. A., but the names of the stars were held up until the finish of the race this week.

Although Beall High of Frostburg won the championship, Allegany High's strong team dominates the No. 1 crew. Five members of the Campobello squad snared places with Paw Paw (W. Va.) High grabbing three positions and Beall and Fort Hill each two.

LaSalle, which also ran a good race, was not represented and the absence from the recent session may have hurt the North Enders' chances. Ridgeley, which dropped out of the conference toward the close of the campaign, was also not represented.

Cochrane Catcher

On the first team, the important catching position went to Milton Cochrane of Allegany, who last season divided third-base duties with Carl Stitcher but who was converted into a receiver this spring.

Franklin See, Allegany's slim initial sacker, and Lou Bell, Campobello shortstop who slugged the pellet at around .500, were placed in the infield. George Geatz of Allegany and Howard Nesbitt of Fort Hill tied for the third-base position, while Pete Guhr of Paw Paw was chosen for second base.

This was See's second year in baseball at Allegany while Bell was regular Blue and White left fielder in 1939. Geatz is a newcomer while Nesbitt was on Fort Hill's squad last season. Guhr was a reserve on Paw Paw's squad last spring.

In the outfield are Jim Gaffney of Allegany, Warren Spring of Paw Paw and Lewis of Beall. Gaffney, who spend all his time with the track team last year, earned himself quite a baseball reputation in one season.

Robey Heads Pitchers

Although three pitchers were selected, two other boys on the team hurled plenty good enough to be given starting assignments.

Charles Robey, Paw Paw's ace; Don Miller, Fort Hill's No. 1 hurler, and Henry Blair, Beall's top-flighter, comprise the regular mound corps, but both Gaffney and Bell would help any hurling staff.

Gaffney's one-hitter against Fort Hill this week was one of the best-pitched games in district circles this spring while Bell won one contest for the Campers while losing two.

Robey was the conference's outstanding pitcher and his big batting average made him especially valuable to Coach Arnet Swisher and his Paw Paw crew.

On the second team are three boys from each Fort Hill and Hyndman, two each from LaSalle and Beall and one each from Allegany and Paw Paw.

See and Bell Repeat

Fort Hill's representatives are Homer Frye, catcher, who captained the Sentinels; Joe Horwarth, regular outfielder the past two years, and Paul Whitford, utility man in 1939 who held down an outfield position this spring.

Hyndman's trio consists of Oscar Jordan, second base; "Bo" Cook, third base, and Pitcher Dale Kinton, First Sacker Dan Leatherman and Pitcher Harry Fuller of Beall, First Baseman "Ted" Rowan and Shortstop "Vic" Malloy of LaSalle, Outfielder Estel Smith of Paw Paw and Pitcher Harvey Connor of Allegany complete the secon dteam. Earl Holler, Hyndman catcher, received an honorable mention.

The teams were selected by Coaches Hubert Radcliffe of Allegany, "Bobby" Cavanaugh of Fort Hill, Arnet Swisher of Paw Paw, Roscoe Wareham of Hyndman, and Eddie Finzel of Beall.

See and Bell captured similar honors last spring and are the only first-team repeaters. Rowan and Lewis of Beall High were on the 1939 second team.

A's Make Homers On Two of Three Hits and Win 3-2

Johnson and Chapman Blast Circuit Smashes

PHILADELPHIA, June 12 (AP)—Thornton Lee, veteran Chicago White Sox southpaw, held the Athletics to three hits today but two of them were home runs by Bob Johnson and Sam Chapman which gave the A's a 3-2 victory.

After Johnson hit his eleventh homer of the season in the first inning, scoring Benny McCoy from first, Lee held the A's hitless until the fifth. Then Chapman blasted out his fourth four-bagger of the year.

SONG OF THE BATTLERS

We might have known the softer roads, but found they lacked the thrills.
We might have dreamed in valleys, but our eyes were on the hills.
We've sought the thunder of the storm above the summer breeze
That might have found us resting in the shade of guarding trees.

We've never let Fate turn us back without a final test.
In spite of all the handicaps, the answer is our best.
We've hacked our way through fear and hurt, through heartache and through pain,
Content to know no fighting heart will ever beat in vain.

We might have loitered at the turn to rest our weary feet.
We might have stopped to curse the breaks that drove us from the beat.
We might have shirked the thorns ahead, the jungles deep in gloom,
But we have found the fight worth more than golden fields in bloom.

We've set our goal beyond our reach—but that is still our aim.
We've left our youth and ease behind to meet the harder game.
We've lost our way through swamp and lair—our eyes have missed the sun—
But still we grope and stumble on until the game is done.

THE TIGER CHANCE

The tall, willowy figure moving along the highway couldn't be anyone but Hank Greenberg, the Tiger's transplanted outfielder, who is doing his share to keep the Tigers clawing away at the ancient gonfalon. Hank is only six feet four.

"What business have we got up there with the Red Sox, Indians and Yankees?" Hank repeated my question. "Why not? We have our share of hitting and we have one of the best pitching staffs in baseball. They say we won't stay up there much longer. Who can tell about that? We haven't been hitting as well as we should. Swell pitching has been a big help and better weather won't hurt that any later on with the veterans we have."

I asked Hank how the outfield post had worked in his direction.

"I like it a lot," tall Hank said. "You can relax more out there. An outfielder doesn't have to keep as keyed up as an infielder does. They come at you faster and oftener around the infield. That's why so many outfielders are better hitters."

In the last three years, up to this 1940 campaign, Greenberg has deposited 131 home runs into his collection. This is a yearly average of 43 homers, which is no powder-puff punching. Acting in the relaxed capacity of an outfielder he hopes to beat the 40-mark this year, but is taking no wagers along that line.

THE TEAM TO BEAT

"We all know the Yankees are the team to beat," Hank tells you. "But they are not unbeatable. The Red Sox might do it with our pitching, but they haven't got our pitching. Those Indians might do it with another winning pitcher. I know the Yankees are a better hitting club than they have been so far on the season's count, but so are we.

"It is no big surprise to see us up there. This Tiger team rates where it is. Pitching and hitting are two of the main factors in baseball. We have our full share of both. So why are we out of line?"

Which reminds us that one Thomas Davis Bridges, of Gordonsville, Tenn., is still out there baffling hostile bats. In his tenth major league campaign — 1939 — Bridges won 17 games and dropped 7. He is moving along at an even faster pace through 1940 at the age of 33.

The same goes for Buck Newsom who startled the planets by winning 20 games for the Browns in 1938 and then repeated with another 20-game season last year. Buck is after another 20-game campaign and he should make it.

The most pleasant surprise has been Schoolboy Rowe, who won only ten games in 1939. The Schoolboy, now 28 years old, is in the act of producing another big year unless some untoward incident ties him up again.

DODGERS AND REDS

The Dodgers are still one of the main surprises of the day and not only because they are hanging on. Now they face a homecoming that may be highly annoying to both the Reds and Giants. They have been a much better road club than they were last summer. They have had their share of the rougher breaks, but this hasn't stopped their hustling.

Larry McPhail was correct at the start of the season when he told us the Dodgers would outhustle any other team in both leagues by 25 per cent.

The main menace of the Reds still rests in three starting pitchers —Walters, Derringer and Thompson. No other club has a better starting trio to throw against the field. All three should break into the 20-game division by closing time, and any club that carries three 20-game winners is hard to suppress.

SPORT ATTENDANCE

A number of citizens have been surprised at the attendance banked around sporting events with so much of the world on fire.

This is simple enough to figure out. There must be some distraction from the horror of the times, and sport is one of the main releases. For sport means action, something that will help take the human mind away from constant brooding that can be no help to anyone.

Given the right weather, sport has known many of its biggest days. Without it there would be only added melancholy, or something worse.—(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Bi-State Postponed Battles Saturday

Bi-State Baseball League officials announced yesterday arrangements have been made to play three postponed games this Saturday afternoon.

The Keyser and Westernport games will start at 3 o'clock.

Supposedly Envious of Great Showing of Jimmy Foxx

NEW YORK, June 12 (AP)—Travelers from Boston report Theodore (Ted) Williams isn't the carefree youth of last year, the burden of fame resting heavily on his shoulders. . . . The very young Mr. Williams, almost as well known for his hatred of neckties as for his hitting, supposedly is envious of the heroics Jimmy Foxx has been showing end piqued that fans aren't holding him (Williams) in the same awe as last season.

Gee Walker of the Washington Senators is up to his old tricks.... He made the Cleveland Indians happy during their recent series by wandering off base twice while the Tribe's pitchers were watching. . . Lonnie Frey of the Cincinnati Reds stole five bases all last season, and already has thefted nine this spring. . . . People used to make smart cracks about the nice working hours of major leaguers, but this week the Chicago White Sox were scheduled for three night games — Monday an exhibition at Wilmington, Del., Tuesday at Philadelphia and Friday opening their own night schedule at Chicago.

Just when everybody had learned to distinguish between the four Browns who are big-league pitchers: Clint, Mace, Walter and Lloyd, along comes a new crop of name confusions. . . . Opposing pitchers are liable to be Smith vs. Smith (Cleveland Al and Chicago Ed) or Harris vs. Harris (Browns' Bob and Red Sox' Mickey). . . . Initials aren't even sufficient to designate Syl or Si Johnson of the Phillies.... And one day last week Pearson of the Yanks faced Lee of Chicago, while the next day Pearson of the Phils opposed Lee of Chicago.

Maybe it's propaganda, but eyeglasses are getting credit for nearly every good thing that happens in the major leagues these days. . . . They put spectacles on Young Walter Masterson of the Senators and right away he became a winning pitcher. . . . Then Mel Ott of the Giants had a special lense made for batting and immediately upped his average three points besides hitting a three-run homer. . . . Jimmie Foxx can't hit the size of his hat in Yankee Stadium. . . . in five games here this season he went to the plate 22 times and got one single.

Fred Small Made New Manager of Amcelle Plant

Walton Promoted To New Position In New York

H. E. Martin Also Called to New York, Company Announces

C. D. Walton, manager of the Celanese plant here for ten years, has been given a new position with the company in New York City. Fred. T. Small, chief engineer here, will be the new plant manager.

H. W. Martin, assistant manager of the plant here, will also go to New York.

Mr. Walton, who came to Cumberland from England in 1924, will be general manager of yarn production. Mr. Martin, who came here about the same time and who has been assistant to Mr. Walton for about a year, will be general manager of chemical production.

Leaving Soon

Mr. Walton and Mr. Martin will leave for New York as soon as possible.

In the ten years that Mr. Walton was manager here, the plant was greatly expanded.

Establishment of a new plant at Pearisburg, Va., which is expected to go through something like the same period of expansion, apparently has made necessary a new sort of centralized control from New York.

Mr. Walton said last night that he regretted having to break his close connection with fellow staff members here and with this community.

Mr. Small and Mr. Martin were both in New York when the announcement was made.

Small Well Known

The new manager is well known here, having participated actively in all kinds of community enterprises.

The announcement of the changes here was made in a telegram to The News from the Celanese offices in New York. The telegram read:

Celanese Corporation today announced following appointments: C. D. Walton, manager Cumberland plant for past ten years, made general manager of yarn production. H. E. Martin, formerly assistant manager, made general manager of chemical production. F. T. Small, formerly chief engineer, made plant manager at Cumberland, succeeding Walton. Walton and Martin will take up new duties in New York at an early date.

PROMOTED—C. D. Walton

NEW MANAGER—Fred T. Small

MISS WASHINGTON—Virginia Furstenburg

Cumberland Girl Beats Paralysis, Wins Title of Miss Washington

A former Cumberland girl who licked an infantile paralysis deformity has been selected as the City of Washington's representative in the Miss America contest at Atlantic City this year.

The pulchritudinous young lady is Miss Virginia Furstenburg, 22, who is known as Virginia Howe on the billing at the Capitol Theater, Washington, where she dances in the Rhythm Rockets revue.

Miss Howe is blond, weighs 112 pounds, and lives at 3228 E street, S. E., Washington. While in Cumberland she lived with an aunt, Mrs. Catherine Critzman, on Liberty street.

When a little girl, Miss Howe was advised to take gymnastic and dancing lessons to correct a crippled left arm caused by infantile paralysis.

She studied at the Mover Dance studio, here in Cumberland for seven years and not only cured the arm but also because one of the star pupils of the class.

Althoupgh Miss Howe proved an apt pupil in all types of dance work, it was as a tap dancer that she particularly excelled.

Attired in a vivid red bathing suit, Miss Howe gave a tap performance at a talent contest that resulted in her first professional offer.

Drunken Driver With Children Fined $113

Won His Liquor On Tip Board, Wife Testifies

A man convicted of drunken driving with his two children in the car got drunk after winning liquor and beer on a tip board, his wife testified yesterday.

The man, Herbert M. Short, of 930 Gay street, pleaded guilty to drunken and reckless driving and driving without a license. He paid fines totaling $113.25.

A companion, Charles R. Rice, of RFD 2, Willowbrook road, filed notice of an appeal after he was fined $100 and costs for allowing an intoxicated person to drive his car. He was also fined $5 in Police court on a charge of being drunk.

Rice pleaded not guilty to the state charge and said he didn't remember permitting Short to drive. He was released under $1,000 bond, posted before Magistrate Frank A. Perdew by Mr. and Mrs. Lee Dawson, of RFD 3, Valley road.

Short and Rice were arrested Tuesday afternoon on Oldtown road after a Mapleside woman called police and said she feared for the safety of Short's two children who were in the car occupied by the men. The men were standing outside of Rice's car when they were arrested.

Officers L. E. Meister and L. L. Youngblood preferred the charges.

Short's wife testified that her husband and Rice got drunk Tuesday after they won some liquor and beer on a "tip" board, prior to their arrest. They bought about thirty cents worth of chances, she said.

John Matthai, a Mapleside service station attendant, said he saw Short driving the car, but his testimony was not needed since Short pleaded guilty.

Kelly Tire Ad Makes Big Hit, Helps Business

Production Here Beats Last Year, Sales Increasing

Another of the series of national advertisements appearing in full color in the Saturday Evening Post for the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company has won nationwide approval and drawn much attention to Cumberland.

In the issue of May 25, the Memorial Day number, the advertisement featured a large color-photograph showing four American Legionnaires riding in parade and saluting the crowds along the way. Pictured beneath was a Kelly tire and the legend, "Dependable for 46 Years." The caption on the color-picture was "Dependable in '18, You Can't Beat 'Em Today."

Scores of complimentary letters have been received by Porter D. Collins, advertising manager of the Kelly, from American Legion posts all over the country, as well as from numerous individuals and many patriotic organizations and societies.

Response a Surprise

"Perhaps it was the timely placing of the copy, just before Memorial Day and perhaps it was recent events in Europe that caused the really remarkable interest in the advertisement," Mr. Collins said. "We felt the idea expressed in the ad was exceptionally good, but had no idea it would meet with the tremendous response received.

Production Stepped Up

Enlargements of the advertisement, produced in full color, are being displayed in all parts of the country by Kelly dealers and distributors, and the idea is also being reproduced in a third diminsion, cut-out window display.

As a result of the local industry's 1940 national advertising program and sales policy, the reputation of Kelly tires is steadily increasing and production is ahead of last year. Sales are shown to be increasing steadily throughout the country, and South American markets also show marked improvement, plant officials state.

Doing their bit to help increase the Red Cross War Relief Fund, the Junior Volunteer Service Corps is arranging for an informal get-together at the Cumberland Jockey Club, Pairgo, Friday evening, June 28.

The affair will include music, entertainment and refreshments.

As a result of the solicitation of members of the Junior Volunteers, there will be no expense in connection with the affair and all the proceeds will be donated to the War Chest.

The Fair Association, through the courtesy of Harry A. Manley, is donating the use of the Jockey Club. The Bellhops orchestra, directed by Charles Trimble is offering its services without charge.

The affair will be open to the public and tickets may be obtained from members of the Corps.

Miss Margery Muncaster, Washington street, Mrs. Robert McA. King, South Lee street and Mrs. F. Allan Weatherholt, Fayette street, comprise the committee in charge of arrangements.

Reed Against U. S. Taking West Indies

Would Cost More Than They're Worth, Says Exporter

A suggestion that the United States take over British, French and Dutch islands and territories bordering and in the Caribean Sea was branded as an "upside down" idea by Carl L. Reed in an address before the Lions Club, Tuesday.

Reed, export manager for the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, addressed the club on the topic, "What Will Be the Effect on American Business in South America of German Victory over France and England?"

In mentioning such possessions as Jamaica, Trinidad, English, French and Dutch West Indies and British Honduras and Guiana, Reed referred specifically to recent suggestions that this country "take them over in payment of Allied debts, or in trust, or pay for them in cash."

Wouldn't Work Out

While Reed admitted such a move might prove interesting from a purely military point of view, to consider buying such colonies and paying for them as if they were real estate "is an upside down idea that doesn't work out," he said.

No wise farmer, said Reed, would buy a piece of land that had to pay heavy taxes and did not produce anything.

"The economy here is the wrong way," Reed said. "The United States pays out much more in Puerto Rico, for example, than it takes in in all taxes put together. And the cost to this government of maintaining economic peace in Trinidad and Jamaica would be greater than in Puerto Rico.

"Far beyond the money question, which would probably be against us, the personal question is greater," Reed declared. "Except for a few hundred excellent, able, white colonists, these territories are all blacks, except Trinidad, which has a substantial number of Indians from India."

Swell Relief Load

These people, said Reed, would just add more people to pay relief money to".

The speaker also cited the fact that this country has not been remarkably successful in operating colonies. We confess a complete failure in the Philippines, he said. Puerto Rico was cited as a "hotbed of anti-Americanism and the only thing that keeps it quiet is a continuance of pap in subsidy and heavy relief money."

The only solution to this problem, Reed said, would be to defend these possessions for their owners, England, France, and Holland, and refuse to permit any military occupation by the Central Powers.

But this country should insist on the present owners continuing their stewardship, Reed declared, adding, "Maybe those countries can operate them; this country can't."

In referring to South American countries, Peru was cited as a country that appears to be more anti-American than pro-American.

Trade Competitor

Argentina, on the other hand, dislikes the Europeans, Reed said, despite the fact that the Argentine is a strong trade competitor of the United States looking for new markets.

Today, Chile, Peru, Ecuador, Colombia, Venezuela, and Panama are the biggest purchasers of Kelly tires in South America, Reed said.

"These countries, up to June, have continued to buy enough each month to keep several Kelly workmen employed," he said. "When the time comes that we may not ship anymore; that amount of work will most certainly be lost to Cumberland.

"In a much larger way, and for many other cities in the United States, the same effect will be noticed. That, will be one effect of German success in the present war."

Rainfall For June Totals 2.73 Inches

The temperature in the City of Cumberland hit the 92 degree mark again yesterday as rain fell for the fourteenth day in the last twenty making the fall for the period 5.65 inches.

Rain for the first eleven days of June totals 2.73 inches according to the official records at City Hall. The normal for the entire month is 4.12 inches. Last June the fall was 4.86 inches. Commissioner Edgar Reynolds reported yesterday his department has experienced considerable trouble keeping storm sewers clean as great quantities of earth has been washed from the hillsides.

The Constitution park pool reports nearly 600 swimmers yesterday and the same number Tuesday, despite the ever-present threat of storms.

Rose Ratke Wins Scholarship

James Hovatter Gets Gold Medal

Miss Rose Ratke, valedictorian of the graduating class of St. Mary's high school, last night was awarded a scholarship to Sacred Heart College, Louisville, Ky., for being the outstanding girl student of the class.

The award was announced at the school's twenty-seventh annual commencement exercises.

A gold medal for citizenship in the graduating class, donated by Harvey's jewelry store, was won by James Hovatter.

The Rev. J. Henry Hopkins, assistant pastor of St. Ambrose Catholic church in Baltimore, who was graduated from St. Mary's, delivered the commencement address. He stressed the importance of Catholic education in such troublesome times as the present.

Miss Anna Danahy was salutatorian of the Class of 1940.

Diplomas and the two awards were presented by the Rev. Lawrence P. Landrigan, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church.

St. Mary's twenty-two piece orchestra, directed by Sister Eileen, played a number of selections appropriate to the occasion, with Miss Catherine Doerner as pianist. Approximately 300 parents and friends, attended the exercises.

Boys' Club Plans Summer Program

Youngsters To Move To Constitution Park

Starting June 18, the members of the Police Boys' Club will start holding their meetings at Constitution Park.

The get-to-gethers will be held at the park playground on Tuesdays and Fridays during June, July and August, with members playing games from 8:30 to 10 a. m., followed by free swims in the park pool.

The free dips have been arranged for through the courtesy of the mayor and city council and William Buchholtz, manager of the pool.

Plans are underway to have a junior softball league in operation with two police boys' club teams from both Allegany and Fort Hill classes. Two additional teams may be admitted to form a six team loop. First aid and life-saving will be taught at the pool, and boys unable swim will get free lessons.

A boxing ring will be put up at the ampitheater, and boys desiring to take part in future Police Boys' Club boxing shows will have a chance to workout in the ring. Membership has already been applied for in the Amateur Athletic Union, and an outdoor show will be staged in the near future. Dr. Nelson is in charge of the boxing committee, aided by Dr. Frank Wilson, Dr. Joseph Franklin, Father Joyce Russell, and Officer James Kelley. Proceeds from boxing shows will be used to send boys to the "Y" camp, and to sustain the year round athletic program of the club.

The softball team operating in the city league, against much older and more experienced players, has won its last two games from the Potomac News Company and the North End Merchants. New uniforms have been provided for the boys. A colorful and patriotic color scheme was adopted—red, white and blue—with the name Police Boys' Club across the back of the jerseys, and a shield with P. B. C. across the front of the outfits. Blue and white caps were provided by John Mordock of the local Sears store.

Youth Admits Stealing Red Cross Container

A 14-year-old Harrison street youth last night admitted stealing a Red Cross collection box from Ford's Drug Store, Monday.

"I'm awful sorry," the youngster told Detective Robert E. Flynn who investigated the theft and arrested the boy.

Kelly Tire Ad Makes Big Hit, Helps Business

Production Here Beats Last Year, Sales Increasing

Another of the series of national advertisements appearing in full color in the Saturday Evening Post for the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company has won nationwide approval and drawn much attention to Cumberland.

In the issue of May 25, the Memorial Day number, the advertisement featured a large color-photograph showing four American Legionnaires riding in parade and saluting the crowds along the way. Pictured beneath was a Kelly tire and the legend, "Dependable for 46 Years." The caption on the color-picture was "Dependable in '18, You Can't Beat 'Em Today."

Scores of complimentary letters have been received by Porter D. Collins, advertising manager of the Kelly, from American Legion posts all over the country, as well as from numerous individuals and many patriotic organizations and societies.

Response a Surprise

"Perhaps it was the timely placing of the copy, just before Memorial Day and perhaps it was recent events in Europe that caused the really remarkable interest in the advertisement," Mr. Collins said. "We felt the idea expressed in the ad was exceptionally good, but had no idea it would meet with the tremendous response received.

Production Stepped Up

Enlargements of the advertisement, produced in full color, are being displayed in all parts of the country by Kelly dealers and distributors, and the idea is also being reproduced in a third diminsion, cut-out window display.

As a result of the local industry's 1940 national advertising program and sales policy, the reputation of Kelly tires is steadily increasing and production is ahead of last year. Sales are shown to be increasing steadily throughout the country, and South American markets also show marked improvement, plant officials state.

New uniforms have been provided for the boys. A colorful and patriotic color scheme was adopted—red, white and blue—with the name Police Boys' Club across the back of the jerseys, and a shield with P. B. C. across the front of the outfits. Blue and white caps were provided by John Mordock of the local Sears store.

Reed Against U. S. Taking West Indies

Would Cost More Than They're Worth, Says Exporter

A suggestion that the United States take over British, French and Dutch islands and territories bordering and in the Caribean Sea was branded as an "upside down" idea by Carl L. Reed in an address before the Lions Club, Tuesday.

Reed, export manager for the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, addressed the club on the topic, "What Will Be the Effect on American Business in South America of German Victory over France and England?"

In mentioning such possessions as Jamaica, Trinidad, English, French and Dutch West Indies and British Honduras and Guiana, Reed referred specifically to recent suggestions that this country "take them over in payment of Allied debts, or in trust, or pay for them in cash."

Wouldn't Work Out

While Reed admitted such a move might prove interesting from a purely military point of view, to consider buying such colonies and paying for them as if they were real estate "is an upside down idea that doesn't work out," he said.

No wise farmer, said Reed, would buy a piece of land that had to pay heavy taxes and did not produce anything.

"The economy here is the wrong way," Reed said. "The United States pays out much more in Puerto Rico, for example, than it takes in in all taxes put together. And the cost to this government of maintaining economic peace in Trinidad and Jamaica would be greater than in Puerto Rico.

"Far beyond the money question, which would probably be against us, the personal question is greater," Reed declared. "Except for a few hundred excellent, able, white colonists, these territories are all blacks, except Trinidad, which has a substantial number of Indians from India."

Swell Relief Load

These people, said Reed, would just add more people to pay relief money to".

The speaker also cited the fact that this country has not been remarkably successful in operating colonies. We confess a complete failure in the Philippines, he said. Puerto Rico was cited as a "hotbed of anti-Americanism and the only thing that keeps it quiet is a continuance of pap in subsidy and heavy relief money."

The only solution to this problem, Reed said, would be to defend these possessions for their owners, England, France, and Holland, and refuse to permit any military occupation by the Central Powers.

But this country should insist on the present owners continuing their stewardship, Reed declared, adding, "Maybe those countries can operate them; this country can't."

In referring to South American countries, Peru was cited as a country that appears to be more anti-American than pro-American.

Trade Competitor

Argentina, on the other hand, dislikes the Europeans, Reed said, despite the fact that the Argentine is a strong trade competitor of the United States looking for new markets.

Today, Chile, Peru, Ecuador, Colombia, Venezuela, and Panama are the biggest purchasers of Kelly tires in South America, Reed said.

"These countries, up to June, have continued to buy enough each month to keep several Kelly workmen employed," he said. "When the time comes that we may not ship anymore; that amount of work will most certainly be lost to Cumberland.

"In a much larger way, and for many other cities in the United States, the same effect will be noticed. That, will be one effect of German success in the present war."

Cumberland Girl Beats Paralysis, Wins Title of Miss Washington

When a little girl, Miss Howe was advised to take gymnastic and dancing lessons to correct a crippled left arm caused by infantile paralysis.

She studied at the Mover Dance studio, here in Cumberland for seven years and not only cured the arm but also because one of the star pupils of the class.
